

COLER IS TO LEAD

New York Democrats Name a Ticket After Throwing Bill Devery and His Gang Out.

WILD UPROAR REIGNED FOR A TIME

For governor—Bird S. Coler, of Brooklyn.

Lieutenant governor—Charles N. Bulger, of Oswego.

Secretary of State—Frank Mott, of Chautauqua.

Comptroller—Charles M. Preston, of Ulster.

Attorney general—John Cunneen, of Erie.

State treasurer—George E. Finch, of Warren.

A SEASON OF RACKET.

The nomination of the foregoing ticket was preceded by a season of uproar, growing out of the unseating of the two contesting delegations from the ninth district of New York city. Ex-Chief of Police Devery, who headed one of the delegations, was repudiated by the convention by an almost unanimous vote after scenes of disorder in which the Devery adherents sought to prevent progress of business in the convention. Devery succeeded in forcing his way to the platform and made a short speech, appealing to the convention for fair play. He was greeted with a storm of mingled cheers and hisses.

One of his delegates who attempted to get the platform for an address, was forcibly removed. After the vote of the convention declaring the ninth district delegation vacant, Devery with his delegation and several hundred followers left the convention hall, the big ex-police chief breathing threats.

Bird S. Coler, former comptroller of Greater New York, was nominated for governor on the first ballot, there being no other candidate placed before the convention.

The platform is notable for its lack of reference to late national platforms and perhaps more so for its demand for the national ownership of the anthracite coal mines.

TRouble WAS IN SIGHT.

Interest centered in the meetings this morning of the committees on platform and contested seats of the democratic state convention. It was conceded that if William S. Devery and his delegates from the Ninth New York city district were not seated there would be troublesome times, Mr. Devery having declared that he would make an appeal on the floor of the convention. Devery held more than five hundred spectators' seats for the convention hall. Curiously enough these were given him by sympathizing delegations from all over the state and quite a large number came from Tammany delegates. It was learned this morning that Mr. Devery had been approached with the suggestion that the wisest way out of the difficulty would be to leave the representation in the Ninth district vacant. To this he replied:

"I will make no such agreement. I won by a big majority. I have the certificate of election and I am entitled to the seats, unless the democratic party wants to go on record as saying that an election certificate is of no value and that the will of the majority means nothing. In addition to that I want to call attention to the fact that Goodwin received the lowest vote on the ticket. Mr. Sheehan's party received the second lowest and he does not contest. The Goodwin people are pretty nervous to appeal from the people's complete throwdown of them."

After Mr. Devery had made this statement several of the leading politicians took up his case and urged that the committee seat him and avoid trouble as well as the establishment of what might prove an unfortunate precedent.

DEVERY MAKES THREAT.

Mr. Devery early expressed the belief that he would not be seated. He took a seat in the rear of the convention hall, saying: "If Mr. Hill this convention to which I have been duly and properly elected, I will hire a special train and if Mr. Hill goes campaigning I will follow him to every place in the state he may go to and tell the people the story of rank injustice."

When he made this statement Devery was surrounded by his friends and was with one of his counsel, who acquiesced in his decision.

DEVERY STARTS UPROAR.

After remaining at the rear of the hall for a short time Devery started down the aisle. In a minute the convention hall was in an uproar. Even the band was drowned out as delegates and friends stood on their chairs and cheered and waved their handkerchiefs. "He's seated, he's seated," yelled the crowd, but Devery raised his hand and called out, "Not yet, not yet." Then arose the cry from one side of the gallery, "What's the matter with Devery?" and back in the roar came the answer, "He's all right." The ex-chief of police took a seat in the right of the hall and shortly thereafter the announcement reached the convention hall that the committee on credentials would not seat either Devery or Goodwin. Immediately there was great excitement. Devery said to a reporter:

"Did you see my reception? It pleased me very much to see the people appreciate my position in this convention. I have nothing to say, except that I have always been a democrat. I am a democrat and will continue to be a democrat. That is all I wish to say now."

In deciding the Devery contest a number of heated speeches were made and when it was explained that it was Senator Hill's desire that neither Devery nor Goodwin be recognized, a motion to that effect was carried with but few dissenting votes.

HILL GETS OVATION.

When Senator Hill entered the convention hall there was a great outburst of applause.

At 11:27 the temporary chairman took the gavel and rapped for order, and the report of the committee on credentials was called for. Chairman McMahon said: "In presenting this report I move the previous question." This was to prevent debate.

When the secretary read, "In the Ninth district, New York, neither delegation is entitled to seats in the convention because of the wholesale corruption," a roar of cheers and hisses went up, and as it continued Devery was seen making his way to the platform. Vainly the chairman rapped for order. Vainly a band played. Down the aisle Devery forced his way, the crowd clearing the way for him. When he reached the platform steps he raised his hands in an effort to stop the pandemonium that reigned. A sergeant-at-arms, with his hands on the big ex-chief's shoulder, tried to force him back to a seat, but he shook him off and started to speak.

DEVERY MAKES SPEECH.

He said amid cheers: "Democrats of this convention, Samuel J. Tilden was deprived of his right of franchise, as were the people of the United States. We do not want that to occur here today. It was through the work of a clique of this convention that the people of the Ninth district are about to be deprived of a similar right. Mr. Hill, as state leader of the state of New York, we ask justice from you as leader of the democratic party. We do not come here as honest democrats to be deprived of our rights."

As Devery left the platform not a delegate was in his seat and the gallery was in a wild state of excitement.

IN WILD UPROAR.

A Devery delegate got to the platform and attempted to speak. The chair told him that he could not address the convention. Amidst a tremendous uproar he started to speak, but a sergeant-at-arms hustled him down the steps. Fully ten minutes the convention and its delegates were in a wild state of excitement.

Chairman Stanchfield said: "For the sake of the delegates to this democratic convention and those present I desire to say that the party does not propose to have its voice put down or allow its convention to be run by thugs and ruffians and— Here the Devery adherents broke out again and drowned Mr. Stanchfield's voice by cheers for Devery. For several minutes it went on and then the chair said: "I want to say to the gallery everybody will get fair play. If the gallery does not cease the galleries will be cleared." Cries of "try it—let's see you." Finally some semblance of order was obtained and then Devery presented a minority report.

DISTRICT THROWN OUT.

CIRCUIT COURT AT DECATUR ADJOURNS HURRIEDLY.

(Special to The Sentinel.)

Decatur, Ind., Oct. 1.—Tuesday morning as Judge R. K. Erwin in the Adams circuit court here was impaneling a jury to try the Holthouse ditch case, word was brought to him that one of the hired hands upon his farm, a man named Spahr, had smallpox.

Judge Erwin had come from the farm but a few hours previously, and he realized that he had been exposed to the disease, so he acted quickly. He promptly adjourned court to await developments, and it is not known when court will resume its sessions. Judge Erwin is voluntarily remaining in quarantine, but is not at his home.

Spahr's brother has been attending the Monmouth school, and last evening the school was ordered dismissed by Health Officer Costello. The building is now being thoroughly disinfected.

THE BOY ENJOYED HIS RIDE

YOUNG FAGIN WORKED A LIVELY KEEPER FOR A HORSE.

Said He Was Sent By a Lawyer for a Team and Proceeded to Have a Good Time.

Yesterday forenoon a lad named James Fagin, living on South Calhoun street, went to Rippe's livery barn and stated that he had been sent by S. F. Swayne to get a horse and buggy. The rig was delivered and young Fagin thereupon proceeded to have a good time. He drove the horse all morning and yesterday afternoon until late into the night. He then tied the horse to a post on Highland street and then went home. The horse was found later and taken to the barn. It is needless to add that Mr. Swayne had not sent the lad for the horse, and as there have been other complaints against him, it is probable that a charge of some kind will be filed.

FINE CATTLE ENTERED.

There is no question but that the fair next week will show the finest lot of cattle ever enclosed in one lot. The weather today broke just right and the fair managers are exuberant over the prospects. H. F. Schmelker, of New Haven, this morning entered his famous herd of Herefords, one of the finest bunches in the country, headed by the prize bull Sir Frere (103,298), and the herd includes not less than ten of the celebrated Wilton family. Other entries are coming in by every mail and the problem may be where to put all the exhibits. However, the management will provide accommodations for everybody even if the already enormous capacity must be doubled. In racing horses, both harness and runners, the entries are still coming, although the classes are already filled. Vern Whisholm returned this morning from Hillsdale, where he secured fifteen entries, including parts of the stables of George Castle, of Chicago; F. C. McCullough, of Laporte, and George Wilson, of Decatur. These stables include half a dozen runners that can jump over a dozen of hay in rainy weather and two feet of mud. All the men out attending the fair at races this week report great success in securing entries.

WOULD OUST HIM

SUIT AGAINST RECORDER HERBICK IN DEKALB.

AUBURN EDITOR COURAGEOUS

SAYS OFFICER IS UNFIT FOR THE HIGH PLACE.

EDITOR EARNS OUT WITH A PERSONAL STATEMENT.

(Special to The Sentinel.)

Auburn, Ind., Oct. 1.—Single-handed and alone, James A. Barnes, the veteran editor of the Auburn Courier and long a prominent democrat of DeKalb county, is courageously attempting to oust from office a county official elected by his own party, but who, it is charged, has become so addicted to liquor as to disgrace the high position he was selected by the people to fill.

Recorder Herbrick is the official in question, and Editor Barnes has filed in the DeKalb circuit court a suit to remove him from office. The proceeding is a unique one and Editor Barnes' vigorous attitude has created a tremendous sensation here, but the newspaper man stands upon the platform that he will not knowingly support a man of dissolute habits for public office, nor will he tolerate such a man after he is in. He is confident the people will sustain him in his attitude.

MAKES A STATEMENT.

The filing of the suit has been productive of such an upheaval in DeKalb county political circles that Editor Barnes felt impelled to make in his newspaper a personal statement, over his own signature, setting forth his precise position and assuming full and individual responsibility for his original reformative methods. The statement appeared in the Daily Courier last evening, and is as follows:

"The entering on the court docket Monday of a suit against Recorder Herbrick to deprive him of an office that he has not been filling worthily, has caused a good deal of comment, and some criticism. I feel it my duty, as a citizen to give a brief explanation. The action was brought by me, and I alone am responsible for it. Mr. Herbrick received the support of a majority of the 7,000 voters of the county, because they believed he would not disgrace the position. But at different times since he has held the place he has been seen intoxicated in public places. Lately he has about half the time been unfit for business and once at least had to be helped to his home. Friends have urged him to stop and every possible influence has been brought to bear on him, but in vain. The public had so often shut its eyes to vices of that kind, indulged in by those in prominent places, that it had come to be considered a safe thing to do. But it had also become unbearable. And as I have often taken the position that I will not support for office a man of loose or vicious habits, I wish also to make it clear that I will not tolerate such a man after he is in. I know, also, that I am not alone in this view, but that a vast majority of the 30,000 people of DeKalb county are with me in the determination that none but clean men shall enjoy the official honors in our gift.

"So the suit was brought as a last resort. Not in anger, but in humiliation and sorrow, and it will be pushed in the same spirit. I have none but the most friendly feelings for Mr. Herbrick. He has been a good officer and the work in his office is in good condition. But such a condition of things would soon stop if he were allowed to go on. I have the highest regard for his family, also, for they are most worthy people. If this step on which I have entered so reluctantly should result in saving to them a kind husband and father, I shall feel repaid for the pangs it has cost me.

"One word more. There is no politics in this. Interested parties on both sides are trying to make capital of it. Democrats have claimed that the republican committee did it to disrupt the democratic party. Republicans have said that the democratic committee did it because Herbrick is helping Joliff for sheriff, and using Joliff's money. But the two committees are in no way responsible for this step. It is a step taken by an individual democrat, against an individual democratic officer, because people of all classes are tired of keeping dissolute men in high places. Knowing intimately the people of this community, I feel sure of their sympathy and good will.

"James A. Barnes."

The physical requirements are very strict, and of a total of about twenty applicants to date, six have been accepted.

MONUMENT TO NANCY HANKS

CEREMONY AT THE GRAVE OF LINCOLN'S MOTHER.

Homestead in Spencer County Is Dedicated.

Lincoln City, Ind., Oct. 1.—A monument to Nancy Hanks Lincoln was dedicated here today and notwithstanding the disagreeable weather the largest crowd ever gathered in Spencer county was gathered to witness the ceremony.

The grove in which the monument is located was cleaned of underbrush and a number of eating stands, one capable of seating 1,000 people, were erected. The stone for this monument was taken from the old base of the Abraham Lincoln monument at Springfield, Ill.

Gen. John C. Black, of Chicago, delivered the oration and Governor Durbin accepted the monument.

SPOAT—SMITH.

The marriage of Miss Evelyn M. Smith and James A. Sproat took place last evening at the home of Rev. J. C. Breckinridge, pastor of Bethany Presbyterian church, who performed the ceremony. The attendants were Miss Nettie Sproat and H. F. Rolf. The bride is a daughter of City Policeman J. M. Smith, of 1018 Degroff street. The groom is a son of Mr. and Mrs. D. A. Sproat, of 715 St. Mary's avenue and is employed in the Rolf plumbing shop on Broadway. Mr. and Mrs. Sproat have gone to housekeeping at 1424 St. Mary's avenue.

STOLE MANY CHICKENS.

Nearly sixty fine chickens were stolen last night from the premises of Joseph C. Pfeiffer, just north of the city. The barking of a dog during the operations of the thieves aroused members of the family and Mr. Pfeiffer hurried out to the barn to make an investigation. The thieves had completed their work, however, and fled. There is no clue and Mr. Pfeiffer is unable to determine exactly how many of the fowls were taken.

BURGLARY ATTEMPTED.

An attempt was made last night to burglarize the peanut stand next to Marriott's second-hand store. The attempt was unsuccessful, the marauders being frightened by the movements of the inmates of the building. Entrance was attempted through a rear window.

WANT CASE TRANSFERRED.

Indianapolis, Oct. 1.—The Fort Wayne and Southwestern Traction company today filed a motion in the federal court asking that the suit of Townsend, Reed & Co. against it be transferred for hearing at Fort Wayne. Asks Presidents of Coal Roads and President of Mineworkers to Meet Him in Washington.

RESULT OF CABINET CONFERENCE

Washington, Oct. 1.—As a result of the cabinet conference upon the anthracite mine strike, President Roosevelt has requested the presidents of the railroads in the hard coal combine and President Mitchell, of the United Mine Workers of America, to meet him in Washington next Friday.

The purpose of the proposed conference is to attempt to reach some means of settlement of the strike in the anthracite mines.

The president, Secretary Root, Secretary Moody, Secretary Shaw, Attorney General Knox and Postmaster General Payne resumed their conference on the coal strike at 10:30 o'clock this morning. The conference closed shortly before noon and at 2 o'clock this afternoon the following was made public from the white house:

"White House, Washington, October 1, 1902.

"George F. Baer, President Reading Railway System, Philadelphia, Pa. W. H. Truesdale, President Delaware, Lackawanna and Western Railroad Company, 26 Exchange Place, New York, N. Y.

"E. B. Thomas, Chairman of the Board, Erie Railroad Company, 21 Copland Street, New York, N. Y.

"Thomas P. Fowler, President New York, Ontario and Western Railway Company, 58 Beaver Street, New York, N. Y.

"I should greatly like to see you on Friday next, Oct. 3d, at 11 o'clock a. m., here in Washington, in regard to the failure of the coal supply, which has become a matter of vital concern to the whole nation. I have sent a similar dispatch to Mr. John Mitchell, president of the United Mine Workers of America. (Signed.) "Theodore Roosevelt."

OPERATORS WILL ACCEPT.

New York, Oct. 1.—President Truesdale, of the Lackawanna road; President Fowler, of the Ontario and Western company, and President Oliphant, of the Delaware and Hudson company, this afternoon acknowledged the receipt of President Roosevelt's invitation to confer with him over the coal strike situation. It is quite certain that the invitation will be accepted by the operators, but none of those seen would discuss the probable outcome of the meeting. President Truesdale made this statement this afternoon:

"There is absolutely no truth whatever in the report that President Baer, of the Reading company, has resigned. There is no truth whatever in the reports that the strike has been settled or contemplated."

Following the receipt of the president's invitation, the coal presidents in the city held a brief conference, but no word as to what passed between them was obtainable.

J. F. Morgan said: "I have heard of the president's invitation to the coal presidents and I think it is an admirable thing. As to results we can tell better when the operators come back."

John Markle, one of the leading independent operators, was also invited by President Roosevelt to attend the Washington conference. Mr. Markle's invitation was also received by the Washington conference. Mr. Markle's invitation was also received by the Washington conference.

"I shall proceed at once to get in communication with our people," said Mr. Parry, "and arrange for a committee of five to meet the committee designated by Mr. Mitchell in Buffalo next Saturday, probably at 8 a. m. I will not announce the committee of five to meet the committee from the telegrams which I will send at once."

DID NOT GO TO NEW YORK.

Wilkesbarre, Pa., Oct. 1.—President Mitchell, of the United Mine Workers, did not leave for New York today. It was rumored last night that the miners' chief would go to the metropolis today this morning, but up to noon he was still in the city. Mr. Mitchell declined to comment on the conference held yesterday between the president and members of his cabinet, in which the coal strike situation was discussed.

MOB STONES ENGINEER.

Mt. Carmel, Pa., Oct. 1.—While Engineer F. P. Hoffman was on a Lehigh Valley locomotive here last night he was stoned by a mob because he was running a car full of supplies into the soldiers' encampment. The mob was almost totally wrecked. One day, when Senator-elect McCreary, of Kentucky, was out looking after his political fences, he stopped before a house where there was a well in the yard and asked for a drink, says the New York Times.

"Sorry, mister," responded the man of the house, "but there ain't a drop on this here place, and I am getting pretty dry myself."

"Isn't there any water in the well?" exclaimed McCreary.

"Of course there is," blurted out the man; "I didn't know you wanted water. I thought you wanted a drink."

FOREMAN ESIGN.

CHARLES AGSTER QUIT GOOD POSITION AT SHOPS.

PREFERS TO WORK AT LATHE

TO "BOSSING" A NUMBER OF FELLOW MECHANICS.

WORTHY CLERKS ADVANCED

J. H. HOBROCK DOES RIGHT THING TO GOOD MEN.

For several months Charles A. Agster has occupied the unique position of foreman of the machine department of the Wabash shops against his will. The position affords a good salary and would be a desirable office for the majority of mechanics, yet Mr. Agster does not want it and he has resigned. Last spring, when Graves Maupin retired from the foremanship, General Foreman Yergens induced Mr. Agster to take the office until he could secure a suitable person. Mr. Agster's administration was, evidently, satisfactory and it was decided he should fill the office just as long as he could be persuaded to act in that capacity. Two months ago he served notice of his desire to relinquish the foremanship and return to the lathe, but no attention was given the matter. Last night Mr. Agster emphatically and absolutely refused to hold the office longer and this morning he remained away from the shop. Frank Frary, one of the best all-around machinists in the shop, is now acting foreman of the department, but whether he will be regularly appointed and will accept remains to be seen. Mr. Frary has filled the position temporarily at various times during the absence of the regular foreman and is familiar with the duties. As stated, the position is a good one and there are plenty of good men willing and anxious to get it. Mr. Yergens will not be long without a foreman for this department. It is understood that Mr. Agster will resume charge of one of the machines in the shop. Several changes also occurred at the Pittsburg shop clerk's office this morning, being the result of the promotion of W. E. Dartnell to the office of shop clerk at Toledo. Mr. Hobrock has called George T. Scott to the position of assistant shop clerk to succeed Mr. Dartnell and this made an opening for the advancement of C. L. Daseker and Samuel W. Bostick in the order named. T. E. Byrne has been transferred from Wellsville to the position made vacant by the promotion of Mr. Bostick and the tanks in the force are thus closed up. All of these men have been in the service a good while, Mr. Scott serving twelve years, and are deserving of the advancement that has come to them.

Another change that came to the notice of the reporter this morning was the transfer of Charles Bricker from the Wabash freight house to the position of assistant to Day Baggage-master Louis Leussenhop, to succeed Steve Gordon, who has gone into the shops to learn a trade.

SPEED LIMIT INCREASED.

Notice has been served on Nickel Plate conductors and engineers that the heavy consolidated freight engines can be run at a speed of thirty-five miles per hour, which is an increase of five miles per hour over the old speed limit. There are ten of these big engines in use on the western division of the road and they are giving excellent service.

RETURNS TO NICKEL PLATE.

Vollie Hutzell, a locomotive fireman who has been working on the Wabash for some months, running in and out of Detroit, has returned to the city. He expects to resume his old place on the Nickel Plate road. The change is made in order that the young man may be with his relatives in this city.

AIR BRAKE CAR TO TOLEDO.

Th Wabash air brake instruction car, which has been here for three or four weeks goes to Toledo tonight, where it will probably be in service two weeks. This car is one of the best of its kind in the country.

NEW INTERLOCKING PLANT.

Tomorrow the Pennsylvania company will place a sixteen-lever interlocking plant into service at K N tower, one and one-half miles west of Bucyrus, Ohio. At that point there is an important "cross-over" track.

SOME NEW EMPLOYEES.

Charles Miller, who had a portion of his right hand crushed and amputated last spring while at work in the Pittsburg boiler shops, will take a lighter position in the machine shop in a day or two. The thumb and index finger of the crippled hand are whole and will be of service to the young man.

J. J. Egan, a boilermaker's helper, has taken a position in the shop and Benjamin Chids and George Beyers have secured employment in the round house. J. C. Stehr resigned a position in the latter place this morning.

WILL ATTEND CONVENTION.

The meeting of Loyal lodge, No. 85, Ladies' Auxiliary to the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen, tomorrow evening will be the last meeting before the meeting of the grand lodge in Cleveland next week and the officers of the local lodge are anxious to have a big attendance. Mrs. Ella Anderson, of Texas, first vice grand mistress of the auxiliary, will be here and will accompany Mrs. Cassie Clark, chairman of the grand board of auditors, and Delegate Mrs. Ella Foster to Cleveland in advance of the other people who will go to the convention. These three ladies will leave for that city next Friday. Later Mrs. Violette Lausue, mistress of Loyal lodge; Mrs. Sophia Dent, vice mistress; Secretary Jessie D. Wolf and Mrs. Margaret Potts will go to Cleveland to attend the convention.

LOCATING C. R. & M. SHOPS.

The much-discussed question of the location of the C. R. & M. shops has been opened anew by the announcement of a recent visit of President W. A. Bradford to Muncie. In company with local officials a drive was taken all about the city and several sites viewed. The trip was made secretly and no information has been given out. On the same day President Bradford also visited Peru. No official statement has ever been made concerning the location of the shops.

BIG CLOCKS ALL WENT WRONG

WESTERN UNION TIMEKEEPERS OUT OF SERVICE.

Inquisitive Messenger Boy Caused Trouble When He Wanted to See How It Worked.

The electrical clock service of the Western Union Telegraph company, installed at many points in the downtown portions of the city, was temporarily put out of commission last night by a messenger boy of inquisitive turn of mind, who, during a moment of idleness, concluded to absorb some information as to how the old thing worked, anyway.

The large clocks are electrically connected and automatically controlled. They are presumed to be accurate to the fraction of a second, and are relied upon in hotels, offices and business houses generally where exactness in the matter of time is imperative. The machinery is both delicate and intricate, however, and when the messenger boy began his investigations it took but a moment to put the circuit out of service and stop every clock of the kind in the city.

Then trouble began. From all over town inquiries began pouring in by telephone to the Western Union office. With as much good nature as could be summoned together under the circumstances the situation was explained, and this morning the work of repair was begun. Electrician Pound, the clock expert of the local office, was busy until late this afternoon before all the timepieces were in motion again.

A SENSITIVE POINT.

"What would you do if a colleague told you that you had offered an unwarranted statement?"

"Well," answered Senator Sorghum, "if it was a financial statement that he alluded to, say an expense account or something of that kind, I'd be very much tempted to get angry. It's a pretty serious thing to assail a man's credit nowadays."—Washington Star.

"It was almost a miracle. Burdock Blood Bitters cured me of a terrible breaking out all over the body. I am very grateful." Miss Julia Filbridge, West Cornwell, Conn.

Dr. Price's Cream Baking Powder is so perfect in its make, so simple in use, that beginners in cooking may work with it successfully. It really "makes home baking easy," and gives nicer, better food than the baker's. There is no baking powder or preparation like it or equalling it for quickly and perfectly making the delicate hot biscuit, hot bread, muffin, cake and pastry.

THE MARKETS.

Chicago, Oct. 1.—Firm cables and smaller receipts caused a strong opening in wheat today. There was a good scattering demand with some buying by shorts.

The early strength continued throughout the entire session, and after selling at 67 3/4c December closed 1 1/4c higher at 69 1/4c.

Provisions were again weak due to lower prices of hogs at the yards. Trading on the whole was dull, but a fair demand for October lard was manifested.

A QUARTER OFF.

The Drummer's Reward For Saying a Drowning Man.

"I was driving into a New Hampshire village in a buggy three or four years ago," said a drummer from the Hub, "when I saw a man fall off a bridge into the river. As he came to the surface I saw that he could not swim, and I off with my coat and boots and plunged in. He came near drowning me, but at last I got him to the bank, and he proved to be the proprietor of one of the village inns. He was mighty grateful in words, and he shook hands with me about ten times an hour until bedtime. He told every body what a hero I was and almost made me proud, and he threw out hints that such merit as mine would not go un-rewarded. I passed that night and the next day and night at his inn, and then, being ready to depart, I asked for my bill. Mine host had begun to cool off considerably. In fact, he had come to believe that if let alone he would have rescued himself. Therefore I wasn't altogether unexpected for his words when he said:

"But what?" I asked as he hesitated. "But it seems that you tumbled off the bridge and got wet the other day, and as I want you to carry away a pleasant impression of the town—" "You'll knock the 75 cents off the bill?" "No, sir. I'll take off a quarter, and I'll expect you to send me all the customers you can to even up things!" "I refused his discount," sighed the drummer, "and when ready to go, he held out his hand for a shake-and-said. 'Well, I'm glad it came my way to save your life, and I hope you'll make good use of it.'" M. QUAD.

Just then Bingull made a three base hit, bringing in two men, and the crowd went wild. HAS A NEW GLASS

INVENTION THAT MAY REVOLUTIONIZE INDUSTRY.

Marion Men's Process Would Do Away With Blowers and Save Manufacturers $70,000 Daily.

Marion, Ind., Oct. 1.—William L. Heal, of this city, was granted a patent yesterday on a glassmaking device which it is claimed will revolutionize the window and plate-glass industry by doing away with glass blowers and glass blowing machines, and which, if installed in all the glass plants of the country, would, it is claimed, make a difference in the cost of the present output amounting to $70,000 daily. Mr. Heal has been working for years on his invention and, it is said, has made satisfactory tests in window glass factories at this city. Electricity plays a prominent part in the manufacture of glass by Mr. Heal's process, and the machine which turns out the glass is exceedingly simple. The glass is melted in pots similar to those used in all window-glass factories of the country and the molten glass is allowed to run into a metal pan the size of the sheet of glass required, where it is tempered. The pan is kept at the proper heat, and the sheet of glass is tempered by electricity. It is claimed by the inventor that a sheet of any size and thickness can be made by his process. In making the first experiments the glass was cloudy, full of bubbles and failed to attain a polished surface, but it is claimed that these difficulties have been overcome and that now when the glass is taken from the pan it has a highly polished surface, is much stronger than blown glass, and is perfectly transparent. Plans are making to give the new process a thorough test in a local glass factory.

SWEET MAKING A RECORD.

Noting the piscatorial accomplishments of a recent party of Fort Wayne fishermen at Carp Lake, Mich., N. M. Kellam, proprietor of Pon-She-Wa-ing, the summer home at Oden, Mich., writes The Sentinel to say that all others will be obliged to doff their hats to E. B. Sweet, of this city, who is now a guest at Oden, and has been making the experts there look like rank amateurs. Mr. Kellam says that Mr. Sweet has landed a six-pound rainbow trout from Crooked lake that is the handsomest specimen he has ever seen, together with a great many pickers, the largest weighing eight pounds. Charles Bryson, another Fort Wayne man who recently visited Oden, is also featured as a star. In his recent catch there was a whitefish weighing four pounds.

ROBBERS HOLD UP A COACH.

Middletown, N. Y., Oct. 1.—The stage coach Pioneer, which makes daily trips between Warwick and Goshen, was held up and robbed by three masked horsemen late yesterday afternoon. The coach was bowling along the road two miles from Florida, N. Y., and at a lonely spot on the road Clinton W. Wisner and Horatio S. Wisner, who own the coach, saw the men on horses suddenly emerge from the dense woods which line the highway. The robbers ordered Mr. Wisner to pull up his horses, and when he refused to do it the highwaymen opened fire with revolvers. Inside the coach were Mrs. J. A. Chamberlain, Mrs. Fred Webster, Mrs. James Fuller, Mrs. Hart and Mrs. Ed Johnson, of Florida, N. Y., and while two of the highwaymen covered the Wisner brothers with their revolvers the third compelled the passengers to give up all their money and valuables.

HEADLESS BODY DISCOVERED

New York, Oct. 1.—The headless and armless body of a young woman was found shortly before noon yesterday floating in the East river at the foot of Sedgwick street, Brooklyn. All the clothing that remained was a pair of very fine lisle thread black stockings and a pair of French high-heeled black shoes. There was no mark on either the shoes or stockings to show where they had been bought. The police are at a loss to account for the way in which the woman met her death and how she came to be in the water. They are not prepared to state that she was murdered, because the head might have been torn from the body after it had drifted about for some time in the water. The woman was about twenty years of age and probably weighed 130 pounds.

FOUND A PETRIFIED BODY.

Evansville, Ind., Sept. 30.—While a sand digger was at work in the river here today, the petrified body of a man was brought to the surface. Indications are that the victim was a white man who had been murdered. The arms had been pinioned. A hole, seemingly made by a bullet, appears in the chest.

SALT COMPANY RECEIVERS.

Trenton, N. J., Oct. 1.—Chancellor Magie at his home in Elizabeth yesterday appointed Frank P. McDermott, of Jersey City, and Nathan S. Beardslee, of Warsaw, N. Y., receivers for the National Salt company. The papers in the case were filed here late yesterday afternoon. The application for a receiver was made by Chauncey H. Strickland, of New York city. The company's liabilities are given at $1,150,000 and the quick assets at $858,000. It is said that the company lost $225,000 during the first six months of the present year and that it stands to lose $35,000 a month because of a contract under which the company was to purchase from the Michigan Salt association and others at a stipulated price about 2,000,000 barrels of salt a year. This contract does not expire until January, 1904.

LOCAL LINES.

Miss Rockhill has returned from a visit in Brownsville, Pa. Miss Bertha Benber leaves Friday for a visit in Washington, D. C. Miss Sophie Thiele was hostess for a small company last evening in celebration of her birthday anniversary. Several Fort Wayne young people will attend a dance to be given this evening by the Landin club of New Haven. Mr. and Mrs. Charles Burrows and Mrs. Clark, of Elmira, N. Y., who have been visiting Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Kitzelman, have returned home. Some of the residents on West Main street complain of the sidewalk walks being too low to allow proper drainage and pools of water form on them every time it rains. One hundred and twenty-five people were guests of Sheriff and Mrs. Stout last evening at dinner in celebration of Mr. and Mrs. Stout's wedding anniversary. The dining room had been decorated with autumn leaves and flags and the tables were decorated with dahlias. D. C. Stout, John Ryan, Miss Julia Zollinger and Miss Rose Thain assisted in receiving, while Mrs. N. W. Bloom had charge of the dining room. In the evening the guests played cards and other games and listened to musical numbers. Sheriff and Mrs. Stout received numerous handsome gifts in honor of the occasion.

UNDERSTUDY OF PRESIDENT

MOODY BOWS AS THE TRAIN SPEEDS PAST STATION.

A Plan That is Often Used — Even Friends Deceived on New England Tour.

Washington, Oct. 1.—Secretary Moody had planned to go west and meet President Roosevelt at St. Louis to accompany him through Illinois, Michigan, Ohio and the east. He was to have been the president's understudy, put on a frock coat and a silk hat, and step out on the rear platform to bow to the people at the smaller stations where the president's special did not stop. The secretary of the navy did this very successfully on the New England trip. He personated the president before many fleeing audiences and bowed while the people cheered for Roosevelt. He expected to do the same thing on a part of the western trip.

He is disappointed that the president has been compelled to abandon the trip before it came his turn to accept the plaudits of the people intended for his chief.

This is not a new departure in campaigning. It has been a feature of campaign tours where there is a continuous rush of crowds to see the president or other dignitary. President McKinley had an understudy with him on several of his long trips—a man who looked like the president, who could slip out on the platform and bow to the crowds which the train passed without stopping.

President Harrison had an understudy on his trip to the Pacific coast, and Mr. Bryan had an understudy on the train in 1896 and 1900, when he made his campaign from the rear platform of a special. There is no purpose to deceive, but someone must respond to the welcome of those who stand for hours at a small railroad station to see the president's special pass.

It is impossible for the president to rush to the platform every five minutes and also make his speeches and meet the committeemen who come on the train to welcome him. The understudy does this work.

Mr. Moody did it very successfully in New England, where he and President Roosevelt are both well known. The two men bear a striking resemblance to each other. They are about the same height and build, have the same shaped heads, same complexion, and hair and mustache alike. They are very like in their manner of walk and speech.

Mr. Moody, however, rarely wears a frock coat and silk hat. Neither did Roosevelt before he became president, but he now makes these concessions to the dignity of his great office. On the New England trip Mr. Moody provided himself with a frock coat and silk hat, and he donned these to appear on the platform and bow to the people as the train rushed past the small stations.

Even friends deceived. He was entirely successful, and in many places where he was well known he appeared for the president and was mistaken for Roosevelt. This mistaken identity became embarrassing for the secretary of the navy at his own home, Haverhill, Mass.

The train stopped there and the president made a speech. Mr. Moody introduced him and then retired. The crowd was great and many of them did not see the change from Moody to Roosevelt on the platform. The secretary made a speech at all. He merely introduced the president. But afterward he heard of many criticisms from old friends, who were surprised at his making a long speech when they were waiting to hear the president.

They had mistaken the president for their old neighbor and they heard most of the president's speech before they realized the real situation.

The president likes to have one or two members of his cabinet with him on these tours he makes. They do not accompany him as companion spellbinders and they rarely expect to be called upon to speak. They realize that the people come out to see and hear the president, and not members of the cabinet.

It is not a hardship for such men as Secretary Root, Wilson, Shaw and Moody to accompany the president without having an opportunity to speak. They are all good speakers, and they enjoy being a part of the president's audience.

McKINLEY'S PLAN DIFFERENT. President McKinley tried the experiment of using the members of his cabinet on several tours to give him a breathing spell. He carried the whole cabinet with him on his western tour in 1898, and he had them all contribute to the speech-making.

It was not a great success, for the members who were the least interesting speakers were disposed to consume the most time and disappoint the audiences. They did not know how to express themselves briefly and to the point.

BURGULARS STEAL HARD COAL.

Philadelphia, Oct. 1.—After spending the summer at the seashore H. G. Taylor and family returned to their home at 934 Fairmount avenue last night to find that burglars had been in their house, evidently on Sunday night. Several of the rooms on the first and second floors had been entered and household effects were overturned. Considerable valuable silverware and some jewelry had lain where the thieves could hardly help seeing it, but none of it had been taken. The burglars were after bigger game and got it. When Mr. Taylor went to the seashore he left three tons of anthracite coal in his cellar, and during the last two months he has been congratulating himself that he would not have to worry about the coal strike. But his fond illusion is gone, for the burglars, who spoiled silverware and jewels, stole the three tons of coal, carrying it away in a wagon. The coal cost Taylor $16.50 when he bought it. It will cost him about three times that much to replace it.

BLANCHARD-JEWELL.

A pretty wedding occurred at high noon today at the home of Mr. and Mrs. George A. Jewell, 2435 South Webster street, when their eldest daughter, Pearl Etta, was united in marriage to John Hale Blanchard, of Binghamton, N. Y. The bride was attired in a beautiful gown of white mousseline de soie and carried bride's roses. The ceremony was performed by Rev. B. J. Youngs, of St. Louis, Mich., an uncle of the bride, in the presence of only near relatives, and following the ceremony a dainty wedding repast was served. The bride is an estimable young lady and has been a teacher in the public schools of Binghamton for the past five years. The groom is a young man of excellent character and is associated with the Haddock-Blanchard Coal company of Binghamton. Mr. and Mrs. Blanchard left at 4:30 this afternoon for a short wedding tour and they will be at home to friends after November 1st at 23 Robinson street, Binghamton.

Goshen, Ind., Oct. 1.—Mrs. E. J. Mentzer, wife of the Lake Shore postal railway clerk of this city, who was run over by a State street department store automobile in Chicago Saturday afternoon, died of her injuries at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Clara Dickenson, 458 Cuyler avenue, this city. She was 47 years of age and had lived in this city about twenty-two years. Besides her husband, she leaves five children Mrs. Ed Miller, of Elkhart; Mrs. Dickenson, of Chicago; Claude, Anna and Wilma, at home.

PLAN TO GET COAL TO POOR

NEW YORK TENEMENT DISTRICTS TO BE SERVED.

Hospitals Come Next and Traction Companies Third—Coal Road President's Action.

New York, Oct. 1.—A plan is said to have been put into operation, at the meeting of coal road presidents just held in this city, for the supplying of coal, first, to the dwellers in the tenement districts; second, to the hospitals, and third, to the transportation companies.

According to the Herald the scheme came up during the weekly discussion of the miners' strike and the object of the presence of R. W. De Forest, who is tenement house commissioner, president of the charity organization society and general counsel of the Central Railroad of New Jersey, was that the other officials might have placed before them the tenement dwellers' crying need of fuel in cold weather.

Mr. De Forest was listened to attentively, and there was not one of the dozen present who did not agree that something must be done. Before the matter was turned over to the sales agents of the companies, who, in co-operation with Mr. De Forest, will decide on the best possible methods of proceeding with the work, a tentative plan had been outlined by the meeting.

It was in effect that the companies should unite in forwarding to the city enough coal to serve the desired purpose. Then the sales agents were to have their men, horses and carts ready, and for each cart a route through the lowliest sections of the city would be mapped out. In this way the business of the retail dealers would not be affected, as their sales are not made in these locations. The coal will be sold by the pile or the basket or bushel at a rate proportionate to the wholesale price to which the cost of freightage has been added. This will insure to the purchaser who now pays 25 cents for a pile of poor coal, or 75 cents for a bushel, good coal at a less cost than he had to pay even before the strike began and when coal was at its normal price.

With this want filled, the diminishing bins of the various hospitals will be replenished and the street railways will be supplied.

CLUB WOMEN ACTIVE.

Marion, Ind., Oct. 1.—The club women of Marion have taken up the work of municipal reform and commenced, in a businesslike manner, to bring about results. It is the purpose of the women to take up the matter of spitting on the sidewalks, the keeping of boys and girls off the streets at night, the closing of the saloons at the hour prescribed by law, the closing of the saloons on Sunday and, in fact, the enforcement of all laws. The Advance club, the members of which are among the most prominent women of the city, held a meeting Monday and prepared a petition, which was filed with the city clerk, requesting that the council appoint two women on the library board. The women say the mothers have a right to be represented on the board, as they read as much, if not more, than the men, and are in a position to judge of the kind and class of books that should be placed at the disposal of their children.

BANTER COSTS HIS LIFE.

Paoli, Ind., Oct. 1.—As the result of a foolhardy banter William W. Key, about forty years old, was run down and killed here yesterday afternoon by the westbound passenger train just after it had left the station. Key and a companion were walking along the track and were supposed to have been drinking and were bantering each other as to which could stay on the track the longest. His companion left the town when Key was killed. Key was ground to pieces and parts of his body were found scattered along the track for sixty feet or more. Senator Fairbanks, who spoke here yesterday afternoon, had just left the train at the station.

TRIED TO KILL HIMSELF.

New York, Oct. 1.—In financial difficulty as a result of the coal strike, Henry C. Scheel, a coal merchant of this city, tried to kill himself yesterday by shooting. The doctors say there is little hope for him. Mr. Scheel is 45 years of age. He lives with his wife and three children in a handsome residence, and generally has been thought to be prosperous. A relative of Mr. Scheel said he had a large sum of money—about $200,000—tied up in litigation, and that his business was his source of revenue. The disturbance in the coal market had affected his business seriously, causing him to become dependent.

Mitchell, Ind., Oct. 1.—Grant Montgomery, aged 35, living in Bone, eight miles east of here, yesterday got his shotgun and walking to the woods shed committed suicide by blowing his head off. He was in comfortable circumstances and was building a new home. He came to town yesterday to get a load of building material and settle all his accounts in full. Returning home he wrote per month. MADE TROUBLE AT HOME.

Last evening Scott Fey, a city employe living at 1110 Erie street, went home in a maudlin condition after having absorbed a fair proportion of his month's pay by drinking beer and whisky. He was drunk and quarrelsome and when his daughter asked him for money for household expenses he refused her and became abusive in his language. Mrs. Fey, who is sick, arose from her bed to quell the disturbance and finally after threatening to put his children out of doors the wagon was sent for and Fey was arrested. This morning he pleaded not guilty to a charge of drunkenness, but several neighbors testified as to his condition and his two daughters, nice looking young girls, reluctantly related the circumstances. Officer Schlaudroff, too, was called to the stand and testified that he had received a number of complaints concerning the man's treatment of his family. He was fined $5 and costs. He owns some property and had no difficulty in staying the docket.

ZANGEL CASE DISMISSED.

The case against Joseph Zangel, accuse by August Kolkhorst with having purloined his bank roll several nights ago, which case was continued from Monday, was then called and was rather abruptly terminated. The original charge against Zangel was public intoxication, but on this charge he was let go on Monday and was held to await developments in the larceny case. The developments came yesterday when Mrs. Zangel found a roll containing $26, which was supposed to belong to Kolkhorst. After the money was found Kolkhorst refused to file an affidavit against Zangel, although he had previously testified that he saw him take the money from his pocket. Without an affidavit nothing could be done and Zangel was therefore discharged and the two men left the court room together.

POLICE NOTES.

A pocketbook was found yesterday containing a sum of money, which the owner can have by calling at room 25, Bank block.

Officers White and Lavanway were called to 207 East DeWald street last night, where a drunken man was trying to force an entrance into the house. Before the officers arrived the man had departed.

IN JUSTICES' COURTS.

A gentleman named William Rosenbaum is getting business about the justice stores. He has filed two affidavits which will be heard at Huey's. One is against Ed Keever, charging assault and battery upon one "John Smith," whose true name is not known, and the other is against John Kennedy for allowing minors to loiter in his saloon. In the Keever case the offense was committed September 15th, and the joke of it is that Keever got the worst of the scrap. The latter case is on trial this afternoon.

HE MAY RECOVER.

Councilman George R. Hench's chances for recovery are better today than they have been since his last serious turn for the worse, and

CHAPTER XVIII.

I TRIED to catch a few hours of sleep that morning, but I had difficulty in losing consciousness. When I did forget myself in slumber for a brief time, unpleasant dreams disturbed me, and I awoke with a start.

It was still early in the morning when I dressed and knocked at my master's door. He was sleeping soundly, and I was fearful lest he had been wounded the night before, and I could not leave the house on the mission I had in view until I had ascertained. I shoved his bedroom door open and entered (he never locked it at night) and asked him if he wished any thing.

"No, William; not yet," he replied in a sleepy voice. "I am very tired this morning and shall not get up until lunch time. Have a good lunch for me, and I will be ready."

His face was pale, but not more so than usual after his night visits to Dr. Squires.

"There is nothing wrong with you this morning, I hope?" I ventured to remark.

"No, William, except that I'm very weary and sleepy. Why do you ask?" He looked inquiringly at me, and I stammered:

"Nothing, only you look pale. I thought maybe you were ill."

"No, I'm not sick—merely tired. Leave me for a few hours."

I closed the door softly, satisfied that he was unharmed.

After giving directions to the servants about an early lunch for my master I left the house and started on a brisk walk toward Mr. Jaimson's house. It was essential that I should have an interview with him before he saw my master or talked to anybody about the previous night's robbery.

He was at breakfast when I was ushered into the library. I insisted upon seeing him alone and immediately, urging the servant to report that my business was very important.

Ten minutes later he appeared in the library. He was a man past middle age, stout of figure and stern of feature. I realized that he was a man not easily turned from any course which he considered just. He bowed stiffly upon entering and said:

"I haven't the pleasure of knowing you, I believe."

I was dressed in a new suit of clothes, and I flattered myself that I would pass for a gentleman among strangers.

"No, sir, but that is not necessary," I said briskly and with the air of one of authority. "I have come to talk with you about last night's robbery."

He started visibly and then said smilingly:

"Ah, I see! You're a detective!"

I made no direct reply to this, but added:

"I think the robbers who have recently been terrorizing the neighborhood will soon be cornered."

He smiled again and said:

"Possibly. I know something about it that may lead to important results."

"I know that," I answered, "and that is why I have come thus early to see you."

"How do you know it?" he responded.

"That isn't the point. I not only know that you know a good deal about it, but I know exactly the information that leads you to think you can expose the robbers."

He looked inquisitively at me and then said frowningly:

"What is it that I know or that you think I know?"

I looked around the room as if I expected somebody might be listening.

"We are alone," he said shortly.

"You recognized the burglar last night before you shot at him," I said impressively.

He gave a startled look at me and stammered:

"Who told you—has my wife told anybody—she was the only one—"

"Never mind that," I replied, waving my hands. "I know. That is sufficient for my present purpose."

"Ah, I see! You're a detective!"

A look of suspicion entered his face, and, probably thinking that I was merely leading him on, he asked:

"If you know so much about it, please tell me who it was I recognized."

"Certainly. I'll whisper it in your ear."

He drew near to him and said impressively:

"It was Charles Goddard whom you recognized in your house last night."

"At whom you shot?"

"At whom you shot?"

"At whom you shot?"

"I don't understand it out."

The man was completely mystified, as I hoped he would be, and I continued with a smile on my own face:

"Now, if you believe that I know what I'm doing we will enter into the details of my mission here this morning."

"Go on, I'm ready for anything."

"First, then, what did you intend to do with this information?"

"I hadn't made up my mind," he said doubtfully, taking a seat in an easy chair near me.

"Well, you either intended to inform the police or accuse Mr. Goddard of the crime to his own face."

"Yes, one or the other, but most likely the latter. Mr. Goddard's father and I were great friends. I should hate to see his name stained with dishonor."

"I thought as much," I replied, "and it is to prevent you from making a mistake that I have called this morning. I know more about this matter than you do."

"Probably. You seem to know all that I do. It's wonderful how you know it. If I swear I never mentioned the matter to any one except my wife, and she's seen nobody but the servants."

"But other eyes may have recognized the man," I said suggestively.

"That's true. I never thought of that. Did some of my servants see him?"

"Don't worry yourself," I interrupted. "The person who saw him will not mention it further. I've fixed all that."

"Well, well; so early in the morning, and you seem to have arranged everything before I could decide upon the first step."

"It's my business," I added. Then continuing I said in a low voice:

"But Mr. Goddard is not the only one concerned in these robberies. There is another and I think a more dangerous neighbor who is implicated in the crimes. But he is too wary to be caught easily. He directs the whole matter, but keeps in the background. He must be caught at least and punished if Mr. Goddard is to suffer. It would be a sin to let him escape and the lesser criminal punished."

"Yes, yes, of course—by all means."

"Then we must work together. I've laid a plan by which I can prove the guilt of this other party. If you will work with me and do as I tell you, we can face him with his guilt in spite of all his skillfulness."

"Anything that you think best. Propose your plan."

"Well, first, I want you to keep the matter strictly quiet and not mention to a living soul that you recognized the burglar last night. Let the detectives work on the case as usual, but warn your wife not to commit herself. Is she brave enough to do this?"

"Yes; Ellen is only too ready to shield Mr. Goddard. I cannot convince her that I was correct in recognizing him."

"So much the better. Let her continue to think so and pretend that you think you might have been mistaken. Then next Tuesday night I shall ask you and another person who is more interested in Mr. Goddard than yourself—Miss Stetson, in short—to accompany me to one of your neighbor's houses. He will be away that night, and I will show you some of the secrets of his little game that he conceals in his house. When he returns late at night, we can confront him with the crime. I shall then leave it with you and Miss Stetson as to what course to pursue. If we arrest the man, Mr. Goddard will have to be implicated; if we fail him from the place with the threat of exposure, we can shield Mr. Goddard and give him another chance. That, in short, is my plan. Will you co-operate with me?"

"With pleasure. It's an admirable arrangement. I believe we ought to give Charles another opportunity. I can hardly find the heart to have him arrested."

"Well, I leave that entirely to you and Miss Stetson."

"And Miss Stetson will agree with me."

I said nothing in reply, but after giving a few more directions I withdrew, promising to call for him on the evening specified to conduct him to the house of his unknown neighbor.

CHAPTER XIX.

WITH the danger of exposure of my master removed, I returned home with a lighter heart. I reached there in time to have the lunch served to him.

He had not noticed my absence, and I congratulated myself upon a shrewd piece of work. I had at last determined to bring matters to a climax.

It was two days after this before I got the opportunity to call upon Miss Stetson. I wanted to redeem her promise made on the day of her horseback accident.

I had learned through an accident that Dr. Squires would be away on Tuesday and that he would not return until late at night. I did not know what his mission was or where he was going. All that concerned me was that he would be absent and the house would be left in charge of his old servant.

It was the knowledge of this that made me anxious to appoint Tuesday for the little experiment I had in mind.

When I reached the Stetson mansion, I was informed that Miss Stetson was engaged. The servants knew me by this time, and while they did not exactly treat me as one of their number they did not accord me all the courtesy due a gentleman. I was told to take a seat until the person who was with Miss Stetson had gone.

My name was not even carried up to her, but I was too much preoccupied with my thoughts to resent this indignity, and I made the most of it by taking a comfortable seat in the waiting room. This was just passed through. When she entered, I stood before her as I said:

"You must pardon me for telling you that I am not a detective."

"What do you mean?"

"I mean that I am not a detective."

"What do you mean?"

"I mean that I am not a detective."

"What do you mean?"

"I mean that I am not a detective."

"What do you mean?"

"I mean that I am not a detective."

For some time I remained seated there busily occupied with my own thoughts, but as time passed I became restless and anxious to make a change.

Not hearing any voices, I rose from my seat and walked quietly into the parlor to look at some of the beautiful pictures hanging on the walls. This liberty, I knew, Miss Stetson would not resent.

As I stepped into the parlor I heard the sound of voices proceeding from the library. I would have retreated to the waiting room if the voice of Dr. Squires had not arrested my attention. I could not resist the temptation to listen to him, for, knowing what he was, I thought anything was fair enough for him, and I played the eavesdropper.

The portieres between the parlor and library were drawn, and through their thick folds I could just catch the words of the two. The first words of the doctor informed me that I had reached the place at a critical moment.

"Miss Belle, you do me injustice to say that I do not like pleasant surroundings and that I am not like other men in my tastes. No man appreciates a home more than I do."

"I did not mean to insinuate that, doctor," Miss Stetson replied. "I merely said that I thought it so strange you should like to live in that old deserted, haunted mansion."

"I do not like to live there. It was not a matter of choice with me. I was poor and had to in order to carry out my experiments."

"But couldn't you find more congenial quarters without going to any more expense?"

"No—that is, none that would suit my purpose."

There was a short pause, then the doctor continued:

"But, Miss Belle, my time in the old haunted mansion is short. I'm going to leave it. My fortune has improved, and I shall seek better quarters."

"Has your discovery proved successful so that you can realize some money on it?" she asked eagerly.

"No, not exactly that," he stammered. "But I have been fortunate in another way. A distant relative has died and left his money to me. It is not much, but enough to keep me in comfort for the balance of my life. It will amount to about $100,000."

"Indeed! I'm so glad to hear it, doctor. Nobody will congratulate you more heartily than I, for I think you deserve it."

"It is kind of you to say it," he said slowly, "but there is one other thing necessary to complete my happiness."

Another pause followed in which I could imagine their exchange of looks.

"I would not mention this, Miss Belle, if I did not have your own word for it that you would never marry Charles," the doctor began again in a labored voice. "But when you told me that you would not marry him I thought that there was no longer any reason why I should curb my own love for you. Miss Belle, I loved you before that, and I love you now. I am no longer poor; I'm not rich, but I'll have a competency enough for both of us. I love you, and your love alone will make me happy."

I trembled more than the doctor to catch the reply.

"Please don't talk to me like that, doctor," she said in a voice that had a piteous ring to it. "It is impossible."

"Why impossible? Nothing is impossible, he answered fiercely. "I've learned to believe that anything can be accomplished if we but will it. Why can you not love me and marry me?"

"You do not understand, doctor. Please do not mention it again. It is very hard for me to say this."

"But will you not give me your reasons?" he continued passionately. "You will not marry Charles?"

"No, never."

"Not even if I cure him of every taint of leprosy?"

"No; I would be afraid to. I would forever think of it—dread it—believe that it would show itself again in our children."

"Then why cannot you love me—marry me?"

There was a slight rustle of her dress as if she had risen to face him. Then she replied slowly, but calmly:

"Because, doctor, I still love Charles. I cannot marry him, but that does not alter my love for him. I still love him and always shall love him. Is not that an answer to your question? Would you ask me to marry you when you knew I loved another man?"

An almost inarticulate sound escaped his lips. He also rose from his seat. I heard him move toward the portieres, and I withdrew rapidly to the waiting room.

There was a murmur of their voices for a few moments, and then the portieres parted and they entered the parlor. I coughed purposely to attract their attention. Miss Stetson moved toward me, and I arose to meet her.

"I fear the maid did not send up my name," I said in reply to her inquiring look. "She said you were engaged and that I could wait here."

"Have you been waiting long?" she asked.

"No; only half a minute," I replied boldly.

"You have a message from Mr. Goddard for me?"

"Yes, a private one, but I can wait."

The doctor walked out of the parlor and gave me a close, scrutinizing glance, but I was absorbed in studying the ceiling and did not meet his eyes. He passed toward the front door and bid his hostess good day. Then I walked into the library to take his place.

CHAPTER XX.

MISS STETSON was considerably agitated and nervous when she finally appeared in the library. Her facial lines were drawn and haggard, indicating the strain she had just passed through. When she entered, I stood before her as I said:

"You must pardon me for telling you that I am not a detective."

"What do you mean?"

"I mean that I am not a detective."

"What do you mean?"

do not come with a message from my master, but with one from myself."

She looked inquiringly at me and waved her hand toward a seat while she dropped wearily into another.

"No; I will stand," I said, "until I find out whether my request will be granted."

"Your request? What is it?"

Her mind was still dwelling upon the interview that had just closed, and the purport of my words had hardly attracted her attention.

"Oh, I see!" she added a moment later, with the faintest indication of a smile on her face. "You have come to ask me to fulfill my promise of the other day."

"Exactly," I said.

"Well, what is it?"

"As I told you then, it will seem very strange to you, and I now repeat

"Then you will not grant my request?"

It. But you will find in the end it will be for your own good."

"Explain yourself," she said, showing more interest. "I do not like so much mystery."

"But, ma'am, it will be a mystery to you for some time yet. I cannot explain matters even now—not until my request is fulfilled."

She looked at me with amusement and then added:

"Well, go on. I've promised, and I'll keep my word."

"My request is this: I want you to accompany me to a certain house on next Tuesday evening at 9 o'clock sharp, where I will explain and show you things that will greatly alter your views of some of your friends."

"Why, sir, that is an absurd proposition," she said, rising, with some dignity.

"Then you will not grant my request?" I said quietly.

"How can I under such circumstances?"

"You promised."

"Yes, anything in reason. But you ask me to go to a strange house with you in the evening, and what assurance have I that—"

"I understand, ma'am; you have no confidence in me. I reminded you at the time you promised to do what I asked of you that it would require confidence and belief in me. I see now that you haven't."

"You are severe. I did not say that," she answered in a less repelling voice.

"No, but you implied as much. But I will not test your faith in me any more. I will give you assurances that my purposes are honorable."

She waited for me to proceed while a flush overspread her face.

"You know Mr. Jaimson?" I asked.

"Yes, very well."

"He is a friend of yours, and I believe you would trust yourself with him after dark."

She nodded affirmatively.

"Well, Mr. Jaimson is in my secret, and he will accompany us. Under those circumstances will you go with me next Tuesday evening?"

"Why, of course. It must be all right if Mr. Jaimson approves of it."

"He does. He will call here before I do on that evening, and the three of us will go together."

"But where do we go?" she asked inquisitively.

"I cannot tell you now. You will know that night."

"How mysterious you seem! I do not understand it at all."

"You will in time. But one other request. Will you promise to keep this matter absolutely secret? Do not even tell Mr. Goddard or Dr. Squires. If you do, everything will be spoiled, and, mark my word, you will repent of it if you do."

"I will promise," she answered.

"And keep your promise better than you did the other one," I could not refrain from saying, for her lack of trust in me had piqued me a little.

"Yes, I will redeem my promise this time without question."

"Thank you. Then on Tuesday at a quarter to 9 Mr. Jaimson will call for you, and you will be ready to accompany him. I will call for both of you at 9 o'clock. I will guarantee that you will return to your home without hurt or injury."

I hastily withdrew then. She accompanied me to the door. She was watching me peculiarly, trying to decide, I imagine, whether I was a crank or a sane man and whether she had made a mistake or not in promising to accompany me.

ABOUT STAGE FOLK.

W. H. MacDonald's Strange Dressing Room Visitor—Richard Obee Tells a Story.

Actors have many strange experiences, and W. H. MacDonald, now playing the part of Little John in the Bostonians' production of "Robin Hood" at the Academy of Music, thinks he has had one of the strangest in the list. The incident was of recent occurrence, and for a few moments he thought he surely must be either insane or in a dream.

Mr. MacDonald was in his dressing room shortly before 8 o'clock, making up for his part, when suddenly he looked up and saw in his mirror a horse's head, apparently looking over his shoulder.

For a moment he was dumfounded. Was there in the old academy a horse ghost or was he on the verge of madness? He closed his eyes and looked again. Yes, there was still in the mirror a horse's head, its gaze directed appealingly to him.

With an effort Mr. MacDonald drew himself together and started to run out. As he turned he collided with a horse. Then he saw that it was a real live horse which had somehow made its way to his dressing room.

He called, and a doorkeeper and two policemen came to the door. They explained the presence of the horse. They said that they had seen the horse galloping down Fourteenth street and, thinking it was astray, had started after it, when it disappeared in the side entrance of the academy. Following it, they saw it trot across the stage toward Mr. MacDonald's door.

The doorkeeper remembered the horse as one belonging to a nearby liveryman that had been used last spring in the "Uncle Tom's Cabin" performance. One of the members of the company, who formerly occupied Mr. MacDonald's room, had had a habit of feeding it sugar daily at this door.

The horse had in some way got loose and returned for its sugar.

Richard Obee is acting manager of Jules Murray's various amusement enterprises, which include the companies of Lewis Morrison, Rose Coghlan, Paul Gilmore and Joseph Arthur's scenic melodrama "Lost River." In his office the other day there was a discussion over the peculiar names of some of the theatrical representatives, and Obee was rallied by the others on the singularity of his, one of the number remarking that every time he heard it he could scarcely help repeating the old hymn refrain, "Oh, be joyful!"

Thereupon Obee proceeded to tell of a curious juxtaposition of names on the door plates of his neighborhood in the town where he used to live. So unique was this succession of names that unbelieving strangers hearing of it would come to the neighborhood to prove the truth of what they had heard.

The brass plate on his father's door bore the name "Obee." On that of the next door neighbor, who was a jeweler in the town, was engraved "A. Goodman." Following these were the doorplates of a naval captain named "Hadaway" and an attorney who bore the peculiar name of "O. F. Fyten."

Just beyond this row of residences was a school with an attendance of a thousand noisy pupils. The strange sequence of names one day attracted the attention of one of them, who promptly pointed it out to another boy, who called it out in a loud voice. This was immediately taken up by the others until "Obee, a Goodman, had a way of fightin'" finally became the school yell of the lusty lugged boys of the neighborhood, who continued it for some years.

$45,000,000. A treasury statement just issued shows that the revenue for the first half of the year has given an increase of $36,500,000.

PRISON SUNDAY.

Considerable effort is being put forth by the board of state charities and the various boards of county charities to secure a general observance of Prison Sunday, October 26th.
The observance of this day in the past has been the means of enlightening public sentiment in regard to the important subjects of prison reform, the treatment of criminals and discharged prisoners, the prevention of crime and the proper care of dependent and neglected children.
Those who are familiar with the conditions existing in nearly every county in the state will realize that these questions merit the deepest thought. While much good has resulted from the observance of Prison
Sunday in the past, much yet remains to be done and the board of state charities urgently requests ministers of all denominations to assist by preaching a sermon on the prevention of crime and related subjects October 26th. Several of the district and state organizations have adopted resolutions requesting their ministers to observe the day.

On application, the board will gladly furnish literature which will be helpful in the preparation of appropriate discourses. Address Room 52, State House, Indianapolis.

Elwood, Ind., Oct. 1.—Nicholas evening. He was crossing the track carrying a sheet of glass and did not see the engine approaching. Both legs were severed near the thighs and death resulted a few minutes later. Rogers has a divorced wife living in the east, but no relatives in this part of the country.

PRESIDENT RESTED WELL.

HELD ENTHUSIASTIC MEETING.

The local branch of the Irish National association held an enthusiastic meeting in Library hall last evening and discussed the Irish land question, which is causing so much friction between the Irish people and the British government. A number of short and spirited addresses were delivered and a purse of $75 was raised, which will be forwarded to Ireland to help the cause along. William Kaough was chairman of last evening's meeting.

WOMAN BEATEN BY WOMAN.

Valparaiso, Ind., Oct. 1.—Mrs.

sponded with a club, inflicting injuries which may prove fatal. She was ar-

"When poverty comes in at the door love flies out of the window."
Poverty is not the only enemy of wedded love. Many a home has been made loveless by disease which ruined the wife's health, undermined her strength and robbed her of physical attractiveness. Whatever makes for woman's health makes for home happiness. Thousands of women cured by Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription testify to this.

What Makes Women Weak?

The chief contributing cause to woman's weakness and ill-health is her ignorance of the important truth that a woman's general health depends upon the local womanly health. If women knew and understood this fact they would not attempt the impossible feat of developing the general health while ignoring unhealthy local conditions. Money is wasted in "doctoring" for headache, backache, nervousness, sleeplessness and other ills familiar to women, if the treatment of these diseases does not cure the primary disturbing cause—disease of the delicate womanly organs. It is of course possible that there may be general ill-health in spite of sound local health. But it is absolutely impossible that the general health can be good when there are disagreeable and unhealthy drains, inflammation, ulceration or female weakness. The first step to sound health is to cure these diseases, and the quickest and surest cure of womanly diseases is accomplished by the use of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription.

"Words can't express how grateful I am for your kind advice and good medicines," writes Mrs. Ada Brooks, of Kirbyville, Taney Co., Missouri. "I suffered for four years with what four physicians pronounced ulceration and prolapse of the uterus; also inflammation of bladder and urethra. My case was chronic and complicated. When my first child was born (five years ago) I was in a very bad condition. My health had been very poor for some time when I was taken down bed-fast. I was in a critical condition for five months. Had several good physicians, but kept getting worse. Could not bear to be moved from my bed. Had been confined to my bed five months when I wrote to you.
I received your reply very soon, and then I dismissed my physicians and began taking Dr. Pierce's medicines. I took eight bottles of his 'Favorite Prescription' and 'Golden Medical Discovery,' and I began to get better at once. In two months I could sit up in a chair, and kept getting better. In four months could do all my housework, including washing and sewing. I think your medicines saved me from the grave."

DANGEROUS IGNORANCE.

Next to the danger of a woman's ignorance of her own needs is the danger of ignorance in the treatment of her diseases. That such ignorance abounds is shown by the testimonials published by permission, and often by request of grateful women who wish other sufferers to know the way to health.
The result of this ignorance is that women suffer for years, going from one practitioner to another, trying various medicines, snatching vainly at every straw in their desperate desire for help and healing.
It is the cure of such women, suffering from diseases of long standing—diseases which have baffled all physicians and defied all treatments—which has placed Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription in the very front of all put-up medicines designed for the cure

TALKS WITH QUAY

PRESIDENT AND SENATOR DISCUSS COAL STRIKE.

SCOPE OF TALK A SECRET

ALL THOSE INVITED TO CONFERENCE EXPECTED.

CASSATT VISITS MORGAN

PRESIDENT MITCHELL PREPARES TO GO.

Washington, Oct. 2.—"It is expected that all the men to whom invitations were sent yesterday will be present at the conference tomorrow. Mr. Baer and Mr. Mitchell have accepted."

This was the only statement that could be obtained at the white house today regarding the conference which will be held tomorrow on the coal situation.

Senator Quay, of Pennsylvania, was in conference with the president for an hour today and it is understood that he came here at the request of the president to discuss the strike situation. The president and senator were not interrupted, and two cabinet officers who called did not see the president while the conference was in progress.

Senator Quay, after he left the president, would not discuss the situation or express an opinion as to the probable effect of the coming conference.

During the day Secretary Root, Attorney General Knox and Secretary Shaw were in conference with the president. Secretary Wilson was at the white house for a short time, but the three first remained with the president for nearly an hour. It is understood that the president discussed the subject of the conference tomorrow, the cabinet officers making a number of suggestions as to what the president should say to those who will participate in it.

Other matters outside of the coal strike also occupied the attention of the members of the cabinet. There has been no regular meeting of the cabinet for some time and considerable department business awaits the action of the president.

PRESIDENTS START TODAY.

New York, Oct. 2.—The railroad presidents who received President Roosevelt's invitation to meet him tomorrow in Washington and discuss the coal strike situation are to leave the city this afternoon. They will go together.

President Cassatt, of the Pennsylvania railroad, who received a special invitation from President Roosevelt to attend tomorrow's coal conference, was a visitor at J. P. Morgan's office today. "I haven't yet decided to accept the president's invitation," said Mr. Cassatt, "but I expect to make up my mind later in the day."

Mr. Morgan and his representatives talked with some of the leading operators today. It is understood that certain memoranda have been prepared and will be submitted to the president at tomorrow's conference.

Mayor Low today sent another telegram to Mayor Maybury, of Detroit, regarding the proposed conference there on Oct. 9. The mayor decided to take no action at present, awaiting the outcome of the action of the president at tomorrow's conference with the railroad presidents and President Mitchell. The telegram contains this statement:

"If the president's good offices are ineffective it is time to find out whether there is any law in the land capable of dealing with a situation that threatens as much harm to the country as a public enemy could inflict."

MITCHELL STARTS TODAY.

Wilkesbarre, Pa., Oct. 2.—President Mitchell was busy this morning getting ready for his trip to Washington. He will leave here over the Lehigh Valley railroad for Philadelphia at 5:30 this afternoon. From the latter city he will go direct to the national capital. All interests here are now of the opinion that the conference to be held at the white house will bring about a settlement of the strike.

Angry mobs gathered in the vicinity of the Sterling and North American washeries at Plymouth this morning. At first the sheriff tried to disperse the crowds, but several of his deputies were in danger of their lives. Colonel Dougherty, of the Ninth regiment, was then called mation issued by the sheriff and disperse. The prisoners were brought to this city and given a hearing. They were held in jail for court.

CROWD THREW ROCKS.

Mt. Carmel, Pa., Oct. 2.—Owing to a crowd of unknown men hurling rocks at the deputies at Righter's colliery last night a company of soldiers was posted at that mine today while another company was taken to Shamokin on a special train to prevent pickets from stopping non-unionists from going to work at the Reading and other collieries. Two special trains were placed at Reading and Northern Central railroad stations last night so that troops can be rushed to any colliery in Northumberland county in case mobs try to raid the mines.

CLAIM BIG SHIPMENTS.

Reading, Pa., Oct. 2.—Today the Reading Railway company claims to have brought down 2,800 tons of coal and yesterday 5,000. Reading officials claim that shipments since last Sunday amount to 10,000 tons.

ELECTRIC EQUIPMENT NEXT

LIMA LINE OWNERS ARE GETTING ESTIMATES.

General Electric Representative Here to Submit Figures and See Other Buyers.

Officers of the Fort Wayne, Van Wert and Lima Traction company, with the work of construction of their electrical line eastward from Fort Wayne well under way, have turned their attention to the purchase of a complete electric equipment for the system.

Plans were prepared some time ago, and today James Lyman, of Chicago, a representative of the General Electric company, is in the city to talk over the situation and submit some figures for the big contract. This portion of the work mounts up into many thousands of dollars, and there is the liveliest sort of competition among the big concerns for the contract. Mr. Lyman was in conference with officials of the company today.

In all probability so much of the machinery as can be manufactured by the Fort Wayne Electric works will be used, but there is much of a character not built here, as the equipment is vastly different from that used in lighting plants or factories where electricity is used as motive power. It is stated that the location of the power station has not yet been determined upon.

RUDELPH BENZ KILLED AT AKRON YESTERDAY.

Young Man Had Been Employed as a Brakeman—Burial at Coesse Tomorrow.

Rudolph Benz, nineteen years of age, who has been employed as a brakeman on the Cleveland, Akron and Columbus railroad, met his death in a railroad accident at Akron, Ohio, yesterday.

The young man was a son of Henry Benz, of Maples, this county, and resided in the eastern part of the county until a few months ago, when he left for Ohio to take up railroad work. News of the man's death reached the city today, but no particulars were given.

It is learned that the remains will arrive at Maples late this afternoon. Tomorrow the interment will occur at Coesse, Whitley county.

WILL HAVE A BANQUET.

Howard council No. 246, Royal Africanum, will have a banquet tomorrow evening at the close of the regular meeting. This feast is the result of a contest between two teams for applicants for membership, the losing side to bear the expense. The captains were Charles Kronmiller and Peter Henkenius. The former secured sixteen new members and the latter ten.

HAD CASH GALORE

ALLEGED BRIBER SNYDER ON TRIAL IN ST. LOUIS.

A COUNCILMAN TESTIFIES

DELEGATE UPHOFF SAYS HE WAS OFFERED $100,000.

WAS BULL IN VOTE MARKET

UPHOFF TELLS HOW HE WAS APPROACHED BY BRIBER.

St. Louis, Oct. 2.—When Judge Ryan's court met today the trial of Robert M. Snyder, banker and promoter, on the charge of bribery in connection with the passage of the Central Traction bill, was resumed. Frederick G. Uphoff, who was a member of the city council in April, 1898, was put on the stand by the state. It is expected to prove that money was paid to Uphoff by the defendant to secure his vote for the Central Traction bill.

In answer to questions put by Circuit Attorney Folk, Uphoff testified that while a member of the city council in 1898, when the North and South Traction bills were pending Robert M. Snyder called on him at his residence, having been taken there by Louis Diekmann by appointment. Uphoff continued:

"After talking socially about half an hour, Snyder said he lived in New York, and that he was a millionaire, and that he was connected with a bank in Kansas City. He was talking about how much money he had. He said he made a part of it in the real estate boom in Kansas City."

"Then he again spoke of the Central Traction bill. I told him I did not want to talk about the matter. He said we were both Masons, and we could discuss it the same as lodge matters. He said I ought to favor him with his bill."

"I told him I had been offered $50,000 for my vote. I will get that amount and send it by Diekmann," said Snyder to me.

"Now, I never said then nor have I ever said that I would vote for the measure."

Witness then told of a package brought to his house the following day by Diekmann, and his second meeting with Snyder. At that meeting Snyder said:

"Uphoff, if you don't vote for that bill I am a ruined man."

"I told Snyder," continued the witness, "that he should come to my house and get that package back, that I did not want it."

"Did he do as you requested?" said the witness, "and opened the package, which contained currency, 25 checks of $1,000 denomination and the balance in securities and papers. Snyder took the contents and departed."

HAD CASH GALORE.

Uphoff said he next saw Snyder at the Planters' hotel. At this meeting Snyder talked of the Central traction bill and also of a gas bill. Uphoff said Snyder told witness that if he would introduce this gas bill as a "rider" to the Central traction bill and work for its passage as well as vote for the Central traction bill, he would give witness $100,000.

"He said he would give me $60,000 next day," Uphoff explained; "$15,000 when the gas bill was introduced and $25,000 when the gas bill was passed."

"Then Snyder took up two handfuls of bills," witness states, "and said, 'Uphoff, here is $25,000 more. Diekmann is on the floor of the council with $10,000 more. I would have had $60,000 for you, but Charlie Carroll got $15,000 from me today.'"

Uphoff said he refused to take any of the money then offered him by the promoter. Uphoff said that at that time he made the statement that "If I could see my way clear to vote for it, I would do so."

Witness said he was not allowed to say whether he voted for the bill. Here witness told of a meeting arranged by Mepharm and Diekmann, between Snyder and himself.

CONTEST FOR PETRIFIED MAN.

Evansville, Ind., Oct. 2.—Louis Lamb, a laborer, claims ownership of the petrified body of a man found in the river here Tuesday, and has gone into court to wrest the supposed prize from Captain Eigenmann, who possesses it. Each sees a big profit in the petrified form and a bitter legal fight is promised. Arguments in Lamb's replevin suit occupied much time in court yesterday, but no depetrification say there is no doubt about the genuineness of the body.

CAUSE OF TEMPERANCE.

New York, Oct. 2.—The members of the board of government of the Catholic Total Abstinence Union of America, at a meeting here, mapped out a campaign in the interests of temperance. It was agreed to cut up the national union into six districts, comprising almost every state in the union, with an executive member at the head of each section. An appeal will be made to hierarchy and clergy of the United States in behalf of total abstinence. Lecture bureaus will be established and a flow body, to be known as the national committee, will be selected from the most prominent temperance workers of the church.

TO LEAVE SUPERIOR COURT

CLERK NICODEMUS RESIGNS HIS POSITION.

After Many Years of Efficient Service He Quits to Enter Fraternal Insurance Line.

Ed Nicodemus, a deputy county clerk and docket clerk of the superior court, today noon tendered his resignation to County Clerk Belot, to take effect on Saturday of this week. The resignation was accepted. After eight years of continuous service in the clerk's office Mr. Nicodemus retires to engage in other pursuits and has accepted a lucrative position with a fraternal insurance company in a traveling capacity, but will continue to make Fort Wayne his headquarters and home.

Mr. Nicodemus first entered the clerk's office under the regime of ex-County Clerk Metzger, where he remained for four years. When Clerk Belot succeeded to the office he was retained and for over two years has been the superior court clerk. In the last county nominating campaign he was a candidate for the nomination for clerk against the successful candidate. Mr. Johnson, the democratic nominee, whose election is practically assured, will assume the duties of his office in December of the current year, when changes may be made. Anticipating this fact, Mr. Nicodemus has taken time by the forelock and has secured a profitable position so as not to be a victim of possible untoward events. Mr. Nicodemus has made an efficient clerk, discharging the duties of his position with marked ability and his friends, of which he has many, will always hope to hear of his success in whatever capacity he may be engaged.

SETS SCHOOL HOUSE ON FIRE.

Marion, Ind., Oct. 2.—James Marri-man, 15 years of age, set a public school building on fire yesterday because he did not wish to attend school. The building contained over 400 pupils, but the fire drill practiced by the children prevented a panic and they escaped without injury. The fire was in a cloakroom, the contents of which were destroyed. The teachers extinguished the flames before they could spread to other parts of the building, but Miss World, one of the teachers, was painfully burned. Superintendent Adams captured the boy, who acknowledged having fired the building. Marri-man was allowed to go home. When an officer went there to arrest him the boy had left the town.

STRIKERS CUT THE WIRES.

New Orleans, La., Oct. 2.—Beyond the discovery that a large number of wires had been cut in the upper part of the city during the night, there were no early morning developments in the street car strike. There was, however, a feeling that the negotiations now going on between the company and the employees would lead to some plan of arbitration during the day. The public continues to be greatly inconvenienced by the strike, but fine weather is lessening somewhat their hardships. No attempt to run cars or carry passengers had been made by the company up to 10 o'clock this morning.

L. W. SHEAR GOES TO PRISON.

Muskegon, Mich., Oct. 2.—Luther W. Shear, formerly a prominent churchman and insurance agent, who pleaded guilty to the charge of forgery, approximating $35,000, was sentenced yesterday to twelve years at the state prison at Jackson. Shear disappeared from Muskegon when an

NATIONAL LEAGUE OF REPUBLICAN CLUBS MEET.

CONVENTION IN CHICAGO

DELEGATES PRESENT FROM THE VARIOUS STATES.

GREETING FROM ROOSEVELT

LEAGUE RESPONDS WITH VERY CORDIAL SENTIMENT.

Chicago, Oct. 2.—The annual convention of the National Republican league was called to order in the First Regiment armory here today with about 400 delegates present representing the auxiliary leagues of the various states. This number is less than half the attendance which had been expected before the illness of President Roosevelt, whose presence had been assured. The program calls for four business sessions today and tomorrow and mass meetings tonight and tomorrow night, the chief speaker for tonight being Senator Dolliver, of Iowa, and Senator Beveridge, of Indiana, for the meeting tomorrow evening. General Grosvenor, of Ohio, will share the honors with the Indiana senator at the concluding meeting.

Before the convention opened it was commonly admitted that the nomination of President Roosevelt in 1904 would be endorsed. In fact, it was only about this matter that certain predictions were made. Whether the Iowa delegation would seek to have its ideas on tariff revision endorsed; whether the league has the constitutional right to concern itself with state platforms, and the matter of a successor to the retiring president, Isaac Miller Hamilton, were questions over which the delegates expected debate when Mr. Hamilton rapped for order.

Among the candidates for the league presidency were mentioned J. H. Moore, of Pennsylvania; Sid B. Redding, of Little Rock, Ark.; Richard Woods, of Sioux Falls, S. D.; and Shirley E. Johnson, of Kentucky. The features of the morning's session after the address of welcome by Roy O. West, of the state central committee, was the address of President Hamilton.

THE PRESIDENT'S ADDRESS

Mr. Hamilton said in part: "Composed as our organization is of the younger men of our party, in large part of business and professional men, who are not officeholders, it exerts a very great deal of influence in circles not usually reached by the influence of the average politician. Our organization is now entirely out of debt, all of the expenses of the current administration have been paid in full and at the close of the present convention there will remain in the hands of the treasurer a substantial nest egg for the incoming administration."

"These results have not been accomplished without great effort, and your officers have received efficient assistance in this behalf from many of our most efficient party workers, and particularly from ex-President George Stone, of California, from the national republican committee, the congressional republican committee."

"My experience leads me to believe that our secretary should not be a salaried officer, that he should be a man selected because of his ability and standing rather than one who is ambitious to receive compensation for his services. I think our executive committee should empower our president to appoint such assistant secretaries as in his judgment are necessary, and that the executive committee should authorize the opening of permanent headquarters at the home of the president of the organization. There is every reason why the influence of the league should increase. There are many men willing and anxious to be identified with the best interests of the republican party, men who are willing and anxious to keep closely in touch with the teaching of our party. Many of them have no present desire to hold office, but they like to attend the meetings of our committees, our state and national conventions, to become personally acquainted with our public men, the men who are responsible for framing the policies of our party and government, and to take home to their respective localities the enthusiasm and knowledge which they acquire by attending these various meetings. The league's mission is just beginning in this respect to be thoroughly understood and appreciated, and I predict that its influhis administration of the league affairs.

GREETING FROM ROOSEVELT. The following message received from President Roosevelt, was read by Secretary Weeks:

"White House, Washington, D. C., Oct. 2, 1902.—Isaac Miller Hamilton, President National Republican League, Chicago: At the opening of this national convention please present to those present my cordial greetings and hearty best wishes for a successful session. (Signed.) Theodore Roosevelt."

The president's name was cheered heartily. The following was sent by President Hamilton in response:

"Chicago, Oct. 2, 1902.—Hon. Theo. Roosevelt, Washington, D. C.: By instruction of the National Republican League, assembled in its 13th convention, I thank you profoundly for your greetings and extend to you the most cordial assurances of loyal support and heartfelt wishes for your early return to your accustomed strength and activity. (Signed.) Isaac Miller Hamilton, Pres."

A committee on credentials headed by W. W. Fleitz, was then appointed. A resolution providing that resolutions be referred to the resolutions committee without reading was passed, after which a recess of five minutes was taken.

PLAN A BIG SWITCH SYSTEM

FOR THE NEW FORT WAYNE FACTORY ADDITION.

Railroad Men Confering Today With Manufacturers and Discuss the Improvement.

The Pennsylvania and the Lake Erie and Western railroad companies, whose properties adjoin the new factory addition just platted by the Commercial Land company, are arranging to construct an extensive system of switches and side tracks to reach the various manufacturing industries which are locating in the new territory.

Today E. L. Northrop, traveling freight agent of the Lake Erie and Western, arrived from Indianapolis, and in company with Fred M. Ghesliam, of the Pennsylvania's engineering department, met officials of the Fort Wayne Steel Foundry company and the Knott-VanArman company to learn precisely the needs of the two companies. Each of the railroad companies have prepared plans for the improvement and it is expected that the system will be so arranged as to permit the joint use of the tracks by the two companies.

Several thousands of dollars are to be expended in affording manufacturers who locate in the new tract every possible facility both for receiving freight and fuel and for shipping the finished products of the works.

WOULD HAVE BEEN HIS BRIDE

NO WORD FROM RELATIVES OF WALTER CULVER.

Mrs. Clawson, His Betrothed, Reached the City Today to Attend Funeral.

The remains of Walter Culver, who died several days ago at St. Joseph hospital from paralysis, are yet at the Klahn & Melching undertaking rooms awaiting the arrival of relatives, but no word has yet come from any of the dead man's family.

When the death was announced, it was given out that Mrs. Clawson, sister, resided at Geneva. Mrs. Clawson reached the city today, but it develops that instead of being a sister, Mrs. Clawson was betrothed to Culver, and they were only awaiting his restoration to health before the marriage should occur.

Culver was a veterinary surgeon, and his illness dated from his residence in Warren, when he suffered inoculation from a horse he was treating and became very ill from erysipelas. The wedding was postponed on this account and the patient was removed to this city for treatment. When only partially recovered Mr. Culver was prostrated by an attack of paralysis, and his death removed the last possibility of claiming his bride. Mrs. Clawson will remain until Culver's brother in Michigan can be communicated with.

SLAUGHTER AT GUINEA

MANY KILLED IN INTER-TRIBAL FIGHTS.

Tugeria Headhunters Attack the Native Villages and Carry Off Many Heads.

Victoria, B. C., Oct. 1.—Shortly before the steamer Moara left Sydney official dispatches arrived from New Guinea telling of inter-tribal fights and massacres. The Tugeria headhunters had attacked the Sanana villages and killed a large number and carried off many heads. The Sanana afterwards attacked the Tugeria.

Sir F. F. Winter, administrator of New Guinea, wires the governor general of Australia: "Proceeding down the Mowhead after their raid on the Sanana villages, the Tugeria were encountered by a large hunting party of our natives, amongst whom were some Sanana men. This party at once attacked the Tugeria, killed several of them and forced them to abandon their canoes and take to flight in the bush. On my arrival here from Australia I at once empowered J. I. Carr to communicate direct with the Dutch authorities at Macrae respecting the Tugeria and our police and Dutch soldiers will form a punitive expedition."

With regard to alleged ruthless massacres by the Tugeria, Sir Francis Winter writes: "Since my arrival in this possession more natives have been ruthlessly massacred by other natives within a radius of twenty miles from the house in which I am now writing than have during such period been killed in this possession by the Tugeria. A village on the Lezoki river, distant not more than six hours walk from this house, was nearly exterminated."

INSPECTOR LEAVES CITY.

The police and health departments are somewhat disappointed at the result of the visit of Inspector Clark, of the immigration department, who came here to investigate the case of a Syrian named Alick, who was held as a suspected violator of the immigration laws. Inspector Clark not only failed to identify the man, but he likewise failed to keep his appointments with the local officers who had agreed to accompany him on a visit to the Syrian colony here. Instead, he put in his time with Hugh Keegan, attorney for the Syrian contingent. The Syrian vote is supposed to be held in the hollow of the republican hand and in this county and township it cuts considerable figure. With an election approaching it might look as bad policy for a republican administration to discourage Syrian voters by too drastic enforcement of immigration laws, which may account for the inspector's neglect to improve his opportunities. Anyway, he has gone and the infected Syrian still remain.

AN ORIENTAL CUSTOM.

A South Sea islander said of his race: "As soon as we open our mouths a lie is born." The Chinese acknowledge without shame the same of themselves. It may be true among western nations that "the affairs of life hinge upon confidence," but in the east, and especially in China, they hinge upon suspicion. There are few Chinese who attach any importance to keeping an honest man who, being accused of having broken his promise, replied that it was of no consequence, as he could fuse a request in an abrupt manner; make another just as good. The Chinese say that one should never refuse a request in an abrupt manner; on the contrary, he should grant it in form, although with no intention to do so in substance. "Put him off till tomorrow and then until another tomorrow. Thus you comfort his heart," they say.—Chicago News.

AID FOR NURSE LEAGUE.

A work that is deserving special attention from the charitable people of the city is that of the visiting nurse, who ministers to the needs of the sick not able to secure the services of a skilled or trained nurse. At present the funds are exhausted and it seems not probable that the people who know the good being done will let the work be discontinued from this cause. Cash contributions will be thankfully received and should be sent at once to Mrs. J. B. Fellens, president of the Visiting Nurse League.

HOLD-UP WAS A HOAX.

New York, Oct. 1.—According to a Times dispatch from Goshen, N. Y., the hold-up of the coach "Pioneer," between Goshen and Warwick, by three masked men, was a hoax perpetrated by young society men, from Warwick. The coach was in the hands of the police.

Rheumatism

The liniment bottle and fannel strip are familiar objects in nearly every household. They are the weapons that have been used for generations to fight old Rheumatism, and are about as effective in the battle with this giant disease as the blunderbuss of our forefathers would be in modern warfare.

Rheumatism is caused by an acid, sour condition of the blood. It is filled with acid, irritating matter that settles in the joints, muscles and nerves, and liniments and oils no nothing else applied externally can dislodge these gritty, corroding particles. They were deposited there by the blood and can be rescued only through the blood. Rubbing with liniments sometimes relieve temporarily the aches and pains, but these are only symptoms which are liable to return with every change of the weather; the real disease lies deeper, the blood and system are infected. Rheumatism cannot be radically and permanently cured until the blood has been purified, and no remedy does this so thoroughly and promptly as S. S. S. It neutralizes the acids and sends a stream of rich, strong blood to the affected parts, which dissolves and washes out all foreign materials, and the sufferer obtains happiness from the torturing pains. S. S. S. contains no poison or other mineral, but is a perfect vegetable blood purifier, and most reliable of all medicines. Our physicians will advise, without charge, what to write about their S. S. S. and we will send free our special literature.

THE STRATTON MILLIONS

EXECUTORS WIN IN THE PRELIMINARY FIGHT.

Case Taken Out of County Court on Writ of Certiorari—Son is Ready to Compromise.

Colorado Springs, Col., Oct. 1.—An annoying delay occurred yesterday in the fight over the Stratton millions. Judge Orr, of the county court, cited the executors to appear before him at 9 o'clock and show cause why they would not turn over the estate to the three administrators appointed by him several days ago. At the stipulated hour none of the executors appeared, but in their stead N. S. Gandy, junior counsel, came into court for the executors and Karl G. Schuyler for the administrators. Judge Orr ordered a continuance of the case until 2 o'clock.

I. Harry Stratton announced yesterday afternoon that he had been approached by one of the executors appointed by his father in the will with a proposition to compromise the contest case, and answered that he would withdraw his suit upon a settlement of $1,000,000. Attorneys for the executors, administrators and the son were in conference nearly all day, and the announcement of young Stratton is believed to be the conclusion that has been arrived at.

Proceedings against the executors have been postponed. At 2 o'clock, the time appointed for the executors to come before Judge Orr, none of them had appeared, nor for an hour thereafter. Later in the day the attorneys for the administrators filed a report to the sensational answer of the executors charging conspiracy on the part of the administrators. Messrs. Blackmer, Hamlin and Grimes vigorously deny the charges of "poisoning the estate."

At 3 o'clock the entire matter was taken out of the county court and transferred to the district court on a writ of certiorari issued by Judge Cunningham, of the district court. This writ was secured by the executors and was agreed to by stipulation by the administrators. Judge Orr was notified at 3 o'clock of the action by Attorney Gandy, junior counsel for the executors. The hearing of the order is that the action of the court is set aside, that the case now stands just as it did before the appointment of administrators by Judge Orr, and further, that the appointment of administrators is practically annulled.

MAYOR ON COAL SITUATION

GIVES HIS VIEWS TO A NEW YORK NEWSPAPER.

PEOPLE ARE READY TO REBEL

AGAINST RULE OF TRUSTS ON COAL AND MEATS.

(Special to The Sentinel.)

New York, Oct. 1.—Last evening the New York Journal and American telegraphed a request to the mayors of many American cities, asking for a statement of the local coal situation and requesting an opinion upon the probable outcome of the conference to be held next week in Detroit with the idea of aiding in the settlement of the big strike in the anthracite regions of Pennsylvania and West Virginia.

The reply of Mayor Henry C. Berghoff, of Fort Wayne, was as follows: "The public in general demands arbitration of the coal strike, and with the hope of bringing this about we have acted upon the suggestion of Mayor Maybury and appointed a committee of ten citizens to attend the convention at Detroit.

"The coal situation here is very critical. No soft coal contracts of any kind are offered, and not a ton of anthracite coal can be purchased. The city depends entirely upon natural gas for domestic purposes and all factories must use coal during the cold season. To make matters worse, the gas pressure is now lower than it has ever been heretofore and gas may not supply the domestic demands. If this happens thousands of families will be without fuel, our wood supply being nearly exhausted.

"Public feeling is intense against the mine owners, and if the strike is not settled immediately there will not only be a public calamity, but also a political landslide. People begin to realize what it means to be at the mercy of the trusts and to pay trust prices for all commodities, especially for coal and meat, and they are ready to revolt.

"Henry C. Berghoff, Mayor."

WAS KILLED IN COLORADO

WILL KAVANAUGH MEETS TRAGIC END IN WEST.

Was Well Known as a Railroad Man

—Walter Culver Dies at Hospital—Mortuary Matters.

William H. Kavanaugh, formerly a well known Fort Wayne railroad man, met a tragic death Tuesday at Salida, Colo., and while no particulars are at hand, it is presumed his death resulted from a railroad accident. The information came last evening in a telegram to Secretary Al C. Alter, of the Fort Wayne lodge of Elks, as follows:

"Salida, Colo., Sept. 30.—Secretary Elks' lodge, Fort Wayne, Ind.: Brother William Kavanaugh, member your lodge, killed today. Particulars later. Wire instructions, if any.

"Wm. C. Alexander."

Instructions have been sent to have the remains forwarded to Fort Wayne and the interment will occur at Lindenwood. Mr. Kavanaugh was a son of Thomas Kavanaugh, residing at 1118 Cass street. During the latter part of his residence in Fort Wayne he was employed as a fireman on the Nickel Plate railroad, and early last spring went west to accept a position on the Denver and Rio Grande railroad. Shortly before going west he was made a member of the order of Elks, forming one of the large class initiated early last spring. He was also a member of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen in this city.

In addition to the father, Mr. Kavanaugh leaves a brother, Walter Kavanaugh, a driver for the Great West Grocery, and a sister, Mrs. John Sweeney, of Butte, Mont. The deceased would have been thirty-five years of age in November. The remains are expected to arrive in the city the latter part of the week.

CULVER.

Walter Culver, who had been for many years a patient at St. Joseph hospital and practically helpless from paralysis, died at that institution Tuesday afternoon at the age of fifty years. Mr. Culver entered the hospital when first stricken with the disease in 1891, was able to leave in a short time, but soon became helpless and in 1892 returned. He spent the remainder of his life there. Little is known of his history. He leaves a brother and a sister—Mr. Culver, of Allegan, Mich., and Mrs. Elizabeth Chasnow, of Geneva.

The remains were removed to the undertaking rooms of Klein &

Welching to await instructions from relatives.

BERGHOFF.

Julia Elbertina Berghoff, infant daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gustave Berghoff, died at 10:30 o'clock this morning at the family home, 1419 East Washington street. The little one was 4 months old and death was due to heart disease.

Funeral services will be held Friday morning at 8:30 from the rest-Mary's Catholic church. Services and burial private.

COLER IS TO LEAD

delegates were entitled to seats by reason of "wholesale corruption pertaining to the primary election in said district whereby it cannot be determined what delegates were legally elected."

The majority report was sustained, the counties voting in whole or in part in favor of the seating of the Devery delegates being: Queens, 7 for, 2 against; Suffolk, 4 for, 2 against; Wyoming, 3 for; Yates, 3 for.

All of the other counties voted for the majority report declaring the seats of the delegates from the Ninth vacant.

When the vote had been announced Devery left the hall followed by his delegates and friends. There was not much trouble or cheering.

The committee on permanent organization made its report, naming Martin W. Littleton, of Brooklyn, for permanent chairman.

MR. LITTLETON'S SPEECH.

In assuming the chair, Mr. Littleton said in part:

"In the very midst of a profound political peace in the nation, two years this side of a national election, we find a most extraordinary activity among prominent republican officials.

"The president, although strenuously diligent in the discharge of his grave duties, finds it necessary, or agreeable, or both, to make a tour of the New England states, speaking at every place of interest. The burden of his vigorous oratory at first was an extravagant defense of his cabinet, coupled with a perpetual injunction to his hearers to not hesitate in doing the 'rough work of life.' Much of this could be forgiven to his ardent infatuation for his official family. But something in his keen observation of the people led him to believe that they were not so much interested in his official family and the 'rough work' as they were in the question of the regulation of trusts. True to reckless disregard of consequences he undertook to dispose of this profound economical problem in a skirmish fight. Let it be said in praise of his candor, if not of his ingenuity, that he admitted at the outset the urgent necessity of a strong supervising hand—an admission which the whole republican party would rejoice were it unmade.

"He hastened to assure them of a remedy. Simply stated, the remedy is to have all the states meet in due season, and first solemnly admit that they are powerless to cope with these harmless 'captains of industry,' and to agree to delegate to the federal government all power which they now possess upon that subject. Then let the federal government take charge of them, and the president solemnly promises that he would see to it that the federal government would control them. In view of the fact that the processes of amendment and enactment will require nearly nine years, it is not too much to say that this is a 'strepuous' promise. This revolutionary remedy would typify trust development by taking all the power of all the states and delegating it to the federal government. Then, when the trusts had elected enough men who regarded them simply as 'captains of industry,' the states would be powerless and the trusts would be free.

PURPOSE NO DISTURBANCE.

"The president says that he does not regard the reduction of tariff duties upon trust-made articles as an efficient or safe remedy, because it would injure the legitimate as well as the illegitimate industries. We do not propose to disturb; we do not propose to attack legitimate industries; we do not seek to take away from them anything which belongs to them, but we propose to withhold the aid of this great government from them; we propose to make them stand alone; we propose to take away the unnecessary protection now afforded them and let the commercial batteries of the world be trained upon them with the shot and shell of competition until they are driven from their entrenchment of protection out into the open field of honest trade.

"Rather than do this the republican party now proposes to revolutionize the government, change its form and further encroach upon the right of local self-government in state."

The speaker quoted from the tariff and a ruling of the board of general appraisers to show that the anthracite coal companies were protected and declared the present situation brought about by the coal strike was "but a manifestation of the irresistible power of those protected monopolies."

MUST WAIT LONG.

Continuing, he said: "Are we to wait nine or ten years for the remedy against such an acute condition of evil? Must the president run about the country apologizing for the menace of such concerns while winter approaches and hundreds of firesides will be cold and dark and suffering unspeakable will ensue? If the tariff has no more to do with trusts than the penal code has to do with ordinary affairs, how can the removal of the tariff be so hurtful to those great 'captains of industry?' Not only the president, but members of his cabinet are out crying from the 'households' to the people to pause in their 'rough work' and behold the great prosperity. The secretary of the treasury having in ninety days acquainted himself with the simple problems of finance, is stamping around the country apologizing to hungry people because they have no beef and coal. Why does he not have the courage of his fellow-citizens of Iowa and take up the battle to drive these combinations from the 'shelter of a protective tariff'?"

"The secretary of war is out on the highways of politics, willing at all times to admit that the present administration is perhaps the ablest and most efficient in the history of the nation.

"The speaker of the house, though scarred by service in battles fierce and indurated to all wearing experiences of politics, does not care to encounter the people of his district, and gave a reason for the government continuing to support monopolies."

The chairman then turned to state affairs, quoting from the platform adopted at the recent republican convention, and denouncing that party for its failure to observe its pledges.

THE PLATFORM.

At the conclusion of Mr. Littleton's speech the platform was presented. It calls for steadfast fidelity to American principles, for the lack of which it arraigns the republican party; demands the return to the principles of Thomas Jefferson to stop demoralization of the country; opposes trusts that injuriously affect consumer and employer and drive out small manufacturers, and especially condemns the so-called beef and coal trusts for "unreasonably depriving the people of necessities of life."

Restraint of the amassing of wealth is advocated and the amendment of the tariff law by placing the necessities of life on the free list is demanded. The Dingley tariff law is condemned as a whole. The president is criticised for dilatory conduct and is accused of not wanting to offend the trusts.

The platform asserts that the proposition to amend the United States constitution to enable the federal government to proceed against the trusts is a mere subterfuge to get delay; condemns the neglect of the national and state administration to enforce the Sherman law and the Donnelly state law; favors trade expansion, but objects to this country "aping England in trying to establish a colonial government;" condemns the action of the government in its treatment of the Philippines; demands justice for Cuba in the matter of trade by reducing the tariff to a strictly revenue basis; demands public ownership of anthracite coal mines by the right of eminent domain and the payment of full damages to owners, so as to insure peace in the mining regions and relieve the consumer; arraigns the state administration for extravagance in the administering of state affairs; declares in favor of a 1,000-ton barge canal; denounces the present state excise laws and demands the return of all moneys received to the county where collected; sympathizes with the Jews in Roumania; favors the election of United States senators by direct vote; condemns the national administration for "trading judicial positions for state aid."

THE COAL MINE PLANK.

The declaration regarding national ownership of anthracite mines is as follows:

"We advocate the national ownership and operation of the anthracite coal mines by the exercise of the right of eminent domain, with just compensation to owners. Ninety per cent. of the anthracite coal deposits of the world being in the state of Pennsylvania, national ownership can be in the interest of the whole people.

"Fuel, like water, being a public necessity, we advocate national ownership and operation of the mines as a solution of the problem which will relieve the country from the sufferings which follow differences between labor and capital in the anthracite mines. This course will insure peace in the mining regions and remove the cause for differences leading not only to suffering, but off times to bloodshed and insurrection.

"It will relieve the consumers of coal, not only in this state, but throughout the whole country; insure steady employment and ample compensation to labor; transfer children from the mines to the schools; insure, strengthen and preserve the stability of the business interests of our country. The ever differences of opinion may exist over other propositions of public ownership, the propriety of that policy as applied to anthracite coal mines must be apparent to every citizen."

HE VOWS VENGEANCE.

When William S. Devery and his friends left their seats they passed up the aisle and turning at the door, the ex-chief shouted: "We are compelled to abide by the will of the convention, but some of you here will have cause to regret your action." When he reached the street he was soon surrounded by a large and constantly increasing crowd and he gave orders that his band strike up and a parade was started through the principal streets in the village. After marching about half hour the party returned to the United States hotel. Devery was pushed through the crowd gathered there to the steps and then shouts of "speech, speech," caused him to turn and face the street. He was plainly laboring under a great stress of excitement.

"I am not able to talk to you," he said. "I am a democrat, but some one will regret today's work. There can be no democracy where a clique of a few men can meet in a suite of three rooms and dictate who can be seated and who cannot."

ABOUT THE COURT HOUSE.

In the circuit court this morning the case of the National Machine company vs. John Highland, et al, venued here from Huntington county, was called and upon agreement the jury was dispensed with until October 9. It was then agreed to submit the evidence to the court and accordingly Judge O'Rourke is this afternoon engaged in hearing the evidence. The case involves the payment of some machinery bought by the defendant, payment for which was refused on grounds of inefficiency. A number of witnesses are here from Huntington and the case is being presented by Huntington county attorneys. For the plaintiff ex-Judge Watkins and Attorney Morgan appear, and for the defense Brannan & Spencer.

The commissioners today visited the Fairfield bridge and concluded to abandon it and divert the highway. Frances H. Kohn and Ada A. Lopschire.

Several days ago a warrant was issued from France's court for the arrest of one, John Rothwiler, accused of stealing a kit of tools from a boarding companion at the Otto house. The tools were recovered at Marriotte's, but when Deputy Sheriff Ryan went after the man he had flown. He was yesterday located at New Haven and last evening Deputy Ryan and Huguenard went to New Haven and returned with the man, who was bound over to the circuit court by Justice France and in default of $400 bail was sent to jail.

Yesterday evening Jeremiah Johnson and Octavia L. Wambach, duly armed with a marriage license, climbed the stairway to France's office to have the nuptial knot tied. The justice was not in at the time and during the few minutes elapsing before his arrival it was noised about the corners that a wedding was on and soon the court room was fairly filled by a miscellaneous crowd waiting to see the ceremony. The couple were not looking for such a reception and when the justice arrived a few whispered words fixed the business and it was arranged to meet a few minutes later at the clerk's office, where there was less probability of so many witnesses. The disappointed crowd separated and in ten minutes the knot was tied unembarrassed by the gaze of curious eyes.

Mrs. Eliza Smith was last evening declared insane by a commission consisting of Justice France and Doctors VanSwearingen and Barnett. The papers were sent forward by the sheriff last night and returns will be here in a few days. Her delusion is that she is hampered by spirits who continually interfere with her. She was once before adjudged insane upon the same grounds, but was never sent to the hospital for treatment.

The case of Hursh vs. Grubb, a piece of litigation originating in Springfield township and once before tried, is again on trial before a jury in the superior court.

Charles F. Pfeiffer sues Emma Cramp on a chattel mortgage and note for $200.

Charles E. Altman, a plasterer, sues the Western Gas Construction company on a mechanic's lien for $50. The complaint alleges that the money is due for labor and that notice of the lien had been given the defendant.

A gentleman named Alderman, living at 1312 Erie street, reported to the sheriff this morning that an Indian pony had been taken from the barn on his premises some time during the night.

At the request of relatives the commitment of Theresed Haller to the insane asylum at Richmond has been withdrawn by the hospital authorities. The relatives agree to provide for the patient without calling upon the state.

SCENES IN THOMAS, OKLA., THE TOWN THAT WAS BUILT

Probably one of the most interesting of the many wonderful towns which have sprung up in Oklahoma is the town of Thomas, which less than two months ago rose out of the prairie in a single day. Many of its buildings were moved ready built from other communities. The upper picture shows how a hotel was brought miles across the prairie by twenty-six horses. The town owes its birth to the clever scheme of a real estate syndicate by which undesignated "lot certificates" were sold to prospective residents, who on opening day drew numbers to decide just which parcels of land they were to own. Thomas now has a population of several thousand.

AN EYE-OPENER.

Didn't Believe It Possible That Coffee Was at Work.

People often attribute their ill health to some indisposition in eating, and change diet in the hope of recovering their wanted good health; finding no change for the better in their condition, they are at a loss for the cause, never for a moment thinking that the cup of coffee which they take in the morning is the true source from whence all their ills have come.

A lady in Philadelphia had her attention called to the pernicious working of coffee on the system by reading a little book on "How to Live." She says: "It was truly an eye-opener to me. All the many symptoms of the nervous stage under which I had been laboring so long were here directly traceable to coffee drinking. Especially was it shown to be responsible for the complete 'break-down' of my nervous system, which I had ascribed to many different causes, and which had become so great that my hands shook like that of a toper whenever I carried things to my mouth or reached out to grasp anything. I found myself subject to frequent spells of despondency and gloom, a feeling of emptiness, with constant sour eructations.

"Now, like every slave to an inordinate appetite, I was loath to believe that my favorite morning and mid-day beverage was the true cause of all this nervous wretchedness. "Having noticed the advertisements of Postum Food Coffee, I determined to test it and purchased a package and had some prepared carefully as directed. I enjoyed my first cup immensely and Postum has been my favorite drink ever since, and that is a year and a half ago. I had barely used it a week when I realized a general 'tone-up' of my system. First, my appetite improved; next, I had no feeling of depression for days together, and a sensation of comfort, especially of my stomach, was noticeable. After a month I was aware that my hands no longer trembled, my nerves were improved, and this improvement continued until I entirely recovered my health.

"Whenever I learn of a case of nervous prostration, dyspepsia or stomach trouble among my friends and others, I at once urge the abandonment of coffee as a beverage and the use of Postum in its stead, and I have yet to learn of a single case in which it failed of its effects." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

COLER IS TO LEAD

New York Democrats Name a Ticket After Throwing Bill Devery and His Gang Out.

WILD UPROAR REIGNED FOR A TIME

For governor—Bird S. Coler, of Brooklyn.

Lieutenant governor—Charles N. Buiger, of Oswego.

Secretary of State—Frank Mott, of Chautauque.

Comptroller—Charles M. Preston, of Ulster.

Attorney general—John Cunneen, of Erie.

State engineer and surveyor—Richard W. Sherman, of Oneida.

State treasurer—George H. Finch, of Warren.

A SEASON OF RACKET.

The nomination of the foregoing ticket was preceded by a season of uproar, growing out of the unseating of the two contesting delegations from the ninth district of New York city. Ex-Chief of Police Devery, who headed one of the delegations, was repudiated by the convention by an almost unanimous vote after scenes of disorder in which the Devery adherents sought to prevent progress of business in the convention. Devery succeeded in forcing his way to the platform and made a short speech, appealing to the convention for fair play. He was greeted with storm of mingled cheers and hisses.

One of his delegates who attempted to get the platform for an address, was forcibly removed. After the vote of the convention declaring the ninth district delegation vacant, Devery with his delegation and several hundred followers left the convention hall, the big ex-police chief breathing threats.

Bird S. Coler, former comptroller of Greater New York, was nominated for governor on the first ballot, there being no other candidate placed before the convention.

The platform is notable for its lack of reference to late national platforms and perhaps more so for its demand for the national ownership of the anthracite coal mines.

TROUBLE WAS IN SIGHT.

Interest centered in the meetings this morning of the committees on platform and contested seats of the democratic state convention. It was conceded that if William S. Devery and his delegates from the Ninth New York city district were not seated there would be troublesome times. Mr. Devery having declared that he would make an appeal on the floor of the convention. Devery held more than five hundred spectators' seats for the convention hall. Curiously enough these were given him by sympathizing delegations from all over the state and quite a large number came from Tammany delegates. It was learned this morning that Mr. Devery had been approached with the suggestion that the wisest way out of the difficulty would be to leave the representation in the Ninth district vacant. To this he replied:

"I will make no such agreement. I won by a big majority, I have the certificate of election and I am entitled to the seats, unless the democratic party wants to go on record as saying that an election certificate is of no value and that the will of the majority means nothing. In addition to that I want to call attention to the fact that Goodwin received the lowest vote on the ticket. Mr. Sheehan's party received the second lowest and he does not contest. The Goodwin people are pretty nervous to appeal from the people's complete throwdown of them."

After Mr. Devery had made this statement several of the leading politicians took up this case and urged that the committee seat him and avoid trouble as well as the establishment of what might prove an unfortunate precedent.

DEVERY MAKES THREAT.

Mr. Devery early expressed the belief that he would not be seated. He took a seat in the rear of the convention hall, saying: "If Mr. Hill and his friends refuse me a seat in this convention to which I have been duly and properly elected, I will hire a special train and if Mr. Hill goes campaigning I will follow him to every place in the state he may go to and tell the people the story of rank injustice."

When he made this statement Devery was surrounded by his friends and was with one of his counsel, who acquiesced in his decision.

DEVERY STARTS UPROAR.

After remaining at the rear of the hall for a short time Devery started down the aisle. In a minute the convention hall was in an uproar. Even the band was drowned out as delegates and friends stood on their chairs and cheered and waved their handkerchiefs. "He's seated, he's seated," yelled the crowd, but Devery raised his hand and called out, "Not yet, not yet." Then arose the cry from one side of the gallery, "What's the matter with Devery?" and back in the rear came the answer, "He's all right." The ex-chief of police took a seat in the right of the hall and shortly thereafter the announcement reached the convention hall that the committee on credentials would not seat either Devery or Goodwin. Immediately there was great excitement. Devery said to a reporter:

"Did you see my reception? It pleases me very much to see the people appreciate my presence in this convention. I have nothing to say, except that I have always been a democrat. I am a democrat and will continue to be a democrat. That is all I wish to say now."

In deciding the Devery contest a number of heated speeches were made and when it was explained that it was Senator Hill's desire that neither Devery nor Goodwin be recognized, a motion to that effect was carried with but few dissenting votes.

HILL GETS OVATION.

When Senator Hill entered the convention hall there was a great outburst of applause.

At 11:27 the temporary chairman took the gavel and rapped for order, and the report of the committee on credentials was called for. Chairman McMahon said: "In presenting the report I move the previous question." This was to prevent debate.

When the secretary read, "In the Ninth district, New York, neither delegation is entitled to seats in the convention because of the wholesale corruption," a roar of cheers and hisses went up, and as it continued Devery was seen making his way to the platform. Vainly the chairman rapped for order. Vainly a hand played. Down the aisle Devery forced his way, the crowd clearing the way for him. When he reached the platform steps he raised his hands in an effort to stop the pandemonium that reigned. A sergeant-at-arms, with his hands on the big ex-chief's shoulder, tried to force him back to a seat, but he shook him off and started to speak.

DEVERY MAKES SPEECH.

He said amid cheers: "Democrats of this convention, Samuel J. Tilden was deprived of his right of franchise, as were the people of the United States. We do not want that to occur here today. It was through the work of a clique of this convention that the people of the Ninth district are about to be deprived of a similar right. Mr. Hill, as state leader of the state of New York, we ask justice from you as leader of the democratic party. We do not come here as honest democrats to be deprived of our rights."

As Devery left the platform not a delegate was in his seat and the gallery was in a wild state of excitement.

IN WILD UPROAR.

A Devery delegate got to the platform and attempted to speak. The chair told him that he could not address the convention. Amidst a tremendous uproar he started to speak, but a sergeant-at-arms hustled him down the steps. For fully ten minutes the convention and spectators roared, applauded and hissed and then as the noise subsided Temprary Chairman Stanohfield said: "For the sake of the delegates to this democratic convention and those present I desire to say that the party does not propose to have its voice put down or allow its convention to be run by thugs and ruffians and—"

Here the Devery adherents broke out again and drowned Mr. Stanohfield's voice by cheers for Devery. For several minutes it went on and then the chair said: "I want to say to the gallery everybody will get fair play. If the gallery does not cease the galleries will be cleared."

Cries of "try it—let's see you."

Finally some semblance of order was obtained and then Devery presented a minority report.

DISTRICT THROWN OUT.

CIRCUIT COURT AT DECATUR ADJOURNS HURRIEDLY.

(Special to The Sentinel.)

Decatur, Ind., Oct. 1.—Tuesday morning as Judge R. K. Erwin in the Adams circuit court here was impaneling a jury to try the Holthouse ditch case, word was brought to him that one of the hired hands upon his farm, a man named Spahr, had smallpox.

Judge Erwin had come from the farm but a few hours previously, and he realized that he had been exposed to the disease, so he acted quickly. He promptly adjourned court to await developments, and it is not known when court will resume its sessions. Judge Erwin is voluntarily remaining in quarantine, but is not at his home.

Spahr's brother has been attending the Monmouth school, and last evening the school was ordered dismissed by Health Officer Costello. The building is now being thoroughly disinfected.

THE BOY ENJOYED HIS RIDE

YOUNG FAGIN WORKED A LIVERY KEEPER FOR A HORSE.

Said He Was Sent By a Lawyer for a Team and Proceeded to Have a Good Time.

Yesterday forenoon a lad named James Fagin, living on South Calhoun street, went to Rippe's livery barn and stated that he had been sent by S. F. Swayne to get a horse and buggy. The rig was delivered and young Fagin thereupon proceeded to have a good time. He drove the horse all morning and yesterday afternoon until late into the night. He then tied the horse to a post on Highland street and then went home. The horse was found later and taken to the barn. It is needless to add that Mr. Swayne had not sent the lad for the horse, and as there have been other complaints against him, it is probable that a charge of some kind will be filed.

FINE CATTLE ENTERED.

There is no question but that the fair next week will show the finest lot of cattle ever enclosed in one lot. The weather today broke just right and the fair managers are exuberant over the prospects. H. F. Schnelker, of New Haven, this morning entered his famous herd of Herefords, one of the finest bunches in the country, headed by the prize bull Sir Fawcett (103,296), and the herd includes not less than ten of the celebrated Wilton family. Other entries are coming in by every mail and the problem may be where to put all the exhibits. However, the management will provide accommodations for everybody even if the already enormous capacity must be doubled. In racing horses, both harness and runners, the entries are still coming, although the classes are already filled. Vern Chisholm returned this morning from Hilldale, where he secured fifteen entries, including parts of the stables of George Castle, of Chicago; E. C. McClung, of Laporte, and George Wilson, of Detroit. These stables include half a dozen runners that can jump over a load of hay in rainy weather and two feet of mud. All the men out attending fairs and races this week report great success in securing first-class entries in both live stock and for the speed department.

WOULD OUST HIM

SUIT AGAINST RECORDER HERRICK IN DEKALB.

AUBURN EDITOR COURAGEOUS SAYS OFFICER IS UNFIT FOR THE HIGH PLACE.

EDITOR BARNES OUT WITH A PERSONAL STATEMENT.

(Special to The Sentinel.)

Auburn, Ind., Oct. 1.—Single-handed and alone, James A. Barnes, the veteran editor of the Auburn Courier and long a prominent democrat of DeKalb county, is courageously attempting to oust from office a county official elected by his own party, but who, it is charged, has become so addicted to liquor as to disgrace the high position he was selected by the people to fill.

Recorder Herrick is the official in question, and Editor Barnes has filed in the DeKalb circuit court a suit to remove him from office. The proceeding is a unique one and Editor Barnes' vigorous attitude has created a tremendous sensation here, but the newspaper man stands upon the platform that he will not knowingly support a man of dissolute habits for public office, nor will he tolerate such a man after he is in. He is confident the people will sustain him in his attitude.

MAKES A STATEMENT.

The filing of the suit has been productive of such an upheaval in DeKalb county political circles that Editor Barnes felt impelled to make in his newspaper a personal statement, over his own signature, setting forth his precise position and assuming full and individual responsibility for his original reformative methods. The statement appeared in the Daily Courier last evening, and is as follows:

"The entering on the court docket Monday of a suit against Recorder Herrick to deprive him of an office that he has not been filling worthily, has caused a good deal of comment, and some criticism. I feel it my duty, as a citizen to give a brief explanation. The action was brought by me, and I alone am responsible for it. Mr. Herrick received the support of a majority of the 7,000 voters of the county, because they believed he would not disgrace the position. But at different times since he has held the place he has been seen intoxicated in public places. Lately he has about half the time been unfit for business and once at least had to be helped to his home. Friends have urged him to stop and every possible influence has been brought to bear on him, but in vain. The public had so often shut its eyes to vices of that kind, indulged in by those in prominent places, that it had come to be considered a safe thing to do. But it had also become unbearable. And as I have often taken the position that I will not support for office a man of loose or vicious habits, I wish also to make it clear that I will not tolerate such a man after he is in. I know, also, that I am not alone in this view, but that a vast majority of the 30,000 people of DeKalb county are with me in the determination that none but clean men shall enjoy the official honors in our gift.

"So the suit was brought as a last resort. Not in anger, but in humiliation and sorrow, and it will be pushed in the same spirit. I have none but the most friendly feelings for Mr. Herrick. He has been a good officer and the work in his office is in good condition. But such a condition of things would soon stop if he were allowed to go on. I have the highest regard for his family, also, for they are most worthy people. If this step on which I have entered so reluctantly should result in saving to them a kind husband and father, I shall feel repaid for the pains it has cost me.

"One word more. There is no politics in this. Interested parties on both sides are trying to make capital of it. Democrats have claimed that the republican committee did it to disrupt the democratic party. Republicans have said that the democratic committee did it because Herrick is helping Joliff for sheriff, and using Joliff's money. But the two committees are in no way responsible for this step. It is a step taken by an individual democrat, against an individual democratic officer, because people of all classes are tired of keeping dissolute men in high places. Knowing intimately, the people of this community, I feel sure of their sympathy and good will.

"James A. Barnes."

SOME SCARLET FEVER.

Three cases of scarlet fever at Edgerton were reported to the county health officer, Dr. Carl Proegler, this afternoon. With this exception the entire county outside the city of Fort Wayne is free from contagious disease.

Several additional men were accepted by Lieutenant Wood today for enlistment in the United States navy. Myles Brazil, 21 years old, residing on East Main street, enlisted as an electrician, third class; Edward Piepenbrink, age 18, of Hometown, was accepted as a landman for training, and James F. Brown, 1118 Lake avenue, Fort Wayne, was accepted as an apprentice. The latter are to secure parental consent before enlistment is completed. There were six new applicants today. The physical requirements are very strict, and of a total of about twenty applicants to date, six have been accepted.

The marriage of Miss Evelyn M. Smith and James A. Sproat took place last evening at the home of Rev. J. C. Breckinridge, pastor of Bethany Presbyterian church, who performed the ceremony. The attendants were Miss Nettie Sproat and H. F. Roll. The bride is a daughter of City Policeman J. M. Smith, of 1018 Degroot street. The groom is a son of Mr. and Mrs. D. A. Sproat, of 715 St. Mary's avenue and is employed in the Roof plumbing shop on Broadway. Mr. and Mrs. Sproat have gone to housekeeping at 1424 St. Mary's avenue.

STOLE MANY CHICKENS.

Nearly sixty fine chickens were stolen last night from the premises of Joseph C. Pfeiffer, just north of the city. The hawking of a dog during the operations of the thieves aroused members of the family and Mr. Pfeiffer hurried out to the barn to make an investigation. The thieves had completed their work, however, and fled. There is no clue and Mr. Pfeiffer is unable to determine exactly how many of the fowls were taken.

BURGLARY ATTEMPTED.

An attempt was made last night to burglarize the peanut stand next to Marriette's second-hand store. The attempt was unsuccessful, the marauders being frightened by the movements of the inmates of the building. Entrance was attempted through a rear window.

FORESEES REVOLT

POLITICAL LANDSLIDE UNLESS STRIKE IS SETTLED.

MAYOR ON COAL SITUATION GIVES HIS VIEWS TO A NEW YORK NEWSPAPER.

PEOPLE ARE READY TO REBEL AGAINST RULE OF TRUSTS ON COAL AND MEATS.

(Special to The Sentinel.)

New York, Oct. 1.—Last evening the New York Journal and American telegraphed a request to the mayors of many American cities, asking for a statement of the local coal situation and requesting an opinion upon the probable outcome of the conference to be held next week in Detroit with the idea of aiding in the settlement of the big strike in the anthracite regions of Pennsylvania and West Virginia.

The reply of Mayor Henry C. Berghoff, of Fort Wayne, was as follows:

"The public in general demands arbitration of the coal strike, and with the hope of bringing this about we have acted upon the suggestion of Mayor Maybury and appointed a committee of ten citizens to attend the convention at Detroit.

"The coal situation here is very critical. No soft coal contracts of any kind are offered, and not a ton of anthracite coal can be purchased. The city depends entirely upon natural gas for domestic purposes and all factories must use coal during the cold season. To make matters worse, the gas pressure is now lower than it has ever been heretofore and gas may not supply the domestic demands. If this happens thousands of families will be without fuel, our wood supply being nearly exhausted.

"Public feeling is intense against the mine owners, and if the strike is not settled immediately there will not only be a public calamity, but also a political landslide. People begin to realize what it means to be at the mercy of the trusts and to pay trust prices for all commodities, especially for coal and meat, and they are ready to revolt.

"Henry C. Berghoff, Mayor."

WILL KAVANAUGH MEETS TRAGIC END IN WEST.

Was Well Known as a Railroad Man—Walter Culver Dies at Hospital—Mortuary Matters.

William H. Kavanaugh, formerly a well known Fort Wayne railroad man, met a tragic death Tuesday at Salida, Colo., and while no particulars are at hand, it is presumed his death resulted from a railroad accident. The information came last evening in a telegram to Secretary Al C. Aiter, of the Fort Wayne lodge of Elks, as follows:

"Salida, Colo., Sept. 30.—Secretary Elks' lodge, Fort Wayne, Ind.: Brother William Kavanaugh, member your lodge, killed today. Particulars later. Wire instructions, if any."

"Wm. C. Alexander."

Instructions have been sent to have the remains forwarded to Fort Wayne and the interment will occur at Lindenwood. Mr. Kavanaugh was a son of Thomas Kavanaugh, residing at 1118 Cass street. During the latter part of his residence in Fort Wayne he was employed as a fireman on the Nickel Plate railroad, and early last spring went west to accept a position on the Denver and Rio Grande railroad. Shortly before going west he was made a member of the order of Elks, forming one of the large class initiated early last spring. He was also a member of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen in this city.

In addition to the father, Mr. Kavanaugh leaves a brother, Walter Kavanaugh, a driver for the Great-Western Grocery, and a sister, Mrs. John Sweeney, of Butte, Mont. The deceased would have been thirty-five years of age in November. The remains are expected to arrive in the city the latter part of the week.

CULVER.

Walter Culver, who had been for many years a patient at St. Joseph hospital and practically helpless from paralysis, died at that institution Tuesday afternoon at the age of fifty years. Mr. Culver entered the hospital when first stricken with the disease in 1891, was able to leave in a short time, but soon became helpless and in 1892 returned. He spent the remainder of his life there. Little is known of his history. He leaves a brother and a sister—M. Culver, of Allegan, Mich., and Mrs. Elizabeth Clawson, of Geneva. The remains were removed to the undertaking rooms of Klasehn &

Melching to await instructions from relatives.

BERGHOFF.

Julia Elbertina Berghoff, infant daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gustave Berghoff, died at 10:30 o'clock this morning at the family home, 1419 East Washington street. The little one was 4 months old and death was due to heart disease.

Funeral services will be held Friday morning at 8:30 from the residence of the Catholic church. Services and burial private.

delegates were entitled to seats by reason of "wholesale corruption pertaining to the primary election in said district whereby it cannot be determined what delegates were legally elected."

The majority report was sustained, the counties voting in whole or in part in favor of the seating of the Devery delegates being: Queens, 7 for, 2 against; Suffolk, 4 for, 2 against; Wyoming, 3 for; Yates, 3 for.

All of the other counties voted for the majority report declaring the seats of the delegates from the Ninth vacant.

When the vote had been announced Devery left the hall followed by his delegates and friends. There was not much trouble or cheering.

The committee on permanent organization made its report, naming Martin W. Littleton, of Brooklyn, for permanent chairman.

MR. LITTLETON'S SPEECH.

In assuming the chair, Mr. Littleton said in part:

"In the very midst of a profound political peace in the nation, two years this side of a national election, we find a most extraordinary activity among prominent republican officials.

"The president, although strenuously diligent in the discharge of his grave duties, finds it necessary, or agreeable, or both, to make a tour of the New England states, speaking at every place of interest. The burden of his vigorous oratory at first was an extravagant defense of his cabinet, coupled with a perpetual injunction to his hearers to not hesitate in doing the 'rough work of life.' Much of this could be forgiven to his ardent infatuation for his official family. But something in his keen observation of the people led him to believe that they were not so much interested in his official family and the 'rough work' as they were in the question of the regulation of trusts. True to reckless disregard of consequences he undertook to dispose of this profound economic problem in a sidwinding fight. Let it be said in praise of his candor, if not of his ingenuity, that he admitted at the outset the urgent necessity of a strong supervising hand—an admission which the whole republican party would rejoice were it unmade.

"He hastened to assure them of a remedy. Simply stated, the remedy is to have all the states meet in due season, and first solemnly admit that they are powerless to cope with these 'harmless' captains of industry, and to agree to delegate to the federal government all power which they now possess upon that subject. Then let the federal government take charge of them, and the president solemnly promises that he would see to it that the federal government would control them. In view of the fact that the processes of amendment and enactment will require nearly nine years, it is not too much to say that this is a 'stuporous' promise. This revolutionary remedy would typify trust development by taking all the power of all the states and delegating it to the federal government. Then, when the trusts had elected enough men who regarded them simply as 'captains of industry,' the states would be powerless and the trusts would be free.

PURPOSE NO DISTURBANCE.

"The president says that he does not regard the reduction of tariff duties upon trust-made articles as an efficient or safe remedy, because it would injure the legitimate as well as the illegitimate industries. We do not propose to disturb; we do not propose to attack legitimate industries; we do not seek to take away from them anything which belongs to them, but we propose to withhold the aid of this great government from them; we propose to make them stand alone; we propose to take away the unnecessary protection now afforded them and let the commercial batteries of the world be trained upon them with the shot and shell of competition until they are driven from their entrenchment of protection out into the open field of honest trade.

"Rather than do this the republican party now proposes to revolutionize the government, change its form and further encroach upon the right of local self-government in state."

The speaker quoted from the tariff and a ruling of the board of general appraisers to show that the anthracite coal companies were protected and declared the present situation brought about by the coal strike was "but a manifestation of the irresistible power of these protected monopolies."

MUST WAIT LONG.

Continuing, he said:

"Are we to wait nine or ten years for the remedy against such an acute condition of evil? Must the president run about the country apologizing for the menace of such concerns while winter approaches and hundreds of firesides will be cold and dark and suffering unspoken will ensue? If the tariff has no more to do with trusts than the penal code has to do with ordinary affairs, how can the removal of the tariff be so harmful to those great 'captains of industry?' Not only the president, but members of his cabinet are out crying from the house-tops to the people to pause in their 'rough work' and behold the great prosperity. The secretary of the treasury having in ninety days acquainted himself with the simple problems of finance, is stamping around the country apologizing to hungry people because they have no beef and coal. Why does he not have the courage of his fellow-citizens of Iowa and take up the battle to drive these combinations from the 'shelter of a protective tariff'?"

"The secretary of war is out on the highways of politics, willing at all times to admit that the present administration is perhaps the ablest and most efficient in the history of the nation.

"The speaker of the house, though scented by service in battles fierce and indurated to all wearing experiences of politics, does not care to encounter the people of his district, and gave a reason for the government continuing to support monopolies."

The chairman then turned to state affairs, quoting from the platform adopted at the recent republican convention, and denouncing that party for its failure to observe its pledges.

THE PLATFORM.

At the conclusion of Mr. Littleton's speech the platform was presented. It calls for steadfast fidelity to American principles, for the lack of which it arraigns the republican party; demands the return to the principles of Thomas Jefferson to stop demoralization of the country; opposes trusts that injuriously affect consumer and employer and drive out small manufacturers, and especially condemns the so-called beef and coal trusts for "unreasonably depriving the people of necessities of life."

Restriction of the amassing of wealth is advocated and the amendment of the tariff law by placing the necessities of life on the free list is demanded. The Dingley tariff law is condemned as a whole. The president is criticised for dilatory conduct and is accused of not wanting to offend the trusts.

The platform asserts that the proposition to amend the United States constitution to enable the federal government to proceed against the trusts is a mere subterfuge to get delay; condemns the neglect of the national and state administration to enforce the Sherman law and the Donnelly state law; favors trade expansion, but objects to this country "aping England in trying to establish a colonial government;" condemns the action of the government in its treatment of the Philippines; demands justice for Cuba in the matter of trade by reducing the tariff to a strictly revenue basis; demands public ownership of anthracite coal mines by the right of eminent domain and the payment of full damages to owners, so as to insure peace in the mining regions and relieve the consumer; arraigns the state administration for extravagance in the administering of state affairs; declares in favor of a 1,000-ton large canal; denounces the present state excise laws and demands the return of all moneys received to the county where collected; sympathizes with the Jews in Roumania; favors the election of United States senators by direct vote; condemns the national administration for "trading judicial positions for state aid."

THE COAL MINE PLANK.

The declaration regarding national ownership of anthracite mines is as follows:

"We advocate the national ownership and operation of the anthracite coal mines by the exercise of the right of eminent domain, with just compensation to owners. Ninety per cent. of the anthracite coal deposits of the world being in the state of Pennsylvania, national ownership can but be in the interest of the whole people.

"Fuel, like water, being a public necessity, we advocate national ownership and operation of the mines as a solution of the problem which will relieve the country from the sufferings which follow differences between labor and capital in the anthracite mines. This course will insure peace in the mining regions and remove the cause for differences leading not only to suffering, but oft times to bloodshed and insurrection.

"It will relieve the consumers of coal, not only in this state, but throughout the whole country; insure steady employment and ample compensation to labor; transfer children from the mines to the schools; insure, strengthen and preserve the stability of the business interests and popular institutions of our country. Whatever differences of opinion may exist over other propositions of public ownership, the propriety of that policy as applied to anthracite coal mines must be apparent to every citizen."

HE VOWS VENGEANCE.

When William S. Devery and his friends left their seats they passed up the aisle and turning at the door, the ex-chief shouted: "We are compelled to abide by the will of the convention, but some of you here will have cause to regret your action." When he reached the street he was soon surrounded by a large and constantly increasing crowd and he gave orders that his band strike up and a parade was started through the principal streets in the village. After marching about half hour the party returned to the United States hotel. Devery was pushed through the crowd gathered there to the steps and then shouts of "speech, speech," caused him to turn and face the street. He was plainly laboring under a great stress of excitement.

"I am not able to talk to you," he said. "I am a democrat, but some one will regret today's work. There can be no democracy where a clique of a few men can meet in a suite of three rooms and decide who can be seated and who cannot."

ABOUT THE COURT HOUSE.

In the circuit court this morning the case of the National Machine company vs. John Highland, et al, venued here from Huntington county, was called and upon agreement the jury was dispensed with until October 9. It was then agreed to submit the evidence to the court and accordingly Judge O'Rourke is this afternoon engaged in hearing the evidence. The case involves the payment of some machinery bought by the defendant, payment for which was refused on grounds of inefficiency. A number of witnesses are here from Huntington and the case is being presented by Huntington county attorneys. For the plaintiff ex-Judge Watkins and Attorney Morgan appear, and for the defense Brannan & Spencer.

The commissioners today visited the Fairfield bridge and concluded to abandon it and divert the highway. Frances H. Kohn and Ada A. Laphire.

Several days ago a warrant was issued from France's court for the arrest of one, John Rollwiler, accused of stealing a kit of tools from a boarding companion at the Utte house. The tools were recovered at Mariotte's, but when Deputy Sheriff Ryan went after the man he had down. He was yesterday located at New Haven and last evening Deputy Ryan and Huguenot went to New Haven and returned with their man, who was bound over to the circuit court by Justice France and in default of $400 bail was sent to jail.

Yesterday evening Jeremiah Johnson and Octavia L. Wambach, duly armed with a marriage license, climbed the stairway to France's office to have the nuptial knot tied. The justice was not in at the time and during the few minutes elapsing before his arrival it was noised about the corners that a wedding was on and soon the court room was fairly filled by a miscellaneous crowd waiting to see the ceremony. The couple were not looking for such a reception and when the justice arrived a few whispered words fixed the business and it was arranged to meet a few minutes later at the clerk's office, where there was less probability of so many witnesses. The disappointed crowd separated and in ten minutes the knot was tied unembarrassed by the gaze of curious eyes.

Mrs. Eliza Smith was last evening declared insane by a commission consisting of Justice France and Doctors VanSwearingen and Barnett. The papers were sent forward by the sheriff last night and returns will be here in a few days. Her delusion is that she is hampered by spirits who continually interfere with her. She was once before adjudged insane upon the same grounds, but was never sent to the hospital for treatment.

MOVING A HOTEL INTO THOMAS, OK.

CROWD WAITING FOR THE OPENING.

SCENES IN THOMAS, OKLA., THE TOWN THAT WAS BUILT IN A DAY.

Probably one of the most interesting of the many wonderful towns which have sprung up in Oklahoma is the town of Thomas, which less than two months ago rose out of the prairie in a single day. Many of its buildings were moved ready built from other communities. The upper picture shows how a hotel was brought miles across the prairie by twenty-six horses. The town owes its birth to the clever scheme of a real estate syndicate by which undesignated "lot certificates" were sold to prospective residents, who on opening day drew numbers to decide just which parcels of land they were to own. Thomas now has a population of several thousand.

ONCE A FORT WAYNE EDITOR.

Friends in Fort Wayne have just received word of the death of J. R. Willard, which occurred at a hospital in Chicago some days ago. Many years ago—during the latter '60s, Mr. Willard was one of the owners of the Fort Wayne Gazette, and lived at the Rockhill house. The firm was then Wright, Willard, Irwin and Skinner, and Mr. Willard will be remembered by many people in Fort Wayne. He had, during his later years, been a prominent figure on the Chicago board of trade.

OLD TRADES COUNCIL MEETING.

The old Trades and Labor council will hold a post mortem meeting this evening at Shamrock hall on Calhoun street for the purpose of settling up the old labor fair accounts, which were left in a somewhat muddled condition when the two labor bodies amalgamated several months ago. There is now but one set of delegates in the city from each union, but those formerly affiliated with the trades council are "holdovers" until the outstanding accounts are settled.

WILL RECEIVE BIDS.

The trustees of the Indiana school for feeble minded youth are now receiving bids for the construction of an east wing and dining hall at Columbia, for finishing the main building and installing a heating system for the entire structure. Previous bids exceeded the amount of the appropriation and the plans have been revised so as to bring the cost down to the required figure. The bids will be opened October 9.

BROSINS-EDMUNDS.

Miss Gertrude Edmunds and William R. Brosius were united in marriage by Rev. E. W. Allen at his home at 10 o'clock this morning. The groom is a brakeman on the Lake Erie and Western road. They have gone on a wedding trip to Indianapolis and Cincinnati and on their return will reside with the bride's parents on Cass street.

"CHICK" STAHL HOME.

"Chick" Stahl, Fort Wayne's most luminous base ball star, arrived in the city last evening and will spend the winter with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. R. Stahl, of East Lewis street. Mr. Stahl is one of the best known of American base ball players. During the past season he has been in the outfield of the Boston American league team.

AN EYE-OPENER.

Didn't Believe It Possible That Coffee Was at Work.

People often attribute their ill health to some indiscretion in eating, and change diet in the hope of recovering their wanted good health; finding no change for the better in their condition, they are at a loss for the cause, never for a moment thinking that the cup of coffee which they take in the morning is the true source from whence all their ills have come.

A lady in Philadelphia had her attention called to the pernicious working of coffee on the system by reading a little book on "How to Live." She says: "It was truly an eye-opener to me. All the many symptoms of the nervous stage under which I had been laboring so long were here directly traceable to coffee drinking. Especially was it shown to be responsible for the complete 'break-down' of my nervous system, which I had ascribed to many different causes, and which had become so great that my hands shook like that of a toper whenever I carried things to my mouth or reached out to grasp anything. I found myself subject to frequent spells of emptiness and gloom, a feeling of faintness, with constant sour eructations."

"Now, like every slave to an inordinate appetite, I was loath to believe that my favorite morning and mid-day beverage was the true cause of all this nervous wretchedness. "Having noticed the advertisements of Postum Food Coffee, I determined to test it and purchased a package and had some prepared carefully as directed. I enjoyed my first cup immensely and Postum has been my favorite drink ever since, and that is a year and a half ago. I had barely used it a week when I realized a general 'tone-up' of my system. First, my appetite improved; next, I had no feeling of depression for days together, and a sensation of comfort, especially of my stomach, was noticeable. After a month I was aware that my hands no longer trembled, my nerves were improved, and this improvement continued until I entirely recovered my health. "Whenever I learn of a case of nervous prostration, dyspepsia or stomach trouble among my friends and others, I at once urge the abandonment of coffee as a beverage and the use of Postum in its stead, and I have yet to learn of a single case in which it failed of its effects." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

A NEW POLICEMAN.

Last evening the board of safety appointed Charles J. Tulo a member of the police force to fill the quota as decided upon by the council last week when the appropriations were made. The new officer has had considerable experience in police work and was for a long time a member of the Pennsylvania company's detective force under Captain Stoll. Later he was transferred to the Pittsburgh division. More recently he was employed in the Pennsylvania freight house at this point, he having come here to resume his residence with a view of getting a position on the city force. He is a strapping big fellow, muscular and looks like an ideal officer. He was put to work today and was detailed to the detective force and will do plain clothes duty.

It ought to go hard with that gang of body-snatchers just brought to book in Indianapolis. The Indiana laws liberally provide means whereby medical colleges may obtain human subjects for dissection. That one medical institution should rape a whole cemetery of its dead is something appalling.

The coal strike and some means of ending it have been under discussion in high places from which terrifying thunder may soon issue. The hard coal combine doesn't care much for public sentiment so long as the law is not invoked. But when the president of the United States and his attorney general begin to search the statute books for legal expedients there is likely to be "something doing" under the hats of the coal barons.

The New York democratic convention gave token of its respectability by refusing to allow the delegation headed by ex-Chief of Police Devery to be seated. Devery has installed himself in power in the Ninth district in New York city and his following is made up of the worst elements in the metropolis. The state democracy has no stomach for the big Tammanyite, and while his leadership in his own halliwick is not disputed, he has plain warning that the balance of the state can get along without him. Devery amassed much wealth while in the New York police department and he has studiously ignored the query, "Where did you get it?" The vote by which the Devery delegation was refused seats in today's convention was almost unanimous.

At Lincoln City, this state, there is dedicated today a monument to a good woman who for that she bore a certain male child, should be immortal in the memory of mankind.

The woman over whose grave the stone has been placed was Nancy Hawks Lincoln. The child she bore was Abraham Lincoln. For three score years the grave of this woman who lived and died obscurely in her backwoods home had lain neglected. Finally, an unknown person, doubtless ashamed of his state's neglect of the grave of Abraham Lincoln's mother, caused to be placed there a stone inscribed "To the mother of our martyred president. Erected by a friend." This has been replaced by a suitable monument and a state park has been established on the ground of what was once a part of the Thomas Lincoln homestead. It is well all this is done, but it would have been better if not delayed so long.

As nothing else has served to do, the anthracite strike has brought the people of this country face to face with the power of a trust to work evil to the public. With winter near at hand and no fuel in sight, millions look upon the approach of cold weather with direful misgiving. It is perfectly understood that the coal trust can bring the strike to an end by yielding to the public demand that the strike issues be submitted to arbitration. The striking miners are now and have been all along willing to submit their cause to impartial judgment and only the obstinacy of the hard coal combine and its indifference to public welfare has prolonged the struggle to the verge of winter. If the widespread suffering now so dismally in prospect actually comes upon the people of the country, it may not be doubted that public indignation will force the enactment of federal laws that are sufficient to reach and effectually deal with situations like the present. If that shall be the case the strike, notwithstanding its accompaniments of enormous losses, inconveniences and suffering, will have purchased somewhat cheaply the protection to which the people are entitled.

TOOK OLD FLAG TO LEESBURG

TATTERED BANNER OF THIRTIETH AT A REUNION.

Famous Emblem Beneath Which Lawton Fought Was Made by Ladies of Fort Wayne.

Guarding with tender care the tattered old flag of the Thirtieth Indiana regiment, C. W. Wilbur and other comrades of that old command left the city today to attend the regimental reunion which is being held at Leesburg, Kosciusko county. There are comparatively few of the gallant old veterans of the Thirtieth regiment yet living in Fort Wayne, but the survivors still have a warm interest in the old organization and a tender regard for the now tattered emblem beneath which they fought at Shiloh and at Stone River. It is one of the treasured features of the annual reunions of the lamented Lawton's old command.

The flag is in the keeping of members of ex-Mayor Randall's family, who permit the veterans to display it at their regimental reunions. The flag was made by patriotic ladies of Fort Wayne in 1861, and presented to the regiment in Kentucky by Hon. F. P. Randall, then mayor of the city. It is the banner beneath which Col. Sien S. Bass was mortally wounded. Carried at Indianapolis at the dedication of the soldiers' monument the old flag attracted unusual attention from the fact that it was a placard announcing that it was the flag of General Lawton's old regiment.

OTHERS AT PIERCECTON.

While the veterans of the Thirtieth are at Leesburg, another famous northern Indiana command—the Forty-fourth regiment, is holding its annual reunion at Piercetown, and among those who went from Fort Wayne this morning to attend the reunion were Leander McGinnis, of Abbot; Jasper Edsall, William Engle, J. M. Kress, A. Dougherty, Captain Kealey, Elliott Ormiston, of Fort Wayne, and Col. Sam B. Sweet, of Indianapolis. None of the regiments that went out from Indiana during the great struggle saw harder service or became better known as a superior fighting organization than the Forty-fourth. Among the more prominent engagements in which it participated were Fort Donelson, Pittsburg Landing, Perryville, Stone River, Chickamauga, Murfreesboro and many of the later conflicts. The Forty-fourth's reunion will continue tomorrow.

The best record made on picking hops was that of a young lad who picked 458 pounds in one day, earning $3.80 by so doing.

THE MARKETS.

Chicago, Oct. 1.—Firm cables and smaller receipts caused a strong opening in wheat today. There was a good scattering demand with some buying by shorts. December opened a shade to $\frac{1}{2}$ ¢ higher at 68 $\frac{1}{2}$ ¢ to 68 $\frac{3}{4}$ ¢, advanced steadily during the first half hour until the price had reached 69 $\frac{1}{2}$ ¢. The poor grading appeared to influence traders, who are beginning to fear there will be a shortage of contract grade. Minneapolis and Duluth reported receipts of 725 cars, which, with local receipts of 179 cars, with only 20 cars grading, made total receipts for the three points of 904 cars, against 935 cars last week and 918 cars a year ago.

The early strength continued throughout the entire session, and after selling at 87 $\frac{3}{4}$ ¢ December closed $\frac{1}{4}$ ¢ higher at 69 $\frac{1}{4}$ ¢.

Corn opened strong and higher influenced mainly by small receipts, firm cables and unfavorable weather. There was a good trade with the local sentiment inclined to be bullish. Commission houses bought freely. December opened a shade lower to $\frac{1}{2}$ ¢ higher at 45 $\frac{1}{2}$ ¢ to 46¢. A good demand soon carried the price to 46 $\frac{1}{2}$ ¢. Local receipts were 69 cars with 15 cars of contract grade.

The market continued strong with good commission house buying. December closed $\frac{1}{2}$ ¢ higher at 47 $\frac{1}{2}$ ¢ to 47 $\frac{3}{4}$ ¢.

In sympathy with the strength shown in other grains and on a decreased movement oats opened firm, but trading was light. December opened a shade higher at 30 $\frac{1}{2}$ ¢ and advanced steadily from the opening until 31 $\frac{1}{2}$ ¢ was touched. Local receipts were 131 cars.

Provisions were again weak due to lower prices of hogs at the yards. Trading on the whole was dull, but a fair demand for October lard was manifested. January pork opened $\frac{1}{4}$ ¢ lower at \$15.02 $\frac{1}{2}$, but the early loss was soon more than regained; the market advancing to \$15.22 $\frac{1}{2}$; January lard opened $\frac{1}{2}$ ¢ higher at \$8.60, and ribs unchanged at \$5.05.

THE DAY ON WALL STREET.

New York, Oct. 1.—Opening prices showed some sharp losses. The buoyant rise at the close yesterday offered attractive profits and many were eager to avail themselves this morning. The denial of the report of the coal strike settlement also prompted selling. There were 3,500 shares of Reading sold simultaneously at 69 $\frac{1}{2}$ ¢ to 70¢, compared with 71 $\frac{1}{2}$ ¢ last night, and losses of 1 to $\frac{1}{2}$ ¢ were scored by St. Paul, Louisville, Manhattan, Norfolk and Western and Tennessee Coal. A number of the specialties showed gains and United States Steel rose nearly a point, but the general tone was weak. Louisville extended its loss to $\frac{3}{4}$ ¢. The general market yielded an additional fraction. The large buying of United States Steel was supplemented by supporting orders in Reading and Southern Railway and the three stocks were carried a point or more over last night. Manhattan also recovered to a point over last night and the whole market turned strong in sympathy. Some less important stocks made equal gains and Louisville recovered 2 points. The market became very irregular near 11 o'clock and sold off again on realizing. Reactions ran to a point or more in Reading, St. Paul, Union Pacific and Louisville.

Offerings increased as the market declined and there was a return to the lowest for St. Paul, Union Pacific and Louisville. The general list did not respond to a rise of over a point in Colorado Fuel, Tennessee Coal, Hooking Coal and People's Gas. Call money loaned at 9 per cent. Business became semi-stagnant towards noon, but the tone was firmer. Norfolk and Western rose about a point over last night.

The money rate ran up to 10 per cent after 2 o'clock and stocks weakened. Louisville dropped to five under last night and St. Paul 2. There were reactions of 1 to $\frac{1}{2}$ ¢ in Reading, Baltimore and Ohio, Norfolk and Western, Illinois Central, Great Northern preferred, Manhattan, Colorado Fuel, Lead and Tennessee Coal.

The closing was moderately active and easy. Bonds were steady.

A QUARTER OFF.

The Drummer's Reward For Saving a Drowning Man.

"I was driving into a New Hampshire village in a buggy three or four years ago," said a drummer from the city, "when I saw a man fall off a bridge into the river. As he came to the surface I saw that he could not swim, and I off with my coat and boots and plunged in. He came near drowning me, but at last I got him to the bank, and he proved to be the proprietor of one of the village inns. He was mighty grateful in words, and he shook hands with me about ten times an hour until bedtime. He told everybody what a hero I was and almost made me proud, and he threw out hints that such merit an inn would not go unwarded. I passed that night and the next day and night at his inn, and then, being ready to depart, I asked for my bill. Mine host had begun to read off considerably. In fact, he had come to believe that if let alone he would have rescued himself. Therefore I wasn't altogether unprepared for his words when he said:

"Look here now, your bill is $3.75, but—"

"You'll knock the 75 cents off the bill?"

"No, sir, I'll take off a quarter, and I'll expect you to send me all the customers you can to even up things." "I refused his discount," sighed the drummer, "and when ready to go, he held out his hand for a shake and said:

"Well, I'm glad it came my way to save your life, and I hope you'll make good use of it." M. QUAD.

A Man Who Husbled.

On the North Carolina side of the Cumberland mountains I had to ask for food and lodgings of a squatter who lived in a miserable shanty and said I would have to sleep on the door, but nevertheless made me welcome. All we had for supper was corn bread, but later on I heard the wife saying to her husband:

"Now, then, you git yourself out and hustle fur sunthin' a heap better fur breakfast."

For breakfast there were fried chicken, roast pig, meat yams, fresh eggs and corn coffee, and when it had been eaten the man smiled on me and said:

"I'd be done better if I could, stranger, but by the time I'd stole chickens, pig, eggs and yams the only feller around yere with any real coffee in his house was wide awake and watchin' out for me with a shotgun."

Rescuing a Hero.

"Who is that fellow at the bar?" asked the stranger, addressing the baseball enthusiast sitting next to him in the grand stand.

"That's Bingley," said the other. "I thought so. I've out a warrant for his arrest on an old debt and I shall have to serve it on him as soon as the game is over."

Just then Bingley made a three base hit, bringing in two men, and the crowd went wild.

"Say," shouted the enthusiast, producing a well filled pocketbook, "Mr. What's-your-name, what is the amount of your claim against that man?"—Chicago Tribune.

FOREMAN RESIGNS

CHARLES AGSTER QUILTS GOOD

POSITION AT SHOPS.

TO "BOSSING" A NUMBER OF FELLOW MECHANICS.

WORTHY CLERKS ADVANCED

J. H. HOBROCK DOES RIGHT

THING TO GOOD MEN.

For several months Charles A. Agster has occupied the unique position of foreman of the machine department of the Wabash shops against his will. The position affords a good salary and would be a desirable office for the majority of mechanics, yet Mr. Agster does not want it and he has resigned. Last spring, when Graves Maupin retired from the foremanship, General Foreman Yergens induced Mr. Agster to take the office until he could secure a suitable person. Mr. Agster's administration was, evidently, satisfactory and it was decided he should fill the office just as long as he could be persuaded to act in that capacity. Two months ago he served notice of his desire to relinquish the foremanship and return to the lathe, but no attention was given the matter. Last night Mr. Agster emphatically and absolutely refused to hold the office longer and this morning he remained away from the shop. Frank Frary, one of the best all-around machinists in the shop, is now acting foreman of the department, but whether he will be regularly appointed and will accept remains to be seen. Mr. Frary has filled the position temporarily at various times during the absence of the regular foreman and is familiar with the duties. As stated, the position is a good one and there are plenty of good men willing and anxious to get it. Mr. Yergens will not be long without a foreman for this department. It is understood that Mr. Agster will resume charge of one of the machines in the shop. Several changes also occurred at the Pittsburgh shop clerk's office this morning, being the result of the promotion of W. E. Dartnell to the office of shop clerk at Toledo. Mr. Hobrock has called George T. Scott to the position of assistant shop clerk to succeed Mr. Dartnell and this made an opening for the advancement of C. L. Daseiler and Samuel W. Bostick in the order named. T. E. Byrne has been transferred from Wellsville to the position made vacant by the promotion of Mr. Bostick and the ranks in the force are thus closed up. All of these men have been in the service a good while, Mr. Scott serving twelve years, and are deserving of the advancement that has come to them.

Another change that came to the notice of the reporter this morning was the transfer of Charles Bricker from the Wabash freight house to the position of assistant to Day Baggage-master Louis Leussenhup, to succeed Steve Gordon, who has gone into the shops to learn a trade.

SPEED LIMIT INCREASED.

Notice has been served on Nickel Plate conductors and engineers that the heavy consolidated freight engines can be run at a speed of thirty-five miles per hour, which is an increase of five miles per hour over the old speed limit. There are ten of these big engines in use on the western division of the road and they are giving excellent service.

RETURNS TO NICKEL PLATE.

Vollie Hutzell, a locomotive fireman who has been working on the Wabash for some months, running in and out of Detroit, has returned to the city. He expects to resume his old place on the Nickel Plate road. The change is made in order that the young man may be with his relatives in this city.

AIR BRAKE CAR TO TOLEDO.

The Wabash air brake instruction car, which has been here for three or four weeks goes to Toledo tonight, where it will probably be in service two weeks. This car is one of the best of its kind in the country.

NEW INTERLOCKING PLANT.

Tomorrow the Pennsylvania company will place a sixteen-lever interlocking plant into service at K M tower, one and one-half miles west of Bucyrus, Ohio. At that point there is an important "cross-over" track.

SOME NEW EMPLOYES.

Charles Miller, who had a portion of his right hand crushed and amputated last spring while at work in the Pittsburgh boiler shops, will take a lighter position in the machine shop in a day or two. The thumb and index finger of the crippled hand are whole and will be of considerable service to the young man. J. J. Haas, a boilermaker's helper, has taken a position in the shop and Benjamin Chids and George Byers have secured employment in the round house. J. C. Stelr resigned a position in the latter place this morning.

WILL ATTEND CONVENTION.

The meeting of Loyal lodge, No. 85, Ladies' Auxiliary to the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen, tomorrow evening will be the last meeting before the meeting of the grand lodge in Cleveland next week and the officers of the local lodge are anxious to have a big attendance. Mrs. Ella Anderson, of Texas, first vice grand mistress of the auxiliary, will be there and will accompany Mrs. Cassie Clark, chairman of the grand board of auditors, and Delegate Mrs. Ella Foster to Cleveland in advance of the other people who will go to the convention. These three ladies will leave for that city next Friday. Later Mrs. Violet Lause, mistress of Loyal lodge; Mrs. Sophia Dent, vice mistress; Secretary Jessie D. Wolf and Mrs. Margaret Potts will go to Cleveland to attend the convention.

LOCATING C. R. & M. SHOPS.

The much-discussed question of the location of the C. R. & M. shops has been opened anew by the announcement of a recent visit of President W. A. Bradford to Muncie. In company with local officials a drive was taken all about the city and several sites viewed. The trip was made secretly and no information has been given out. On the same day President Bradford also visited Peru. No official statement has ever been made concerning the location of the shops.

BIG CLOCKS ALL WENT WRONG

WESTERN UNION TIMEKEEPERS OUT OF SERVICE.

Inquisitive Messenger Boy Caused

Trouble When He Wanted to See How It Worked.

The electrical clock service of the Western Union Telegraph company, installed at many points in the downtown portions of the city, was temporarily put out of commission last night by a messenger boy of inquisitive turn of mind, who, during a moment of idleness, concluded to absorb some information as to how the old thing worked, anyway.

The large clocks are electrically connected and automatically controlled. They are presumed to be accurate to the fraction of a second, and are relied upon in hotels, offices and business houses generally where exactness in the matter of time is imperative. The machinery is both delicate and intricate, however, and when the messenger boy began his investigations it took but a moment to put the circuit out of service and stop every clock of the kind in the city.

Then trouble began. From all over town inquiries began pouring in by telephone to the Western Union office. With as much good nature as could be summoned together under the circumstances the situation was explained, and this morning the work of repair was begun. Electrician Pound, the clock expert of the local office, was busy until late this afternoon before all the timepieces were in motion again.

A SENSITIVE POINT.

"What would you do if a colleague told you that you had offered an unwarranted statement?"

"Well," answered Senator Sargnum, "if it was a financial statement that he alluded to, say an expense account or something of that kind, I'd be very much tempted to get angry. It's a pretty serious thing to assail a man's credit nowadays."—Washington Star.

It really "makes home baking easy," and gives nicer, better food than the baker's. There is no baking powder or preparation like it or equalling it for quickly and perfectly making the delicate hot biscuit, hot bread, muffin, cake and pastry.

Perry's New Style Picture Displayed in the Shields Window.

A display that has attracted a great deal of attention today is in the south show window of the Shields Clothing Store. It is a large picture of the members of the firm and employees of the H. Pfeiffer & Sons hardware store. In addition to the pictures of H. Pfeiffer, H. G. Pfeiffer and A. J. Pfeiffer, there are likenesses of the twelve employees of the store. The picture is the work of the Ed Perry Studio, 734 Calhoun street, and is a combination of photography and wash drawing, something new and of which this studio is making a specialty.

Word comes from London that on nearly every important public occasion during the present year Princess Victoria and Queen Alexandra have made diligent use of their cameras, with which they are very expert. perpetual, in a retrospective way, by the happy possibility of reviewing it as often as we will in its preserved picture form. Everything and everybody is being photographed these days. Look pleasant, please!—Boston Herald.

MADE TROUBLE AT HOME.

Last evening Scott Fey, a city employe living at 1110 Erie street, went home in a maudlin condition after having absorbed a fair proportion of his month's pay by drinking beer and whisky. He was drunk and quarrelsome and when his daughter asked him for money for household expenses he refused her and became abusive in his language. Mrs. Fey, who is sick, arose from her bed to quell the disturbance and finally after threatening to put his children out of doors the wagon was sent for and Fey was arrested. This morning he pleaded not guilty to a charge of drunkenness, but several neighbors testified as to his condition and his two daughters, nice looking young girls, reluctantly related the circumstances. Officer Schindleroff, too, was called to the stand and testified that he had received a number of complaints concerning the man's treatment of his family. He was fined $5 and costs. He owns some property and had no difficulty in staying the docket.

ZANGEL CASE DISMISSED.

The case against Joseph Zangel, accused by August Kolkhorst with having purloined his bank roll several nights ago, which case was continued from Monday, was then called and was rather abruptly terminated. The original charge against Zangel was public intoxication, but on this charge he was let go on Monday and was held to await developments in the larceny case. The developments came yesterday when Mrs. Zangel found a roll containing $26, which was supposed to belong to Kolkhorst. After the money was found Kolkhorst refused to file an affidavit against Zangel, although he had previously testified that he saw him take the money from his pocket. Without an affidavit nothing could be done and Zangel was therefore discharged and the two men left the court room together.

POLICE NOTES.

A pocketbook was found yesterday containing a sum of money, which the owner can have by calling at room 25, Bank block.

Officers White and Lavinway were called to 207 East DeWald street last night, where a drunken man was trying to force an entrance into the house. Before the officers arrived the man had departed.

IN JUSTICES' COURTS.

A gentleman named William Rosenbaum is getting business about the justice stores. He has filed two affidavits which will be heard at Huer's. One is against Ed Keever, charging assault and battery upon one "John Smith," whose true name is not known, and the other is against John Kennedy for allowing minors to loiter in his saloon. In the Keever case the offense was committed September 15th, and the joke of it is that Keever got the worst of the scrap. The latter case is on trial this afternoon.

HE MAY RECOVER.

It Costs You Nothing

HAS A NEW GLASS MACHINE

Marion Man's Process Would Do Away With Blowers and Save Manufacturers $70,000 Daily.

Marion, Ind., Oct. 1.—William E. Real, of this city, was granted a patent yesterday on glassmaking device which it is claimed will revolutionize the window and plate-glass industry by doing away with glass blowers and glass blowing machines, and which, if installed in all the glass plants of the country, would, it is claimed, make a difference in the cost of the present output amounting to $70,000 daily. Mr. Real has been working for years on his invention and, it is said, has made satisfactory tests in window glass factories at this city. Electricity plays a prominent part in the manufacture of glass by Mr. Real's process, and the machine which turns out the glass is exceedingly simple. The glass is melted in pots similar to those used in all window-glass factories of the country and the molten glass is allowed to run into a metal pan the size of the sheet of glass required, where it is tempered. The pan is kept at the proper heat, and the sheet of glass is tempered by electricity. It is claimed by the inventor that a sheet of any size and thickness can be made by his process. In making the first experiments the glass was cloudy, full of bubbles and failed to attain a polished surface, but it is claimed that these difficulties have been overcome and that now when the glass is taken from the pan it has a highly polished surface, is much stronger than blown glass, and is perfectly transparent. Plans are making to give the new process a thorough test in a local glass factory.

SWEET MAKING A RECORD.

Noting the piscatorial accomplishments of a recent party of Fort Wayne fishermen at Carp Lake, Mich., N. M. Kellam, proprietor of Pon-She-Wa-ing, the summer home at Oden, Mich., writes The Sentinel to say that all others will be obliged to doff their hats to E. R. Sweet, of this city, who is now a guest at Oden, and has been making the experts there look like rank amateurs. Mr. Kellam says that Mr. Sweet has landed a six-pound rainbow trout from Crooked Lake that is the handsomest specimen he has ever seen, together with a great many pickerel, the largest weighing eight pounds. Charles Bryson, another Fort Wayne man who recently visited Oden, is also featured as a star. In his recent catch there was a whitefish weighing four pounds.

ROBBERS HOLD UP A COACH.

Whiteland, N. Y., Oct. 1.—The stage coach, Pioneer, which makes daily trips between Warwick and Goshen, was held up and robbed by three masked horsemen late yesterday afternoon. The coach was bowling along the road two miles from Florida, N. Y., and at a lonely spot on the road Clinton W. Wisner and Horatio S. Wisner, who own the coach, saw the men on horses suddenly emerge from the dense woods which line the highway. The robbers ordered Mr. Wisner to pull up his horses, and when he refused to do it the highwaymen opened fire with revolvers. Inside the coach were Mrs. J. A. Chamberlain, Mrs. Fred Webster, Mrs. James Fuller, Mrs. Hart and Mrs. Ed Johnson, of Florida, N. Y., and while two of the highwaymen covered the Wisner brothers with their revolvers the third compelled the passengers to give up all their money and valuables.

HEADLESS BODY DISCOVERED

New York, Oct. 1.—The headless and armless body of a young woman was found shortly before noon yesterday floating in the East river at the foot of Sedgwick street, Brooklyn. All the clothing that remained was a pair of very fine Hile thread black stockings and a pair of French high-heeled black shoes. There was no mark on either the shoes or stockings to show where they had been bought. The police are at a loss to account for the way in which the woman met her death and how she came to be in the water. They are not prepared to state that she was murdered, because the head might have been torn from the body after it had drifted about for some time in the water. The woman was about twenty years of age and probably weighed 130 pounds.

SALT COMPANY RECEIVERS.

Trenton, N. J., Oct. 1.—Chancellor Magie at his home in Elizabeth yesterday appointed Frank P. McDermott, of Jersey City, and Nathan S. Beardslee, of Warsaw, N. Y., receivers for the National Salt company. The papers in the case were filed here late yesterday afternoon. The application for a receiver was made by Chauncey H. Strickland, of New York city. The company's liabilities are given at $1,150,000 and the quick assets at $558,000. It is said that the company lost $225,000 during the first six months of the present year and that it stands to lose $35,000 a month because of a contract under which the company was to purchase from the Michigan Salt association and others at a stipulated price about 2,000,000 barrels of salt a year. This contract does not expire until January, 1904.

RETURN OF A BOER FAMILY TO THEIR WAR RUINED HOME-STEAD.

From faraway South Africa comes this snapshot to give a hint of the many pathetic scenes connected with the work of repatriating the Boers. Thousands of burghers who fought grimly and hopelessly until captured are now returning with their families to their old home sites. Instead of the comfortable dwellings which they left, many of them find only the blackened ruins that show "where war's red heel has trod."

UNDERSTUDY OF PRESIDENT

MOODY BOWS AS THE TRAIN SPEEDS PAST STATION.

A Plan That is Often Used—Even Friends Deceived on New England Tour.

Washington, Oct. 1.—Secretary Moody had planned to go west and meet President Roosevelt at St. Louis to accompany him through Illinois, Michigan, Ohio and the east. He was to have been the president's understudy, put on a frock coat and a silk hat, and step out on the rear platform to bow to the people at the smaller stations where the president's special did not stop.

The secretary of the navy did this very successfully on the New England trip. He personated the president before many floating audiences and bowed while the people cheered for Roosevelt. He expected to do the same thing on a part of the western trip.

He is disappointed that the president has been compelled to abandon the trip before it came his turn to accept the plaudits of the people intended for his chief.

This is not a new departure in campaigning. It has been a feature of campaign tours where there is a continuous rush of crowds to see the president or other dignitary. President McKinley had an understudy with him on several of his long trips—a man who looked like the president, who could slip out on the platform and bow to the crowds which the train passed without stopping.

Others who used the plan. President Harrison had an understudy on his trip to the Pacific coast, and Mr. Bryan had an understudy on the train in 1896 and 1900, when he made his campaign from the rear platform of a special. There is no purpose to deceive, but someone must respond to the welcome of those who stand for hours at a small railroad station to see the president's special pass.

It is impossible for the president to rush to the platform every five minutes and also make his speeches and meet the committeemen who come on the train to welcome him. The understudy does this work.

Mr. Moody did it very successfully in New England, where he and President Roosevelt are both well known. The two men bear a striking resemblance to each other. They are about the same height and build, have the same shaped heads, same complexion, and hair and mustache alike. They are very like in their manner of walk and speech.

Mr. Moody, however, rarely wears a frock coat and silk hat. Neither did Roosevelt before he became president, but he now makes these concessions to the dignity of his great office. On the New England trip Mr. Moody provided himself with a frock coat and silk hat, and he donned these to appear on the platform and bow to the people as the train rushed past the small stations.

Even friends deceived. He was entirely successful, and in many places where he was well known he appeared for the president and was mistaken for Roosevelt. This mistaken identity became embarrassing for the secretary of the navy at his own home, Haverhill, Mass.

The train stopped there and the president made a speech. Mr. Moody introduced him and then retired. The crowd was great and many of them did not see the change from Moody to Roosevelt on the platform. The secretary made no speech at all. He merely introduced the president. But afterward he heard of many criticisms from old friends, who were surprised at his making a long speech when they were waiting to hear the president.

They had mistaken the president for their old neighbor and they heard most of the president's speech before they realized the real situation.

The president likes to have one or two members of his cabinet with him on these tours he makes. They do not accompany him as companions spellbinders and they rarely expect to be called upon to speak. They realize that the people come out to see and hear the president, and not members of the cabinet.

It is not a hardship for such men as Secretary Root, Wilson, Shaw and Moody to accompany the president without having an opportunity to speak. They are all good speakers, and they enjoy being a part of the president's audience.

President McKinley tried the experiment of using the members of his cabinet on several tours to give him a breathing spell. He carried the whole cabinet with him on his western tour in 1898, and he had them all contribute to the speech-making.

It was not a great success, for the members who were the least interesting speakers were disposed to consume the most time and disappoint the audiences. They did not know how to express themselves briefly and to the point.

BURGLARS STEAL HARD COAL.

Philadelphia, Oct. 1.—After spending the summer at the seashore H. G. Taylor and family returned to their home at 904 Fairmount avenue last night to find that burglars had been in their house, evidently on Sunday night. Several of the rooms on the first and second floors had been entered and household effects were overturned. Considerable valuable silverware and some jewelry had lain where the thieves could hardly help seeing it, but none of it had been taken. The burglars were after bigger game and got it. When Mr. Taylor went to the seashore he left three tons of anthracite coal in his cellar, and during the last two months he has been congratulating himself that he would not have to worry about the coal strike. But his fond illusion is gone, for the burglars, who spurned silverware and jewels, stole the three tons of coal, carrying it away in a wagon. The coal cost Taylor $16.50 when he bought it. It will cost him about three times that much to replace it.

BLANCHARD-JEWELL.

A pretty wedding occurred at high noon today at the home of Mr. and Mrs. George A. Jewell, 2435 South Webster street, when their eldest daughter, Pearl Etna, was united in marriage to John Hale Blanchard, of Binghamton, N. Y. Youngs, of St. Louis, Mich., an uncle of the bride, in the presence of only near relatives, and following the ceremony a dainty wedding repast was served. The bride is an estimable young lady and has been a teacher in the public schools of Binghamton for the past five years. The groom is a young man of excellent character and is associated with the Haddock-Blanchard and Company of Binghamton. Mr. and Mrs. Blanchard left at 4:30 this afternoon for a short wedding tour and they will be at home to friends after November 1st at 223 Robinson street, Binghamton.

PLAN TO GET COAL TO POOR

NEW YORK TENEMENT DISTRICTS TO BE SERVED.

Hospitals Come Next and Traction Companies Traid—Coal Road President's Action.

New York, Oct. 1.—A plan is said to have been put into operation, at the meeting of coal road presidents just held in this city, for the supplying of coal, first, to the dwellers in the tenement districts; second, to the hospitals, and third, to the transportation companies.

According to the Herald the scheme came up during the weekly discussion of the miners' strike and the object of the presence of R. W. De Forest, who is tenement house commissioner, president of the charity organization society and general counsel of the Central Railroad of New Jersey, was that the other officials might have placed before them the tenement dwellers' crying need of fuel in cold weather.

Mr. De Forest was listened to attentively, and there was not one of the dozen present who did not agree that something must be done. Before the matter was turned over to the sales agents of the companies, who in co-operation with Mr. De Forest, will decide on the best possible methods of proceeding with the work, a tentative plan had been outlined by the meeting.

It was in effect that the companies should unite in forwarding to the city enough coal to serve the desired purpose. Then the sales agents were to have their men, horses and carts ready, and for each cart a route through the lowest sections of the city would be mapped out. In this way the business of the retail dealers would not be affected, as their sales are not made in these locations. The coal will be sold by the pile or the basket or bushel at a rate proportionate to the wholesale price to which the cost of freightage has been added. This will insure to the purchaser who now pays 25 cents for a pile of poor coal, or 75 cents for a bushel, good coal at a less cost than he had to pay even before the strike began and when coal was at its normal price.

With this want filled, the diminishing bins of the various hospitals will be replenished and the street railways will be supplied.

CLUB WOMEN ACTIVE.

Marion, Ind., Oct. 1.—The club women of Marion have taken up the work of municipal reform and commenced, in a businesslike manner, to bring about results. It is the purpose of the women to take up the matter of spitting on the sidewalks, the keeping of boys and girls off the streets at night, the closing of the saloons at the hour prescribed by law, the closing of the saloons on Sunday and, in fact, the enforcement of all laws. The Advance club, the members of which are among the most prominent women of the city, held a meeting Monday and prepared a petition, which was filed with the city clerk, requesting that the council appoint two women on the library board. The women say the mothers have a right to be represented on the board, as they read as much, if not more, than the men, and are in a position to judge of the kind and class of books that should be placed at the disposal of their children.

Key was ground to pieces and parts of his body were found scattered along the track for sixty feet or more. TRIED TO KILL HIMSELF.

New York, Oct. 1.—In financial difficulty as a result of the coal strike, Henry C. Scheel, a coal merchant of this city, tried to kill himself yesterday by shooting. The doctors say there is little hope for him. Mr. Scheel is 45 years of age. He lives with his wife and three children in a handsome residence, and generally has been thought to be prosperous. A relative of Mr. Scheel said he had a large sum of money—about $200,000—tied up in litigation, and that his business was his source of revenue. The disturbance in the coal market had affected his business seriously, causing him to become despondent.

LOOKED AT THEIR COFFINS

MURDERERS ASK INSPECTION BEFORE EXECUTION.

Two Florida Men Exhibit Wonderful Nerve on the Gallows—Make Addresses to Crowd.

Bronson, Fla., Oct. 1.—Theodore Smith and Thomas G. Faircloth, the young white men who killed the aged Lewis couple one month ago, were hanged here today. Both men had wonderful nerve. They had their coffins opened and inspected and commented on them. Faircloth remarked that they were all right, and both men addressed the immense crowd with clear and unbroken voices.

Faircloth was baptized by Rev. J. B. Holley, of Gainesville, in the box which was so contain his coffin, in jail, yesterday morning. Both professed religion and said they were ready to die. The sons and daughters of Lewis witnessed the execution. The bodies were turned over to relatives for interment.

Smith had a young wife and baby. Faircloth was engaged to be married, and expressed a desire to have the ceremony performed preceding the execution, but the sheriff would not permit this to be done.

TRAMP ROBBS BENEFACTOR.

Washington, Ind., Oct. 1.—A poor, friendless German tramp picked up by a countryman here, housed, fed, cared for and then given work, repaid the good deeds lavished upon him by his employer yesterday by stealing his money and attempting to flee the country. About a month ago Paul Inglehart, a German farmer residing near Washington, took in a German tramp, and after he had nursed him, gave him employment. Inglehart is a wealthy farmer and frequently has large sums of money about the house which he kept in a tin box hidden in some of the shelves. Yesterday morning Inglehart came to Washington, and while he was gone the German tramp took advantage of his absence to slip into the house, secure the money, then board a train for Evansville. No one was at home except Inglehart's daughter. The fellow secured $220 and was captured last night in the depot waiting room at Oakland City with $219 in his pocket. The Oakland City officials will be liberally rewarded.

NAME ANOTHER DURAND.

Detroit, Oct. 1.—After a long discussion yesterday afternoon the democratic state central committee selected L. T. Durand, of Saginaw, as the party's candidate for governor. The new nomination was made necessary by the withdrawal of Judge George H. Durand, of Flint, a brother of yesterday's nominee. The fight lay between the gold democrat, who favored L. T. Durand, and the silver leaders, who wanted to nominate State Senator J. W. Helme, of Adrian; Charles H. Sligh, of Grand Rapids, or some other democrat who had come out as a silver man in 1896. As Helme had declared that he would not accept a nomination at the hands of the committee, his name was not presented. On the second formal ballot, the committee stood 14 for Durand and 10 for Sligh, the nomination of Durand being immediately thereafter made unanimous.

KOKOMO GETS THE OLD RATE.

Kokomo, Ind., Oct. 1.—Kokomo natural gas consumers heard the winter schedule yesterday at the same old rate of a $1.50 per stove a note to his wife and four children, and Oil company (the Chicago company), gave out notice last evening that all mixers that had been taken up would be restored to the patrons and that gas would be furnished as usual with no advance in price. The local manager does not guarantee that this rate will be maintained all winter, but it means that the meter will not be introduced. The company has a large supply of gas, as millions of feet are being piped to Chicago daily. The Kokomo council is disposed to raise the price to $2 per stove if the full supply is furnished the patrons. The present service is unsatisfactory, gas being scarce when the weather is cold.

GRIT IN THE BEARINGS

How Rheumatism Affects the Human Mechanism.

Grit in the bearings—every engineer knows how important it is to guard against this trouble—to get rid of it, if it comes; so too every one who has to do with machinery of any kind.

The human body is a more marvelous piece of mechanism than any made by hand. Nature does a deal to keep the body in good repair—in good running order. But people make mistakes—come through carelessness, some through ignorance. Nature sometimes needs help.

Uric acid causes Rheumatism—deposited in the muscles and joints, it acts like grit in the bearings—hinders their action, makes pain and trouble. Every sufferer knows how much.

Athlophoros dissolves the Uric acid—enables the body to get rid of it—helps to the restoration of health and strength. It does this with certainty—proven by the experience of many years.

Exchange comfort for pain. If your druggist doesn't keep it send $1 for a bottle to The Athlophoros Co., New Haven, Conn. It will show you how to rid your bearings of the grit.

Columbus, Ohio, Oct. 1.—The legislature now meeting in special session to draft a new municipal code for Ohio yesterday discussed for an hour the game of ping-pong. Representative Cole insisted upon an amendment to include this game along with pool and billiards and carried his point. Ping-pong, therefore, will remain the subject for municipal legislation in Ohio whenever city officials wish to regulate the game. After spending the day considering the code bill a vote was reached by the senate late in the afternoon. The bill was adopted with but few changes. The Beal law amendment adopted in the senate was offered in the house and defeated.

PRINCE CHUN TAKES BRIDE.

Pekin, Oct. 1.—Prince Chun, brother of the emperor, who went to Berlin to apologize for the murder of Baron Von Ketteler, German minister to China, has been married to a daughter of Yung Lu, grand secretary to the throne and one of the highest and most powerful officials in China. It is understood here that this match was made with the intention of providing an heir to the throne, but this is denied by high Chinese officials.

LOOK FOR TAX REDUCTION.

London, Oct. 1.—The newspapers this morning congratulate Charles Thomson Ritchie, chancellor of the exchequer, upon the prospect of a reduction of taxation in 1903. Sir Michael Hicks-Beach, the former chancellor, in his last budget estimated that the revenue for the current year would show an increase of $45,000,000. A treasury statement just issued shows that the revenue for the first half of the year has given an increase of $36,500,000.

SUICIDE EPIDEMIC IN NAVY.

New York, Oct. 1.—Lieutenant Commander William V. Bronaugh of the United States navy, committed suicide yesterday on the battleship Kearsarge at the navy yard by blowing out his brains with a revolver. Friends believe that he was much worried over the manifold duties of his position as executive officer, which are considered to be more arduous than those of any other position in the navy. Funnell E. Harrington, captain of the Brooklyn navy yard, said: "There is an epidemic of suicide in the navy as sure as there was ever an epidemic of fever." Bronaugh was born in Kentucky and entered the naval academy in 1873.

Base Ball News.

Three more days of play and the last of the games of professional ball will have been played in 1902, and as the season wanes the attendance drops off with alarming abruptness. Philadelphia, which night before last turned out a parade five miles long to celebrate the winning of the pennant by the American league team from that city, scraped together just 372 spectators to see a double-header played by the Philadelphia and Boston National leaguers. At Brooklyn 1,800 persons saw the game. Following are the scores:

PRISON SUNDAY.

Considerable effort is being put forth by the board of state charities and the various boards of county charities to secure a general observance of Prison Sunday, October 26th. The observance of this day in the past has been the means of enlightening public sentiment in regard to the important subjects of prison reform, the treatment of criminals and discharged prisoners, the prevention of crime, and the proper care of dependent and neglected children. Those who are familiar with the conditions existing in nearly every county in the state will realize that these questions merit the deepest thought. While much good has resulted from the observance of Prison Sunday in the past, much yet remains to be done and the board of state charities urgently requests ministers of all denominations to assist by preaching a sermon on the prevention of crime and related subjects October 26th. Several of the district and state organizations have adopted resolutions requesting their ministers to observe the day.

On application, the board will gladly furnish literature which will be helpful in the preparation of appropriate discourses. Address Room 52, State House, Indianapolis.

KILLED BY A TRAIN.

Elwood, Ind., Oct. 1.—Nicholas Rogers, aged 35 years, for forty-five years employed in plate glass factories of the country, was run down by a Pennsylvania switch engine last evening. He was crossing the track carrying a sheet of glass and did not see the engine approaching. Both legs were severed near the thighs and death resulted a few minutes later. Rogers has a divorced wife living in the east, but no relatives in this part of the country.

THE PROPER TREATMENT FOR A SPRAINED ANKLE.

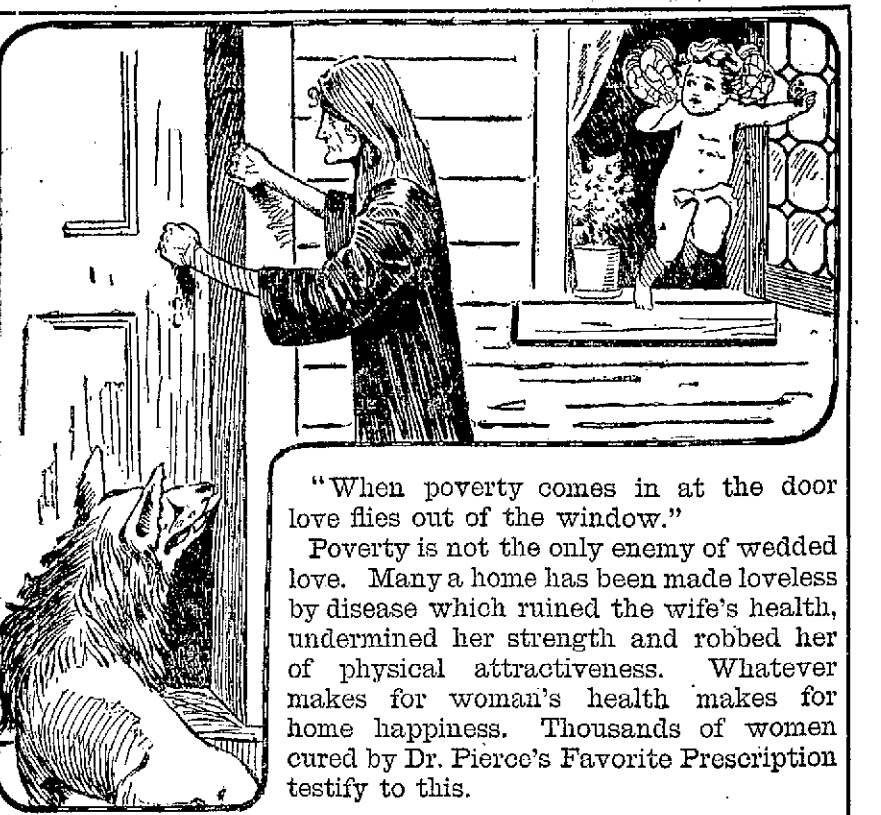

As a rule a man will feel well satisfied if he can hobble around on crutches two or three weeks after spraining his ankle, and it is usually two or three months before he is fully recovered. This is an unnecessary loss of time, for in many cases in which Chamberlain's Pain Balm has been promptly and freely applied, a complete cure has been effected in less than one week's time, and in some cases within three days. For sale by all druggists. 8-14-2mo

HELD ENTHUSIASTIC MEETING.

The local branch of the Irish National association held an enthusiastic meeting in Library hall last evening and discussed the Irish land question, which is causing so much friction between the Irish people and the British government. A number of short and spirited addresses were delivered and a purse of $75 was raised, which will be forwarded to Ireland to help the cause along. William Keough was chairman of last evening's meeting.

WOMAN BEATEN BY WOMAN.

Valparaiso, Ind., Oct. 1.—Mrs. Belle Renitz caught Mrs. Mary Katowski stealing apples from a neighbor's orchard and attempted to capture her. Mrs. Katowski retaliated with a club, inflicting injuries which may prove fatal. She was arrested.

"When poverty comes in at the door love flies out of the window."

Poverty is not the only enemy of wedded love. Many a home has been made loveless by disease which ruined the wife's health, undermined her strength and robbed her of physical attractiveness. Whatever makes for woman's health makes for home happiness. Thousands of women cured by Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription testify to this.

What Makes Women Weak?

The chief contributing cause to woman's weakness and ill-health is her ignorance of the important truth that a woman's general health depends upon the local womanly health. If women knew and understood this fact they would not attempt the impossible feat of developing the general health while ignoring unhealthy local conditions. Money is wasted in "doctoring" for headache, backache, nervousness, sleeplessness and other ills familiar to women, if the treatment of these diseases does not cure the primary disturbing cause—disease of the delicate womanly organs. It is of course possible that there may be general ill-health in spite of sound local health. But it is absolutely impossible that the general health can be good when there are disagreeable and unhealthy drains, inflammation, ulceration or female weakness. The first step to sound health is to cure these diseases, and the quickest and surest cure of womanly diseases is accomplished by the use of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription.

"Words can't express how grateful I am for your kind advice and good medicines," writes Mrs. Ada Brooks, of Kirbyville, Taney Co., Missouri. "I suffered for four years with what four physicians pronounced ulceration and prolapus of the uterus; also inflammation of bladder and urethra. My case was chronic and complicated. When my first child was born (five years ago) I was in a very bad condition. My health had been very poor for some time when I was taken down bed-fast. I was in a critical condition for five months. Had several good physicians, but kept getting worse. Could not bear to be moved from my bed. Had been confined to my bed five months when I wrote to you. I received your reply very soon, and then dismissed my physicians, and began taking Dr. Pierce's medicines. I took eight bottles of his 'Favorite Prescription' and 'Golden Medical Discovery,' and I began to get better at once. In two months I could sit up in a chair, and kept getting better. In four months could do all my housework, including washing and sewing. I think your medicines saved me from the grave."

DANGEROUS IGNORANCE.

Next to the danger of a woman's ignorance of her own needs is the danger of ignorance in the treatment of her diseases. That such ignorance abounds is shown by the testimonials published by permission, and often by request of grateful women who visit other sufferers to know the way to health. The result of this ignorance is that women suffer for years, going from one practitioner to another, trying various medicines, snatching vainly at every straw in their desperate desire for help and healing. It is the cure of such women, suffering from diseases of long standing—diseases which have baffled all physicians and defied all treatments—which has placed Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription in the very front of all put-up medicines designed for the cure

CHAPTER XVIII.

I TRIED to catch a few hours of sleep that morning, but I had difficulty in losing consciousness. When I did forget myself in slumber for a brief time, unpleasant dreams disturbed me, and I awoke with a start.

It was still early in the morning when I dressed and knocked at my master's door. He was sleeping soundly, and I was obliged to rouse him. But I was fearful lest he had been wounded the night before, and I could not leave the house on the mission I had in view until I had ascertained. I shoved his bedroom door open and entered the room. He was lying on his back, his eyes closed, and his hands clasped over his chest. I looked at his face, and I saw that he was dead.

"No, William; not yet," he replied in a sleepy voice. "I am very tired this morning and shall not get up until lunch time. Have a good lunch for me, and I will be ready."

His face was pale, but not more so than usual after his night visits to Dr. Squires.

"There is nothing wrong with you this morning, I hope?" I ventured to remark.

"No, William, except that I'm very weary and sleepy. Why do you ask?" He looked inquiringly at me, and I stammered:

"Nothing, only you look pale. I thought maybe you were ill."

"No, I'm not sick—merely tired. Leave me for a few hours."

I closed the door softly, satisfied that he was unhurt.

After giving directions to the servants about an early lunch for my master, I left the house and started on a brisk walk toward Mr. Johnson's house. It was essential that I should have an interview with him before he saw my master or talked to anybody about the previous night's robbery.

He was at breakfast when I was ushered into the library. I insisted upon seeing him alone and immediately, urging the servant to report that my business was very important.

"Ten minutes later he appeared in the library. He was a man past middle age, stout of figure and stern of feature. I realized that he was a man not easily turned from any course which he considered just. He bowed stiffly upon entering and said:

"I haven't the pleasure of knowing you, I believe."

I was dressed in a new suit of clothes, and I delivered myself that I would pass for a gentleman among strangers.

"No, sir, but that is not necessary," I said briskly and with the air of one of authority. "I have come to talk with you about last night's robbery."

He started visibly and then said smilingly:

"Ah, I see! You're a detective?"

I made no direct reply to this, but added:

"I think the robbers who have recently been terrorizing the neighborhood will soon be captured."

He smiled again and said:

"Possibly. I know something about it that may lead to important results."

"I know that," I answered, "and that is why I have come thus early to see you."

"How do you know it?" he responded.

"That isn't the point. I not only know that you know a good deal about it, but I know exactly the information that leads you to think you can expose the robbers."

He looked inquisitively at me and then said frostily:

"What is it that I know or that you think I know?"

I looked around the room as if I expected somebody might be listening.

"We are alone," he said shortly.

"You recognized the burglar last night before you shot at him," I said impressively.

He gave a startled look at me and stammered:

"Who told you—that my wife told anybody—she was the only one."

"Well, well, I don't understand how you found it out."

The man was completely mystified, as I hoped he would be, and I continued with a smile on my own face:

"Now, if you believe that I know what I'm doing, we will enter into the details of my mission here this morning."

"Go on, I'm ready for anything."

"First, then, what did you intend to do with this information?"

"I hadn't made up my mind," he said doubtfully, taking a seat in an easy chair near me.

"Well, you either intended to inform the police or accuse Mr. Goddard of the crime to his own face."

"Yes, one or the other, but most likely the latter. Mr. Goddard's father and I were great friends. I should hate to see his name stained with dishonor."

"I thought as much," I replied, "and it is to prevent you from making a mistake that I have called this morning. I know more about this matter than you do."

"I'm sorry. You seem to know all that I do. It's wonderful how you know it, for I swear I never mentioned the matter to any one except my wife, and she's seen nobody but the servants."

"But other eyes may have recognized the man," I said suggestively.

"That's true. I never thought of that. Did some of my servants see him?"

"Don't worry yourself," I interrupted. "The person who saw him will not mention it further. I've fixed all that."

"Well, well; so early in the morning, and you seem to have arranged everything before I could decide upon the first step."

"It's my business," I added. Then continuing I said in a low voice:

"But Mr. Goddard is not the only one concerned in these robberies. There is another and I think a more dangerous neighbor who is implicated in the crimes. But he is too wary to be caught easily. He directs the whole matter, but keeps in the background. He must be caught at least and punished if Mr. Goddard is to suffer. It would be a sin to let him escape and the lesser criminal punished."

"Yes, yes, of course; by all means."

"Then we must work together. I've laid a plan by which I can prove the guilt of this other party. If you will work with me and do as I tell you, we can face him with his guilt in spite of all his skillfulness."

"Anything that you think best. Propose your plan."

"Well, first, I want you to keep the matter strictly quiet and not mention to a living soul that you recognized the burglar last night. Let the detectives work on the case as usual, but warn your wife not to commit herself. Is she brave enough to do this?"

"Yes; Ellen is only too ready to shield Mr. Goddard. I cannot convince her that I was earnest in recognizing him."

"So much the better. Let her continue to think so and pretend that you think you might have been mistaken. Then next Tuesday night I shall ask you and another person who is largely interested in Mr. Goddard than yourself—Miss Stetson, in short—to accompany me to one of your neighbor's houses. He will be away that night, and I will show you some of the secrets of his little game that he conceals in his house. When he returns late at night, we can confront him with the crime. I shall then leave it with you and Miss Stetson as to what course to pursue. If we arrest the man, Mr. Goddard will have to be implicated; if we bail him from the place with the threat of exposure, we can shield Mr. Goddard and give him another chance. That, in short, is my plan. Will you co-operate with me?"

"With pleasure. It's an admirable arrangement. I believe we ought to give Charles another opportunity. I can hardly find the heart to leave him arrested."

"Well, I leave that entirely to you and Miss Stetson."

"And Miss Stetson will agree with me."

I said nothing in reply, but after giving a few more directions I withdrew, promising to call for him on the evening specified to conduct him to the house of his unknown neighbor.

CHAPTER XIX.

WITH the danger of exposure of my master removed, I returned home with a lighter heart. I reached there in time to have the lunch served to him.

He had not noticed my absence, and I congratulated myself upon a shrewd piece of work. I had at last determined to bring matters to a climax.

It was two days after this before I got the opportunity to call upon Miss Stetson. I wanted to redeem her promise made on the day of her horseback accident.

I had learned through an accident that Dr. Squires would be away on Tuesday and that he would not return until late at night. I did not know what his mission was or where he was going. All that concerned me was that he would be absent and the house would be left in charge of his old servant.

It was the knowledge of this that made me anxious to appoint Tuesday for the little experiment I had in mind.

When I reached the Stetson mansion, I was informed that Miss Stetson was engaged. The servants knew me by this time, and while they did not exactly treat me as one of their number they did not regard me as the contemptuous of a gentleman. I was told to take a seat until the person who was with Miss Stetson had gone.

My name was not even carried up to her, but I was too much preoccupied with my thoughts to resent this incivility, and I made the most of it by taking a comfortable seat in the waiting room. This room opened right off the front parlor, and just back of that was the library.

For some time I remained seated there busily occupied with my own thoughts, but as time passed I became restless and anxious to make a change. Not hearing any voices, I rose from my seat and walked quietly into the parlor to look at some of the beautiful pictures hanging on the walls. This liberty, I knew, Miss Stetson would not resent.

As I stepped into the parlor I heard the sound of voices proceeding from the library. I would have retreated to the waiting room if the voice of Dr. Squires had not arrested my attention. I could not resist the temptation to listen to him, for, knowing what he was, I thought anything was fair enough for him, and I played the eavesdropper.

"The portieres between the parlor and library were drawn, and through their thick folds I could just catch the words of the two. The first words of the doctor informed me that I had reached the place at a critical moment."

"Miss Belle, you do me injustice to say that I do not like pleasant surroundings and that I am not like other men in my tastes. No man appreciates a home more than I do."

"I did not mean to insinuate that, doctor," Miss Stetson replied. "I merely said that I thought it so strange you should like to live in that old deserted, haunted mansion."

"I do not like to live there. It was not a matter of choice with me. I was poor and had to in order to carry out my experiments."

"But couldn't you find more congenial quarters without going to any more expense?"

"No—that is, none that would suit my purpose."

"There was a short pause, then the doctor continued:

"But, Miss Belle, my time in the old haunted mansion is short. I'm going to leave it. My fortune has improved, and I shall seek better quarters."

"His discovery proved successful so that you can realize some money on it?" she asked eagerly.

"No, not exactly that," he stammered. "But I have been fortunate in another way. A distant relative has died and left his money to me. It is not much, but enough to keep me in comfort for the balance of my life. It will amount to about $100,000."

"Indeed! I'm so glad to hear it, doctor. Nobody will congratulate you more heartily than I, for I think you deserve it."

"It is kind of you to say it," he said slowly, "but there is one other thing necessary to complete my happiness."

Another pause followed in which I could imagine their exchange of looks.

"I would not mention this, Miss Belle, if I did not have your own word for it that you would never marry Charles," the doctor began again in a labored voice. "But when you told me that you would not marry him I thought that there was no longer any reason why I should curb my own love for you. Miss Belle, I loved you before that, and I love you now. I am no longer young; I'm not rich, but I'll have a competency enough for both of us. I love you, and your love alone will make me happy."

I trembled more than the doctor to catch the reply.

"Please don't talk to me like that, doctor," she said in a voice that had a piteous ring to it. "It is impossible."

"Why impossible? Nothing is impossible if we but will it. Why can you not love me and marry me?"

"You do not understand, doctor. Please do not mention it again. It is very—hard for me to say this."

"But will you not give me your reasons?" he continued passionately. "You will not marry Charles?"

"No, never."

"Not even if I cure him of every taint of leprosy?"

"No! I would be afraid to. I would forever think of it—dread it—believe that it would show itself again in our children."

"Then why cannot you love me—marry me?"

"There was a slight rustle of her dress as if she had risen to face him. Then she replied slowly, but calmly:

"Because, doctor, I still love Charles. I cannot marry him, but that does not alter my love for him. I still love him and always shall love him. Is not that an answer to your question? Would you ask me to marry you when you knew I loved another man?"

An almost inarticulate sound escaped his lips. He also rose from his seat. I heard him move toward the portieres, and I withdrew rapidly to the waiting room.

"There was a murmur of their voices for a few moments, and then the portieres parted and they entered the parlor. I coughed purposely to attract their attention. Miss Stetson moved toward me, and I arose to meet her.

"I fear the maid did not send up my name," I said in reply to her inquiring look. "She said you were engaged and that I could wait here."

"Have you been waiting long?" she asked.

"No; only half a minute," I replied boldly.

"You have a message from Mr. Goddard for me?"

"Yes, a private one, but I can wait." The doctor walked out of the parlor and gave me a close, scrutinizing glance, but I was absorbed in studying the ceiling and did not meet his eyes. He passed toward the front door and bid his hostess good day. Then I walked into the library to take his place.

do not come with a message from my master, but with one from myself."

"She looked inquiringly at me and waved her hand toward a seat while she dropped wearily into another."

"No; I will stand," I said, "until I find out whether my request will be granted."

"Your request? What is it?"

"How much was still dwelling upon the interview that had just closed, and the purpose of my words had hardly attracted her attention."

"Oh, I see," she added a moment later, with the faintest indication of a smile on her face. "You have come to ask me to fulfill my promise of the other day."

"Exactly," I said.

"Well, what is it?"

"As I told you then, it will seem very strange to you, and I now repeat

"Then you will not grant my request?"

"But you will find in the end it will be for your own good."

"Explain yourself," she said, showing more interest. "I do not like so much mystery."

"But, ma'am, it will be a mystery to you for some time yet. I cannot explain matters even now—not until my request is fulfilled."

She looked at me with amusement and then added:

"Well, go on. I've promised, and I'll keep my word."

"My request is this: I want you to accompany me to a certain house on next Tuesday evening at 9 o'clock sharp, where I will explain and show you things that will greatly alter your views of some of your friends."

"Why, sir, that is an absurd proposition," she said, rising with some dignity.

"Then you will not grant my request?" I said quietly.

"How can I under such circumstances?"

"You promised."

"Yes, anything in reason. But you ask me to go to a strange house with you in the evening, and what assurance have I that?"

"I understand, ma'am; you have no confidence in me. I reminded you at the time you promised to do what I asked of you that it would require confidence and belief in me. I see now that you haven't it."

"You are severe. I did not say that," she answered in a less repelling voice.

"No, but you implied as much. But I will not test your faith in me any more. I will give you assurances that my purposes are honorable."

She waited for me to proceed while a flush overspread her face.

"You know Mr. Johnson?" I asked.

"Yes, very well."

"He is a friend of yours, and I believe you would trust yourself with him after dark?"

She nodded affirmatively.

"Well, Mr. Johnson is in my secret, and he will accompany us. Under these circumstances will you go with me next Tuesday evening?"

"Why, of course. It must be all right if Mr. Johnson approves of it."

"He does. He will call here before I do on that evening, and the three of us will go together."

"But where do we go?" she asked inquisitively.

"I cannot tell you now. You will know that night."

"How mysterious you seem! I do not understand it at all."

"You will find in time. But one other request. Will you promise to keep this matter absolutely secret? Do not even tell Mr. Goddard or Dr. Squires. If you do, everything will be spoiled, and, mark my word, you will repent of it if you do."

"I will promise," she answered.

"And keep your promise better than you did the other one," I could not refrain from saying, for her lack of trust in me had piqued me a little.

"Yes, I will redeem my promise this time without question."

"Thank you. Then on Tuesday at a quarter to 9 Mr. Johnson will call for you, and you will be ready to accompany him. I will call for both of you at 9 o'clock. I will guarantee that you will return to your home without hurt or injury."

I hastily withdrew then. She accompanied me to the door. She was watching me peculiarly, trying to decide, I imagine, whether I was a crank or a sane man and whether she had made a mistake or not in promising to accompany me.

INTERESTING TALES ABOUT STABLE FOLK.

W. H. MacDonald's Strange Dressing Room Visitor—Richard Obee Tells a Story.

Actors have many strange experiences, and W. H. MacDonald, now playing the part of Little John in the Hustonians' production of "Robin Hood" at the Academy of Music, thinks he has had one of the strangest in his life. The incident was of recent occurrence, and for a few moments he thought he surely must be either insane or in a dream.

Mr. MacDonald was in his dressing room shortly before 8 o'clock, making up for his part, when suddenly he looked up and saw in his mirror a horse's head, apparently looking over his shoulder.

For a moment he was dumfounded. Was there in the old academy a horse ghost or was he on the verge of madness? He closed his eyes and looked again. Yes, there was still in the mirror a horse's head, its gaze directed appallingly to him.

With an effort Mr. MacDonald drew himself together and started to run out. As he turned he collided with a horse. Then he saw that it was a real live horse which had somehow made its way to his dressing room.

He called, and a doorkeeper and two policemen came to the door. They explained the presence of the horse. They said that they had seen the horse galloping down Fourteenth street and, thinking it was astray, had started after it, when it disappeared in the side entrance of the academy. Following it, they saw it trot across the stage toward Mr. MacDonald's door.

The doorkeeper remembered the horse as one belonging to a nearby liveryman that had been used last spring in the "Lucie Tom's Cabin" performance. One of the members of the company, who formerly occupied Mr. MacDonald's room, had had a habit of feeding it sugar daily at this door.

The horse had in some way got loose and returned for his sugar.

Richard Obee is acting manager of Jules Murray's various amusement enterprises, which include the companies of Lewis Morrison, Rose Coghlan, Paul Gilmore and Joseph Arthur's scenic melodrama "Lost River." In his office the other day there was a discussion over the peculiar names of some of the theatrical representatives, and Obee was rallied by the others on the singularity of his one of the number remarking that every time he heard it he could scarcely help repeating the old livery refrain, "Oh, be joyful!"

Thereupon Obee proceeded to tell of a curious juxtaposition of names on the door plates of his neighborhood in the town where he used to live. So unique was this succession of names that unbelieving strangers hearing of it would come to the neighborhood to prove the truth of what they had heard.

The brass plate on his father's door bore the name "Obee." On that of

Just beyond this row of residences was a school with an attendance of a thousand noisy pupils. The strange sequence of names one day attracted the attention of one of them, who promptly pointed it out to another boy, who called it out in a loud voice. This was immediately taken up by the others with "Obee, a Goodman, had a way of fightin'" finally became the school yell of the lusty lugged boys of the neighborhood, who continued it for some years.

"When Mr. Goodman was gathered to his fathers and the family moved away," said Obee, "we thought the cry, which was annoying at times, would fall into innocuous desuetude, but it only became modified into 'Obee had a way of fightin',' which lasted until my family left the vicinity."

SLAUGHTER AT NEW GUINEA

Tugoria Headhunters Attack the Native Villages and Carry Off Many Heads.

Victoria, B. C., Oct. 1.—Shortly before the steamer Moana left Sydney official dispatches arrived from New Guinea telling of inter-tribal fights and massacres. The Tugoria headhunters had attacked the Sanana villages and killed a large number and carried off many heads. The Sanana afterwards attacked the Tugoria.

Sir F. P. Winter, administrator of New Guinea, wires the governor general of Australia: "Proceeding down the Morehead after their raid on the Sanana villages, the Tugoria were encountered by a large hunting party of our natives, amongst whom were some Sanana men. This party at once attacked the Tugoria, killed several of them and forced them to abandon their canoes and take to flight in the bush. On my arrival here from Australia I at once empowered J. I. Carr to communicate direct with the Dutch authorities at Macao respecting the Tugoria and our police and Dutch soldiers will form a punitive expedition."

With regard to alleged ruthless massacres by the Tugoria, Sir Francis Winter writes: "Since my arrival in this possession more natives have been ruthlessly massacred by other natives within a radius of twenty miles from the house in which I am now writing than have during this period been killed in this possession by the Tugoria. A village on the Lerok river, distant not more than six hours walk from this house, was nearly exterminated."

INSPECTOR LEAVES CITY.

The police and health departments are somewhat disappointed at the result of the visit of Inspector Clark, of the immigration department, who came here to investigate the case of a Syrian named Alick, who was held as a suspected violator of the immigration laws. Inspector Clark not only failed to identify the man, but he likewise failed to keep his appointments with the local officers who had agreed to accompany him on a visit to the Syrian colony here. Instead, he put in his time with Hugh Keegan, attorney for the Syrian contingent. The Syrian vote is supposed to be held in the hollow of the republican hand and in this country and township it cuts considerable figure. With an election approaching it might look as bad policy for a republican administration to discourage Syrian voters by too drastic enforcement of immigration laws, which may account for the inspector's neglect to improve his opportunities. Anyway, he has gone and the infected Syrians still remain.

AN ORIENTAL CUSTOM.

A South Sea islander said of his race: "As soon as we open our mouths a lie is born." The Chinese acknowledge without shame the same of themselves. It may be true among western nations that "the affairs of life hinge upon confidence," but in the east, and especially in China, they hinge upon suspicion. There are few Chinese who attach any importance to keeping an engagement. Most of them are like the man who, being accused of having broken his promise, replied that it was of no consequence, as he could make another just as good. The Chinese say that one should never refuse a request in an abrupt manner; on the contrary, he should grant it in form, although with no intention to do so in substance. "Put him off till tomorrow and then until another tomorrow. Thus you comfort his heart," they say.—Chicago News.

Rheumatism

The liniment bottle and flannel strip are familiar objects in nearly every household. They are the weapons that have been used for generations to fight old Rheumatism, and are about as effective in the battle with this giant disease as the blunderbuss of our forefathers would be in modern warfare.

Rheumatism is caused by an acid, sour condition of the blood. It is filled with acid, irritating matter that settles in the joints, muscles and nerves, and liniments and oils do nothing. They are applied externally can dislodge these gritty, corroding particles. They were deposited there by the blood and can be reached only through the blood. Rubbing with liniments sometimes relieve temporarily the aches and pains, but these are only symptoms which are liable to return with every change of the weather; the real disease lies deeper, the blood and system are infected. Rheumatism cannot be radically and permanently cured until the blood has been purified, and no remedy does this so thoroughly as S. S. S. It neutralizes the acids and sends a stream of rich, strong blood to the affected parts, which dissolves and washes out all foreign materials, and the sufferer obtains happy relief from the torturing pains. S. S. S. contains no poison or other mineral, but is a perfect vegetable blood purifier and most exhilarating tonic. Our physicians will advise, without charge, all who write about their case, and we will send free our special book on Rheumatism and its treatment.

FOR THE STRATTON MILLIONS

Case Taken Out of County Court on Writ of Certiorari—Son is Ready to Compromise.

Colorado Springs, Col., Oct. 1.—An annoying delay occurred yesterday in the fight over the Stratton millions. Judge Orr, of the county court, cited the executors to appear before him at 9 o'clock and show cause why they would not turn over the estate to the three administrators appointed by him several days ago. At the stipulated hour none of the executors appeared, but in their stead N. S. Gandy, junior counsel, came into court for the executors and Karl C. Schuyler for the administrators. Judge Orr ordered a continuance of the case until 2 o'clock.

I. Harry Stratton announced yesterday afternoon that he had been approached by one of the executors appointed by his father in the will with a proposition to compromise the contest case, and answered that he would withdraw his suit upon a settlement of $1,000,000. Attorneys for the executors, administrators and the son were in conference nearly all day, and the announcement of young Stratton is believed to be the conclusion that has been arrived at.

At 3 o'clock the entire matter was taken out of the county court and transferred to the district court on a writ of certiorari issued by Judge Cunningham, of the district court. This writ was secured by the executors and was agreed to by stipulation by the administrators. Judge Orr was notified at 3 o'clock of the action by Attorney Gandy, junior counsel for the executors. The hearing of the order is that the action of the court is not aside, that the case now stands just as it did before the appointment of administrators by Judge Orr, and further, that the appointment of administrators is practically annulled.

GHOULS IN TOILS

GANG OF BODY-SNATCHERS RUN TO GROUND.

SENSATION IN INDIANAPOLIS

PROMINENT PHYSICIAN IS IMPLICATED.

DESOLATE WHOLE CEMETERY

OVER ONE HUNDRED BODIES HAVE BEEN STOLEN.

Indianapolis, Ind., Sept. 29.—Wholesale robbery of graves in the cemeteries about Indianapolis, which have been going on for some time, was brought to a close early this morning by the arrest of a gang of seven negroes. Warrants were issued today for a prominent physician, the demonstrator of anatomy in the Central College of Physicians and Surgeons, in which two stolen bodies were found about ten days ago; an interne in the college and the janitor.

Rufus Cantrell, one of the negroes, made a complete confession and implicated the others. He said a physician accompanied the negroes on several of the grave robbing expeditions.

ROBBED ONE HUNDRED GRAVES.

Nearly one hundred graves have been robbed by the ghouls during the last three months. The detectives say the negroes were armed with shot-guns and equipped with horses and wagons. The bodies were sold to different colleges which opened their winter terms last week. The detectives say that a complete investigation will probably show that even the graves in Crown Hill were desecrated by the ghouls. Cantrell said that he and the other negroes visited Mount Jackson cemetery almost every time anyone was buried in the place. "We pretty near cleaned that place out," he said. "I don't believe that we have missed anybody that has been buried there since July."

Cantrell said there were some graves that were not disturbed because the flowers and other articles on top were placed in such a manner that the band did not feel confident of restoring the graves to their former appearance.

When the negroes were brought into court all weakened and confessed that they were members of an organized gang of ghouls.

A CEMETERY EMPTIED.

Mount Jackson, a cemetery just across the river, west of the city, has been left practically empty by the grave robbers.

"Rufus" was the password at the medical college and when it was uttered by the returning ghouls the doors of the college would always be opened without questioning. The statement that Crown Hill, one of the best guarded cemeteries in the United States, has probably been invaded by the grave robbers has caused indignation. One of the ghouls said it usually took about twenty-five minutes to rob a grave.

The law of Indiana is very strict and provides for effective punishment of ghouls by long imprisonment. The negroes under arrest are Walter Daniels, Sol Grady, Sam Martin, Garfield Buckner, William Jones, Rufus Cantrell and Isaac Donnell.

All live in Indianapolis.

LIVELY MOVEMENT IN FARMS

REAL ESTATE IN EASTERN ALLEN COUNTY ACTIVE.

Great Corn Crop and Many Improvements Attract Large Number of Investors.

Within the past few weeks there has been unusual activity in real estate circles, centered about farming lands, in the eastern part of Allen county, and a large number of fine tracts have changed hands. The extensive corn crop in that section this year has drawn especial attention to the fertility of the land, and many speculators are buying property in Jackson and contiguous townships.

Discussing the situation on Monday, E. H. McDonald, assistant secretary of the Fort Wayne Trust company, said: "There has been a wonderful development of that portion of the county during the past twenty-five years, and land which a quarter of a century ago was a drug on the market at $6 to $10 per acre, now commands from $50 to $75 an acre. This has been due, of course, to the ditches and under drainage, as well as to the other improvements upon the property. I remember that not more than twenty-five years ago I owned a tract of land in Jackson township. It was practically covered with water, and one could hardly imagine it could ever be converted into tillable land. I finally sold it for $8 per acre. Today it is easily worth $80. There has been a wonderful development of that section of our county, and the soil is very deep and practically inexhaustible in its fertility."

GEN. ALGER TO BE SENATOR

Detroit, Sept. 29.—Gen. R. A. Alger, former secretary of war, today formally accepted Governor Bliss' tender of the ad interim appointment

"Governor A. T. Bliss, Saginaw, Mich.—I duly received your telegram of the 27th inst., tendering me the appointment of United States senator to succeed the late Senator McMillan. With a deep sense of the responsibility and the honor I accept the appointment with many thanks. (Signed.) "R. A. Alger."

QUITS AFTER LONG SERVICE

S. E. UNTHANK RETIRES FROM RAILWAY MAIL SERVICE.

Has Been Running Into Fort Wayne Twenty-One Years and is Very Well Known.

S. E. Unthank, one of the best known railway postal clerks in this section of the state, and who has been running into Fort Wayne regularly for the past twenty-one years, has retired from the service and will henceforth devote his attention to agricultural pursuits.

For nearly a quarter of a century Mr. Unthank has been handling the mail upon the Lake Erie and Western railroad, running from Fort Wayne to Cincinnati, and he has a large number of friends in this city. His resignation was submitted on the twenty-first anniversary of his entrance into the service and it came as a great surprise to Mr. Unthank's acquaintances.

His record has been an excellent one and he retires from the exacting duties of the postal service to superintend property interests which he has acquired as the result of his labors. He owns two fine farms near Spiceland, which has been his home, as well as several other pieces of property, and is preparing to spend his remaining years in comfort.

ACCUSES JUDGE OF PERJURY.

Freehold, N. J., Sept. 29.—Lawyer Samuel A. Patterson, of Asbury Park, came here today and made another complaint against former Justice Samuel Stanton, of Hoboken, accusing him of perjury in connection with the Bennett-Bigger conspiracy case. The complaint charges Stanton with giving false testimony in the Bennett will case. An effort will be made to have him indicted by the Monmouth county grand jury on this charge. Dr. Hendrick and ex-Judge Stanton, who were arrested on a charge of conspiracy during the proceedings in the Bennett will case at Long Branch on Friday last, are still in jail here, not having been able to furnish bail.

IN GOOD SPIRITS

THE PRESIDENT CONTINUES TO DO WELL.

CONDITION IS SATISFACTORY

HIS DOCTORS AUTHORIZE A FAVORABLE STATEMENT.

THE OLD WOUND REOPENED

BONE OF INJURED LEG GIVEN A SCRAPING.

Washington, Sept. 29.—At the white house this morning it was stated that the president spent a very good night, in fact the best since he was brought here from Indianapolis.

After the president's physicians had dressed his wound this morning the following statement was prepared and issued by Secretary Cortelyou:

"The condition of the wound is satisfactory. The temperature this morning is normal. The patient slept well and at present is occupying a rolling chair. He is cheerful and from the beginning has shown neither impatience nor restlessness, but has carried out the directions of the physicians with scrupulous care. Since the use of the asperating needle to evacuate the sac on the 22nd inst., which left no wound, there has been no operation until yesterday. (Signed.) "George B. Cortelyou, "Secretary to the President."

11 a. m., Sept. 29, 1902. Surgeon General Rixey, of the navy; Surgeon General O'Reilly, of the army; Dr. Schaffer, the bone specialist from New York, and Dr. Lung, were present when the wound was dressed. They were at the temporary white house on Jackson place about three-quarters of an hour. The slight rise in the temperature, noted yesterday before the second operation, had disappeared this morning and this was considered especially favorable by the physicians.

NO OCCASION FOR ALARM.

The physicians insist today that the condition of the president's wound gives no occasion for alarm. The president himself continues cheerful and seemingly regards the wound as a trivial matter. The fact that a second operation was necessary evidently caused considerable apprehension in the public mind, as the number of callers who stopped at the temporary white house was larger than on any previous day since the president returned to Washington. A goodly number of telegrams also were received. To all reassuring replies were sent.

Among the callers today were Governor Crane, of Massachusetts; Secretary Root, Postmaster General Payne, Representatives Dalzell, of Pennsylvania, and Lessor, of New York; Superintendent of Census Merriam and Commissioner of the General Land Office Hermann. Only Governor Crane and the two members of the cabinet were admitted to the president's bedroom. Governor Crane was with the president when the accident occurred at Pittsfield. His visit was a personal one, so it was said at the white house, and without political significance.

Dr. Schaffer will remain here several days.

THE WOUND REOPENED.

President Roosevelt's wound was opened yesterday and the shin bone was slightly scraped. The operation was performed, not because the patient's condition was not satisfactory, but to remove all doubt as to the nature and extent of the injury and to facilitate recovery. Cocaine was applied to the leg, after the president had been placed upon the operating table. Dr. Shaffer, a well known New York specialist and an expert in such matters, who is also an old family physician of the president's, opened the wound to the bone, and Dr. Rixey, who was President McKinley's physician and who is now surgeon general in the navy, lightly scraped the bone. The bone was found in good condition, and perfect drainage was established.

The president bravely and unflinchingly watched the operation, and shares the belief expressed by the physicians that the operation, while it was not absolutely necessary, will materially aid his recovery. It can be stated authoritatively that absolutely nothing unfavorable was disclosed by the operation. The president and his physicians now know, beyond the shadow of a doubt, the exact nature of the injury, and the operation demonstrated that it has been properly treated. The slight rise in the president's temperature during the last few days has invariably been followed by a lower temperature at night, a favorable condition.

There is no excuse for apprehension. The president is suffering little pain, is bright and cheerful and is only annoyed because he is unable to get around with his usual vigor.

MANY TYPHOID CASES.

Physicians are reporting many cases of typhoid fever in the city. This morning Alva Reed, residing at Pearl and Fulton streets, was announced as very ill from the disease, and his father, James Reed, is at Hope hospital under treatment for the same malady. A little son of Frank Gaskill, 1208 Erie street, is also suffering from the fever.

HIS FIRST VISIT IN 36 YEARS

A. H. ORR, OF BELMONT COUNTY, OHIO, IN THE CITY.

Was a Member of Fort Wayne's First Fire Brigade—Is the Guest of His Brother, J. W. Orr.

A. H. Orr, of Belmont county, Ohio, a resident of this city from 1833 until 1866, is in the city for a few days' visit and is the guest of his brother, John W. Orr, secretary and treasurer of the Mayflower mills. It is Mr. Orr's first visit to Fort Wayne since the close of the civil war and he says Fort Wayne is scarcely recognizable, so wonderful has been the growth of the city since he left it nearly two score years ago. To a Sentinel reporter Mr. Orr on Monday talked most entertainingly of the city as he knew it in the '60s. Mr. Orr was a member of one of the early fire companies and remembers many an exciting experience during the days of the old "man-power" engines. He is one of the few survivors of the first regular fire company organized in Fort Wayne.

Mr. Orr was stricken with smallpox in 1864 and the disease left him practically sightless. He has made his home in Belmont county for many years and is one of the most prominent and highly respected men in the county. "Fort Wayne is my ideal city," said Mr. Orr, "and I regard it as one of the best cities in the country. In the Fort Wayne of today, with its extensive manufacturing, its handsome business houses and residences, beautiful streets and the numerous railroads running in all directions, it is hard to recognize the little town I left in the '60s, and I would not have believed such progress possible unless I had seen it for myself."

HAS LOCATED IN THE WEST

DR. W. E. STEMEN WILL NOT RETURN TO FORT WAYNE.

Resigns Place in Medical College Faculty and Successor Will Be Chosen Wednesday.

Dr. William E. Stemen, who, with his wife, left some months ago for an extended outing in the west, has decided not to return to Fort Wayne, and has located in Colorado Springs, Colo., for the practice of his profession.

Dr. Stemen returned to Fort Wayne just at the close of a long service as surgeon of the United States army in the Philippines two years ago and formed a partnership with his father, Dr. C. B. Stemen. The exacting duties of his professional life began to impair his health, however, and it was on this account that Dr. Stemen determined upon an outing in the west.

It has proven immensely beneficial, and Dr. Stemen is now in excellent health, but physicians there advise him not to return to the Indiana climate, and he has determined to remain in Colorado, where he has already engaged in practice. Dr. Stemen has, therefore, forwarded his resignation as lecturer on osteology in the Fort Wayne College of Medicine. The faculty of the college will hold a meeting Wednesday evening to choose his successor.

BOCK WILL RECOVER.

Mr. Bock, the boilermaker who fell from the top of one of the big iron pillars at the new Pennsylvania shops Saturday, is getting along nicely. The internal injuries have not developed anything serious and no trouble is apprehended from that source. The attending surgeons expect the patient to get well.

A scheme is on foot for the consolidation of the independent telephone exchanges at South Whitley, Columbia City and Churubusco.

EMILE ZOLA DEAD

GREAT FRENCH NOVELIST IS FOUND DEAD IN ROOM.

ASPHYXIATION THE CAUSE

RESULTED FROM ESCAPE OF GAS FROM STOVE.

WIFE SERIOUSLY OVERCOME

SOME RUMORS OF SUICIDE ARE HEARD.

Paris, Sept. 29.—Emile Zola, the novelist, who was born in Paris April 2, 1840, died this morning.

Zola was found dead in his house from asphyxiation. His wife is gravely ill. It is said that the novelist's death was accidental.

Zola was asphyxiated by fumes from a stove, the pipes of which are said to have been out of order. At the same time it is stated that there are indications of suicide.

JUST RETURNED TO PARIS.

Zola and his wife returned to Paris yesterday after spending three months in the country. It is hoped that Madame Zola will survive.

Zola returned to his Paris home from his country house at Medan, and owing to a sudden spell of cold weather here he ordered the heating stove in his bedroom to be lighted. The stove burned badly, but Zola and his wife retired at 10 o'clock last night, and the servants, not hearing any movement in the apartment this morning, entered the bedroom at 9:30 and found Madame Zola lying on the bed, inanimate. Zola was lying half out of bed, with his head and shoulders on the floor and his legs on the bed. Doctors were summoned, but they failed to restore Zola to life. After prolonged efforts they resuscitated Madame Zola.

A SUICIDE RUMOR.

The rumor circulated regarding Zola's supposed suicide from poison was based on the fact that ejections from his stomach were found on the floor, but the doctors say they came from Zola's dog, which was also in the bedroom and which did not suffer from asphyxiation. Zola dined with a good appetite yesterday evening and the servants of the household ate of the same dishes. Nothing unusual was heard in the bedroom during the night.

Some workmen arrived at the Zola residence at half-past 9 this morning in order to make certain repairs in Zola's bedroom, but the servants had already become alarmed at hearing no sound from the room and decided to enter it and burst the door open. A slight odor of carbonic gas was at once noticed and the bodies of the novelist and his wife were found in the positions already described.

TRIED TO RISE.

Zola had evidently been awakened by a choking sensation, tried to rise, but was overcome by the fumes, which apparently escaped from the defective stove. The windows were immediately opened, doctors and a commissary of police were summoned and the utmost efforts were made to revive the novelist and his wife, but the former had already succumbed. Madame Zola regained consciousness at about noon. She now lies in a state of complete prostration.

An improvement in her condition is anxiously awaited in order to obtain further light on the occurrence.

DIFFERENCE OF OPINION.

A druggist who was the first to arrive at the house in order to attend Zola and his wife said:

"When I entered the bedroom M. Zola was partly lying on the floor amid matter thrown up from his stomach. No special odor likely to cause asphyxiation was then distinguishable. The two victims, moreover, did not present exclusive symptoms of asphyxiation. Their faces were contorted and their lips were bloodless, but not violet color."

"I think it probable that the accident was caused by inhaling heavy carbonic gas, which lay mainly below the level of the high bed. M. Zola and his wife were thus not suffocated on the bed. M. Zola was awakened by the effect of the gas and tried to rise, but he was seized with vomiting, fainted and thus fell to the floor, where he was suffocated by the gas. His wife was also overcome, but less so than her husband."

The commissary of police, in his report to the prefect of Paris, said: "The heating stove was not lighted and there was no odor of gas. It is believed that his death was due to accidental poisoning by drugs. Two little dogs found in the bedroom are alive."

The commissary of police, in a second report, endorsed the medical opinion that Zola's death was accidental and due to asphyxiation.

Dr. Leyrmand, who attended the victims, is quoted as saying in an interview published this afternoon that the plate of the stove was still warm and that the ejections came from a dog.

The prefect has ordered the city architect to examine the bedroom in which Zola died and has issued instructions that an analysis be made of his blood and of the atmosphere of his room.

Zola had been resting from literary work since he finished his book or "The Truth."

The obituary notices pay tribute to Zola's high literary talent. The Temps says French letters have suffered a loss which will be keenly felt. The newspapers judge Zola's role in the Dreyfus affair according to political bias.

Emile Zola, a French novelist of the naturalistic school of fiction, was born in Paris, April 2, 1840, and educated at the Lycee St. Louis. He began life in the publishing house of Messrs. Hachette et Cie, but in 1865 passed from that to the Figaro, in which he wrote some of his early studies of Parisian low life. He was also a contributor to the Voltaire and his native abilities and force of character soon enabled him to become a writer of remarkable power. He first appeared as a novelist in "Cometes a Ninon," (1863); "La Confession de Claude," (1865); "La Veue d'une Morte," (1866), and "Les Mysteres de Marseille," (1867). In this latter year he began to attract attention by his coarse, but powerful delineation of the crimes, weaknesses and loathsomeness of Parisian social life. In 1888 M. Zola was made a chevalier of the Legion of Honor and 1891 was elected president of the French Society of Men of Letters. He repeatedly aspired to a seat in the

WHEAT UP TO 95

REACHES HIGHEST PRICE IN OVER FOUR YEARS.

SHORTS GIVEN A SQUEEZE

SEPTEMBER OPTION GOES UP WITH A RUSH.

HIGHEST SINCE LEITER DEAL

BROKERAGE FIRM INVOKES THE COURTS.

Chicago, Sept. 30.—September wheat sold on the board of trade today at 95 cents, which is the highest price on that cereal since the great deal in '98. The cause of the high price today was the fact that all the available supply was practically cornered. However, when trading opened this morning it was seen that there was still a considerable number who had not made good their contracts. The opening was $\frac{1}{2}$ to $\frac{3}{4}$ higher at 88c to 88 $\frac{1}{2}$ c and quickly advanced to 90 cents, around which figure there was considerable selling and a decline to 88c followed. Later the shorts again renewed their efforts to cover and the price rose in five minutes from 90 to 95 cents.

The brokerage firm of H. H. Walls, members of the board of trade, today filed a petition asking for a temporary injunction against Armour & Co., J. J. Townsend, the board of trade and others to prevent what is technically known as the "endorsing down of margins." This is practically the same action as was asked for in the recent corner in oats. The cause of the petition was the alleged cornering of September wheat by one or two local houses.

At 95 cents there was a halt in the advancing figures, shorts apparently having succeeded in supplying their needs. The close was at the high price, with a gain of $\frac{1}{4}$ cents over yesterday's close.

MUCH EXCITEMENT CAUSED

BY DISCLOSURES OF GRAVE ROBBER.

General Search to Be Made in the Smaller Cemeteries Around Indianapolis.

Indianapolis, Ind., Sept. 30.—The confession of Rufus Cantrell, the alleged grave robber, who was arrested yesterday, has caused the utmost excitement among those who have friends and relatives buried in the smaller cemeteries. Many are preparing to open the graves of friends who have been buried within the last three months to see if the bodies have been taken. The prisoners were before a magistrate today, but the case was continued until October 28. A search for the body of Miss Glendora Gales last night failed of accomplishing its object and only a few bodies were found in the college vaults. It is charged that many stolen bodies have been hidden.

TWO ARE ENLISTED.

Thus far Lieutenant D. M. Wood, who is in the city at the head of the naval recruiting party, has secured two recruits for Uncle Sam's fighting ships. They are John Edison Wilson, 18 years old, 614 Lafayette street, Fort Wayne; and Walter E. Duglay, age 18, of Churubusco. Both enlisted as landsmen for training. Nine applicants presented themselves on the opening day and six today. Of the nine yesterday, three were passed and two are yet to secure parental consent to their enlistment. Of today's applicants, none passed the physical examination.

CAPTURED THE THIEF.

This afternoon Deputy Sheriff Ryan and Hugonard captured John Rothweiler at New Haven, and he has been brought to the city and put behind the bars. Rothweiler is accused of stealing some tools from the Otto house.

WEDDED LAST EVENING.

At the residence of Mr. and Mrs. E. H. Bookwalter, 119 West Williams street, Monday evening, occurred the marriage of J. Brilhart, of Bourbon, Ind., and Miss Etta Ferrin, of this city. Rev. Daniel Mackley was the officiating clergyman. The groom is a prosperous commission man at Bourbon, where Mr. and Mrs. Brilhart will be at home to their friends after next week.

END TOBACCO WAR

RIVAL AMERICAN AND BRITISH INTERESTS UNITE.

BIG INTERNATIONAL TRUST

BIG CONCERNS MERGED TO CONTROL WORLD'S TRADE.

OFFICIAL STATEMENT MADE

GIGANTIC TRUST IS FIRST OF WORLD-WIDE SCOPE.

London, Sept. 27.—The tobacco war has been ended by the amalgamation of the American and British interests. An official statement covering the details and subscribed by the officers of both combines will be given out later.

Referring to the termination of the conflict an official of the American company said to a representative of The Associated Press:

"It is the first combination, to my mind, on right lines, and one that assures real unity of interests where powerful American and English concerns go out hand in hand to seek the trade of the rest of the world. It has been a difficult matter, requiring the most careful consideration. The negotiations have been proceeding since August 10. It was a subject which could not be discussed in the press while they were in progress, but now that they are concluded we have decided to issue an authoritative statement to head off garbled accounts. Personally, I think the lines on which this combination is formed are destined to affect the larger field of general Anglo-American commercial relations."

The official announcement shows that the amalgamation of the British and American interests takes the form of a new company, to be known as the British-American Tobacco Co., in which both the Imperial and American companies are represented. The American and Imperial companies agree to respect each other's domestic trade, while the British-American Tobacco Co. will compete for the trade of all the rest of the world. The papers were finally signed today. The new company will be registered in London on Monday.

OFFICIAL STATEMENT.

The text of the official statement is as follows:

"The business of Ogdens, limited, has been transferred to the Imperial Tobacco Co., and the export businesses of the Imperial, Ogdens and the American Tobacco Co., and its allies, have been amalgamated and a joint company is in course of formation under the name of the British-American Tobacco Co., limited. The result is that the Imperial company will, as agreed between the hitherto competing parties, be left in possession of the trade of the United Kingdom, while the American company is not to be disturbed in the United States or Cuba, and the British-American Co. will compete for the trade of the other parts of the world. The Imperial company will pay for the good will of Ogdens' business in ordinary shares, ranking with the similar shares of the original vendors behind the 5½ per cent. preference shares of that company, and will pay for the tangible assets of Ogdens in cash.

"J. B. Duke, R. H. Walters and Thomas Ogden will be elected to seats in the Imperial board and the first directors of the British-American Co. will consist of Sir William Henry Wills, J. B. Duke, J. B. Cobb, H. H. Wills, W. R. Harris, C. E. Lambert, W. W. Fuller, W. G. Player, C. C. Dula, Hugo Von R. Cunliffe Owen, Percival S. Hill, Thomas Gracey, W. B. Ogden, Thomas Ogden, R. H. Walters, P. R. Walters, Percy Ogden and Harold Roberts.

"The transfer of Ogdens' English business will take effect Sept. 30 and from that day it will be in the hands of the Imperial company.

"It is believed this combination is the first attempt to unite any great international industry and its progress will be watched with interest everywhere. It may mark a new development in the direction of British and American interests joining hands, instead of competing against each other in the sphere of commerce."

TO LEAVE ALLEN COUNTY.

It will be a source of deep regret to hundreds of warm personal friends of Jacob Colter, of Arcola, to learn that he is preparing to leave Allen county to take up his residence permanently in Ohio. He has disposed of his large interests at Arcola and will move his saw mills from that place, Fort Wayne and Maples to points in Ohio. He will make Bucyrus his place of residence. Mr. Colter is one of the best citizens of Allen county, a man of high character, most estimable qualities and splendid moral influences. He has been actively identified with Sunday school and other church work and his assistance will be greatly missed. The kindly wishes and affection of a host of friends will go with him to his new home.

'WILL MAKE NO SPEECHES.

Unless present plans are changed the republicans will make no speeches in Allen county during the present campaign. The republicans are pinning their faith to the gumshoe variety of campaigning and Chairman Harris stated last Saturday that it was not the present intention of the committee to announce any speeches whatever unless toward the close of the campaign the state committee should see fit to send Senator Fairbanks, Senator Beveridge or some other of the heavier republican artillery into the county for a speech or two.

GENERAL ALGER WILL WIN

D. M. FERRY OUT OF SENATORIAL RACE.

He Formally Announces Withdrawal and Will Support Alger's Candidacy.

Detroit, Mich., Sept. 27.—Dr. J. B. Kennedy, manager of Dexter M. Ferry's campaign for the United States senate, announced at 1 o'clock today that Mr. Ferry had withdrawn from the contest. This decision on the part of Mr. Ferry was the result of a conference of party leaders which lasted most of the morning. Mr. Ferry made public this letter:

"Under existing conditions I have decided to withdraw my candidacy for the vacancy in the United States senate from this state. I believe that this course will tend to promote harmony and thus be for the best interests of the republican party.

"General Alger is a republican; he is also my friend and fellow townsman, and from this time forward I shall support his candidacy for the position named. D. M. Ferry."

W. C. McMillan, son of the late Senator McMillan and leader of the McMillan forces in the state, who were supporting Mr. Ferry's candidacy, said:

"Mr. Ferry has indicated the course he desires his friends to follow. I for one shall follow his wishes."

Gen. R. A. Alger's election to the United States senate is now considered practically assured. The Journal (republican) in its last edition this afternoon will say:

"By the withdrawal of Mr. Ferry all friction in the republican party is removed and the utmost harmony prevails. General Alger and Mr. William C. McMillan are socially intimate friends and now their political aspirations are identical. General Alger will get the senatorship and Mr. McMillan's power will be stronger than before, and he has been virtually leader of the party in this state for eight years. This is a condition perfectly satisfactory to General Alger."

ACCIDENTALLY SHOT IN FOOT.

Roy Pollock, a young man 21 years old, living near the Packard Organ factory, was accidentally shot in the foot by a companion this morning, while the latter was preparing to take a shot at some pigeons. The bullet, which was a .22-calibre, imbedded itself in one of the bones of the young man's left foot and inflicted a very painful wound. Dr. C. E. Barnett dressed the injury.

BUYS A $10,000 FARM.

Beeks Erick has just purchased the Frederick W. Geiseling farm of 160 acres, three miles north of the city, for which he paid $10,000. It is a most desirable tract of land. Mr. Erick recently located in Fort Wayne, coming from Oklahoma, and is one of the men behind the proposed Fort Wayne and Northern electric line.

A NEW JERSEY EDITOR'S TESTIMONIAL.

M. T. Lynch, editor of the Phillipsburg, N. J., Daily Post, writes: "I have used many kinds of medicine for coughs and colds in my family, but never anything so good as Foley's Honey and Tar. I cannot say too much in praise of it." For sale by Dreier & Bro. and Pellens & Polster.

ONE IS HELD UP.

The petition of James Warner for discharge has been suspended by Judge Baker upon the application of Judge W. G. Colerick, who is attorney for the Redden estate, which is a creditor of Mr. Warner. It is set forth by those who object to the discharge of the bankrupt that certain conveyances from Warner to his son were fraudulent, and the remonstrants were given ten days in which to file a bill of specifications.

IT WAS A WHOPPER.

Hon. T. E. Ellison has long entertained the opinion that no other Allen county farm is quite equal to Mondamin Meadows, and he succeeded today in bringing a very large representation of the residents in the vicinity of West Wayne and Fulton streets around to his way of thinking. It was all accomplished by means of a mushroom brought in from the farm last Friday. The mushroom might be technically termed a "whopper," for it weighed a total of nine and a half pounds. Circumference measurement parallel with the ground was 47½ inches, while in the longitudinal direction the circumference was 38½ inches. The mushroom grew wild and totally eclipses other growths of its class with the single exception of a mushroom grown upon the Meadows farm several years ago that weighed 11½ pounds.

NEGRO BURNED AT THE STAKE

MISSISSIPPI MOB METES OUT AN AWFUL DEATH.

Colored Fiend Confesses to Many Crimes and Says His Fate is Only Just.

Corinth, Miss., Sept. 29.—Having confessed to three murders, a robbery and numerous assaults on women, and having set the day when he should be burned at the stake by a mob, Tom Clark, a negro, voluntarily gave the signal to set ablaze his funeral pyre yesterday. He watched the husband and brother of his last victim light the huge pile of fagots on top of which the mob had chained him to an iron post. Then as the flames leaped up and engulfed him he writhed amid the awful torture, but at the same time admitted that he deserved his fate, while he warned parents to safeguard their children by a proper bringing-up against such a death.

Hundreds of citizens took part in the burning, for the negro's last victim had been the wife of a prominent man and the country was aroused by the atrocity of the crime as never before in the history of Mississippi. The crime for which Clark died was the assault and murder of Mrs. Carey Whitfield on August 19.

CROWDS BUILD PYRE.

Incoming trains had brought hundreds of people into the city to witness the execution. The crowds became so great that at mid-day the main street was ordered cleared and the announcement was made that it had been decided to burn Clark at 3:30 o'clock in the afternoon. This statement caused much excitement and surging crowds of people began to gather about the place selected for the enactment of the tragedy.

At 2 o'clock pine fagots and larger pieces of wood were carefully laid about an iron stake which had been driven deep into the ground, and half an hour later it was announced that all was in readiness.

PRISONER LED TO CEMETERY.

At 3 o'clock the prisoner, heavily manacled, was taken from the jail by a posse of armed men, and followed by a large and excited crowd of men and boys, was led to the east gate of the negro cemetery in the western part of the city. The negro was securely fastened to the iron stake. He was then asked if he cared to make a statement. He said that he deserved the fate prepared for him and asked that a letter be delivered to his mother and brother. He appealed to his brother to raise his children properly, admonishing them to beware of evil company. Finally the word was given to fire the funeral pile.

WHITFIELDS APPLY TORCH.

The husband and brother of Clark's victim stepped forward and applied torches and in a moment the flames leaped upward, enveloping the trembling negro in smoke and fire. The clothing of the doomed man was soon ignited, and as the flames grew hotter the skin began to parch. The negro moaned piteously at this juncture and the agonizing look on his face told of the torture he was undergoing. Finally his head fell forward on his breast and in a few minutes all was over.

The flames were fed by the crowd until the body was burned to a crisp. Then the gathering in an orderly manner dispersed and the town soon assumed its normal condition.

STORY OF CRIME AND ARREST.

Last August Mrs. Whitfield was found dead in her home. Her head had been almost severed, a razor having been used in the bloody work. Both Whitfield and his wife were related to several of the most prominent families in the south and the indignation of the people knew no bounds. Corinth and the surrounding country was scoured in an effort to apprehend the murderer, but diligent search failed to disclose his identity. Two detectives from Chicago were employed, but their efforts were fruitless.

Clark had trouble with his wife and she threatened to disclose a secret. Officers heard of this and arrested the woman. She told enough to warrant the belief that Clark had murdered Mrs. Whitfield. Clark was arrested and Saturday was brought before a committee of twelve citizens at Corinth.

CONFESSES CRIMES.

Clark confessed the murder when first locked up. He also said that several years ago he killed two men on an excursion train in Mississippi. He had also attacked a negro woman and stole $1,500 from a physician at French Camp, Miss. Clark said that he had never been suspected of committing any of these crimes and had covered up his tracks in a way to deceive the officers of the law.

After hearing the confession the committee decided that the negro should be hanged from a telegraph pole in the street. Clark said that he deserved death, but asked that the execution be delayed a day so that he could have a farewell interview with his mother and brother, who lived in Memphis. The request was granted and the two relatives were telegraphed for, but the message did not reach them.

French academy, but its conservative members obstinately refused to admit him. In 1894 he published "Lourdes," a novel which gave grave offense to the Roman Catholics in its lurid descriptions of the pilgrimages of the faithful to the Pyrenean town of that name. In consequence the strictures on Roman Catholic credulity contained in the book, its author was denied audience of the pope on the occasion of a recent visit to Rome. In 1895 the great realist published "Rome," in which is a vivid description of the papal court and its entourage.

It was M. Zola's championship of Captain Dreyfus, the French army officer who was degraded and deported to Devil's Island for life, on a charge of revealing military secrets, that raised the great novelist to his highest pitch of fame. His "I accuse" letter brought him a trial for his utterances and finally he was banished from France. Abroad he continued his fight for the persecuted Jewish captain and in the end won his fight by forcing the French government to a retrial of the whole case, in 1899.

DRINK CAUSED HER LOSS

SALOONKEEPER SUED ON AN UNUSUAL CHARGE.

Mrs. Wall Alleges That Liquor Was Cause of the Murder of Her Husband—Courts.

"State of Indiana ex rel. Emma Walls vs. Sylvanus F. Bailey et al.; damages on retailer's bond; demand, $8,000," is the title of a suit filed in the county clerk's office yesterday afternoon. The parties to the suit live at Dixon, on the Indiana side of the state line, and Bailey is a saloonkeeper. Last July the defendant sold whisky and other intoxicants to John Moneymaker, who was already drunk and who subsequently got into an altercation with William Walls, husband of the plaintiff, whom he assaulted with such violence that he died. The assault was on the other side of the line and Moneymaker is held for the crime in Ohio. Now comes Mrs. Walls charging that through the sale of liquor to her husband's assailant she was deprived of her protector and provider and is now left with her children to provide for herself and them, wherefore she claims she is damaged and sues to recover the amount named from Bailey and his bondsmen.

BIG DAMAGE SUIT.

Last Friday Breen & Morris filed a suit against the New York, Chicago and St. Louis railroad on behalf of Frank J. Gallagher, asking for damages in the sum of $20,000. Gallagher was a brakeman employed by the Nickel Plate company and the complaint alleges that on September 26, 1900, while so employed and in the discharge of his duties as brakeman, and by no fault, carelessness or negligence on his own part, he was run over by a company's car at Lockwood, near Hammond, and suffered such injuries as necessitated the amputation of one of his legs. The complaint further avers that he was taken to Hammond, where the company placed him under the care of a certain Dr. Clark, who, the complaint alleges, was incompetent and who performed the amputation in a bungling and unskillful manner. The wound did not heal and by reason of the unskillful manner in which the operation was performed a second operation had to be resorted to, which, while it improved conditions somewhat, left the victim a helpless cripple for life and has kept him out of employment all the time and an invalid most of the time since. For this damage clearly set out in the allegation, a gross sum of $20,000 is asked for. The accident occurred just two years ago today and suit was deferred in hope of making a settlement out of court. After two years the statute of limitation would have barred action, for which reason the suit was instituted and filed today. The plaintiff is a young man and is married.

STEIN GIVES CASH BAIL.

Samuel A. Stein was released from the custody of the sheriff, who was holding him in default of bail to answer to three charges of forgery, as found by the recent grand jury. His bond was fixed at $500 in each case, making $1,500 in all, and was furnished by depositing that sum in gold coin with County Clerk Belot. The money was furnished by Stein's father-in-law, living at Nappanee, who put up $1,000, and three other Fort Wayne men, who put up $500 between them.

SOLD HARD CIDER.

Charles Vandellier, of New Haven, was indicted by the grand jury for selling liquor without a license and was arrested last Friday by Deputy Sheriff Huguenaud. This morning he came to the city and furnished bond in the sum of $100. Vandellier is not a saloonkeeper, but he did make some cider for vinegar and sold some while it was still hard cider and before it reached the vinegar stage. It was just right to make drunk come, and it did; therefore the indictment.

DIVORCES PRAYED FOR.

Lucinda Nidlinger complains of her husband, George Nidlinger, and says that he does not provide for her and that they have lived apart for over six years, wherefore she prays that the separation be legalized. She also asks for the custody of their child.

In the suit of Barnett vs. the Fort Wayne Traction company for damages, a change of venue from the superior court was prayed for and the case was sent to Whitley county.

On Tuesday over 3,500 persons were carried up and down the court house elevator. The highest previous record for a day was 2,665. On Tuesday a record was kept until that figure was passed, and it is estimated that at least 1,000 persons were carried after the count was abandoned.

With a later venture of the same sort he was more successful.

The daughter was united in marriage to Luther G. Hursch, who died several years ago, and since that time the widow has made her home with her daughter. WHIPPED BY WHITECAPPERS

SULLIVAN COUNTY MAN IS BRUTALLY BEATEN.

Missing City Treasurer of Wabash Has Returned—General News of the State.

Sullivan, Ind., Sept. 30.—The epidemic of whitecapping which has broken out in this part of the state has reached this county. Early yesterday morning a mob of masked men went to the Gilmore coal mines northeast of this city where James Arthur is employed as a night watchman, and beat him into insensibility. Arthur was making the rounds of the mines when the men, who had been concealed in the yards, pounced upon him and tied him to a tree where he was whipped with heavy switches until he fell unconscious. Arthur says the men wore masks and had white sheets wound around them. He says he is confident he could identify some of his assailants and arrests are expected. Arthur says the whitecappers accused him of having beaten his wife and warned him to desist from the practice, but he claims he was accused wrongfully, and that he was beaten by the mob without any provocation whatever.

DRINK CURE CAUSES SUIT.

Anderson, Ind., Sept. 30.—George W. Overshimer, a farmer in the north part of this county, filed a sensational suit yesterday against his sister, Mrs. Laura J. Hosier, for $5,000 damages. The sister's husband and the husband's wife have been dead for fifteen years and the two lived together all this time in happiness. Mr. Overshimer was a hard drinker and the sister, having read of an alcoholic cure, procured some of it and for several weeks put it in his coffee without his knowledge. The brother was rendered invalid by a bad stomach and he was reduced in flesh from 180 to 120 pounds. The brother and sister each are worth $25,000. The brother still drinks.

ARSENIC IS PLACED IN BEANS.

Vincennes, Ind., Sept. 30.—Hudson Autler, his wife Emily and five children are lying at the point of death from arsenical poisoning at their home in this city. Autler and his eldest sons, Alfred and Edward, are in the lumber business. The case is clothed in mystery. The Autlers were in the best of health until they dined, when all became violently ill and were seized with vomiting spells, excepting a younger son, Ralph, who declined to partake of a mess of beans. While the dinner was being prepared members of the family were temporarily away from the house, and it is supposed that during this interval arsenic was placed in the cooking beans.

DEAFNESS IS CURED BY FALL.

Hammond, Ind., Sept. 30.—Several months ago Frank Ebert met with an accident that completely destroyed his hearing in one ear. He tried all kinds of remedies without success. While painting a few days ago he fell off a stepladder and the paint bucket struck him on top of the head. His deafness immediately disappeared and now he hears as well as ever.

QUEER MIX-UP IN MARRIAGES.

South Bend, Ind., Sept. 29.—A petition has been filed by Alonzo C. Kinnaman for the annulment of his marriage to Lucy Kinnaman, who was Lucy Fleck, of St. Louis, Mo. Kinnaman was married to Mrs. Fleck twenty-two years ago. He has discovered that Anna Kinnaman, who was Anna Mead, the woman he married in 1876 and afterward believed dead, is alive. He has wedded two women, both widows. Each is older than he, the second Mrs. Kinnaman being twenty years his senior. He married Lucy Kinnaman after he had been told that Anna Kinnaman was dead. Anna Kinnaman married a man named Fisher in South Bend after she had been informed that Kinnaman had died in St. Louis. For years Kinnaman and Anna Kinnaman, or Mrs. Fisher, have lived within a few hundred miles of each other, each believing that the other was dead. After twenty-two years the death of Kinnaman's father at Flora, Ill., led to the discovery that both Kinnaman and Mrs. Kinnaman were alive and well and that each had contracted a second marriage.

OHIO OAK IN DEMAND.

Railway companies in this part of the country are now looking to the state of Ohio for a good portion of their oak timber. Some years ago Indiana had the best oak timber in the middle states and while it lasted the consumers of that class of timber let the Ohio product alone. Now that the Indiana forests have disappeared, or been depleted of their fine oak, the mill and lumber men have turned their attention to Ohio. The Sentinel mentioned the removal of Mr. Colter, a well known mill man of Allen county, to that state a few days ago. The Pennsylvania company is getting a great deal of oak lumber in the vicinity of Loudonville and Wooster, Ohio, a section of country that was supposed to have been cleared of all its valuable timber over a third of a century ago.

WEDNESDAY, OCT. 1, 1902.

Emile Zola is dead. Mercurial Paris will now shed its tears at the bier of the man on whom erstwhile they clamored to spit.

Up to date the campaign in Indiana has not been of a character to greatly disturb business, nor, indeed, much else. It is a very quiet, nice, really genteel sort of struggle.

The president announces that he will complete his interrupted tour of the west next spring. He will please bear in mind that Fort Wayne is on the map and has a welcome for him.

J. P. Morgan must be contemplating a consolidation of the democratic party. He is said to favor Grover Cleveland for president. J. P. can do almost anything, but he will never be able to get Colonel Watterson into such a merger.

Secretary Shaw has taken time by the forelock and announces that he is not going to resign the treasury portfolio. This is the more important because Wall street financiers have ceased to attempt to conceal their itching for the secretary's scalp.

The republican convention in New York made it pretty clear that the Hon. Thomas Collier Platt, United States senator and boss, is no longer the omnipotent soul he was in Empire state politics. Governor Odell has shunted the late leader into a position as a sort of boss emeritus.

The tariff trouble grows apace in Iowa. The faction controlled by Gov. Cummins wants the tariff revised, for which reason an effort is afoot to bar the governor and his supporters from active part in the nomination of a man to succeed Speaker Henderson. A bolt is freely threatened.

The president finally grew tired of the opera bouffe anxiety and medical parade over his barked shin and defied his doctors, getting out of bed, drawing on his trousers himself over the bandaged leg and setting about the transaction of public business. The rough rider who braved Spanish shot and shell at San Juan seems to have little fancy for being made a baby of.

There is nothing in the platform framed for the congressional nominee of the Third Iowa district to stand upon that should make Hon. D. B. Henderson's gorge to rise, nor is there anything in it that should cause real tariff reform republicans to grow enthusiastic over the new nominee. Speaker Henderson may never admit it, but he doubtless has some private convictions that his going-off was a premature discharge.

The only results so far of the suit instituted against the meat trust have been further rise of the price of the trust's products and preparation to reorganize along lines that are purposed to defy federal prosecution under present laws. The packers' merger is reported as progressing very nicely, and it will be ready to perform another hold-up about the time the buckwheat crop begins to promote the winter demand for pork sausages.

The brilliant and impressive address delivered by Hon. W. Bourke Cockran at the dedication of the new court house will long be remembered by those fortunate ones who listened to that orator's glowing words. It was a great oration, one of the greatest ever delivered in this city on any occasion, and the people of Allen county feel honored to have had the occasion distinguished by Mr. Cockran's presence. His gracious refusal to accept any pay for his splendid contribution to the event will be kindly cherished by thousands of hearty admirers. Mr. Cockran will always have a secure place in the hearts of Allen county people.

That the life of the president of the United States is precious to the people and his bodily welfare should always be perfectly safeguarded no one will deny, but unless the accounts of the president's condition greatly understate the seriousness of his trouble, it will strike most persons that there has been a somewhat ridiculous ado over his injured leg. Every working day in the year thousands of workmen of the country go about their labor with worse injuries and think nothing of it. Doubtless if the president could have had his way his trip would not have been abandoned and the public would never have known of his injury.

The withdrawal of Judge Durand from the democratic gubernatorial ticket in Michigan is a serious handicap to the democrats of the state. Judge Durand was nominated as the one man who could come nearer uniting the factions of the party in Michigan and his nomination was very generally satisfactory. Ill health has compelled him to withdraw and the naming of his successor on the ticket is a task that is not unlikely to be attended with some trouble and perhaps bitterness.

The democrats of the Twelfth district are perfectly satisfied with Hon. J. M. Robinson's service in congress and many hundreds of republicans who have profited by Mr. Robinson's experience and acquaintance in Washington and his cheerful and unflinching courtesy to all who appeal to him are in no wise disposed to have him replaced with an inexperienced member. The fact that Mr. Robinson will get all the democratic votes in the district and many republican votes removes the congressional contest in the Twelfth district from the domain of speculation. It is certain in its outcome and rather too much one-sided to be interesting.

DEATH OF ZOLA.

The tragic death of Emile Zola takes from modern literature one of its strongest and most interesting figures. While Zola's wider fame rests upon his connection with the recent "Dreyfus affair," his books will always have in literature the place created for them by their author. The most powerful and masterful of the modern exponents of realism in romance, Zola was at the same time the creator of what must always hold rank as the most repulsive writings of his time. He represented life as he found it, as life was in the places where he sought its manifestations. The normal in life was but an incidental material because he could find so much that was abnormal, shocking and hideous. He delved into the compost heaps of modern existence because humanity in its worst phases was there and he dragged it forth in all its vilest of vice and filth and held it up to the gaze that better conditioned mankind might see what the universal human relationship followed it with. Zola never glossed the vice nor sought to sweeten the filth which gave such appalling savor to his books, nor did he exaggerate. He wrote that which was and romance was merely the vehicle of presenting his horribly real pictures. It is not possible in a brief newspaper sketch to enter into any resume and analysis of Zola's books. Nor is it possible to attempt any estimate of the moral effect of his labors. He leaves little in his literary productions of benefit to his kind. He showed the world its worst self, but to what good end must be a puzzle to moralists. But of Zola right-minded mankind will always remember his magnificent fight for justice in the Dreyfus case. Against an almost unanimous public sentiment in France, against the powerful, corrupt and malignant machinery of the general staff of the French army, against the counsel of his friends, he bared his arm for the heroic task he had set himself to do and began his battle. His famous "I accuse" letter struck the nation with astonishment and terror and finally with bitter anger. He was banished, but abroad he waged his fight and he won it. No single man of modern times has wrought a greater moral achievement. He was a brave soul, a justice-loving man, an intrepid warrior for right. For that let his memory be cherished of all men.

Carrie Nation won the admiration of Yale's students by refusing to be hounded down when she set out to address them. Mrs. Nation has had too many sermons with the "real thing" in Kansas to be disconcerted by mere noise. And besides she of the hatchet can raise her voice a bit herself when occasion requires.

THIS COUNTRY NEEDS A GREAT TEMPERANCE REVIVAL.

(New York Journal.)

The horrible brutality of Michael Leddy, of Brooklyn, has sent a shudder through every community where accounts of his deeds have been read. After forcing his hungry little girl to swallow a tumblerful of whisky, this mad beast fell upon his wife and kicked out her remaining eye, the sight of the other having been destroyed in the same way two years ago.

Of course Leddy was drunk. Men who do these acts of wanton and ferocious cruelty are always drunk. Even men who when sober prove kind to their families, are often transformed by drink into murderous demons. When they recover from their madness and learn what they have done, they cry out in amazement, shame and remorse. Yet they are aware beforehand that drink will turn them into maniacs. And their crimes committed, they will, if left at large, generally drink again. It is voluntary lunacy. Therefore they are rightly held responsible by the law for what they do.

No man who drinks and has ever been drunk enough to be perilous to others has any right to drink at all. Short of being a total abstainer, he is a dangerous animal, and knows it. No wonder that those who give special attention to the effects of the drink habit cry out against it passionately. Its ravages are to be seen in all grades of life. Women as well as men are its victims. It robs countless homes of happiness. It deprives children of their rightful joys and cheats them of their chances in life. No man whose childhood was spent in a drunken home, no matter how long he may live, can ever shake off the memory of the black misery of those years that should have been his brightest.

Drink is the master curse of this country, as of every other in Christendom. It spreads physical disease, mental incapacity and moral blight. It degrades the homes of the rich and sends squalor, want and bestiality into the homes of the poor. It rots out the manhood of men and the womanhood of women.

Every intelligent agency exerting itself to lessen the drink evil deserves the sympathy and encouragement of all who wish well to their kind. It is easy to be critical of zeal, but too much zeal is incomparably nobler than too little.

This country needs a great temperance revival—the old-time mass-meetings, the old-time enthusiasm, the popular pledge-signing and a re-vivification of the societies devoted to total abstinence and ardent missionary work for members. And the churches of the land could lead in no cause more worthy of their religious energies.

IS IT A "THINKING" CAMPAIGN?

So far the present campaign in Indiana has been the most quiet for many years, and the promise seems to be that it will continue so until the election in November. The republicans have held some big meetings in several sections of the state as a sort of "opener," but there is no evidence of disposition to make the canvass strenuous throughout. The democrats have held some meetings, addressed mainly by the party's candidates, not many of the old-time orators taking part. In a number of counties of the state the republicans are on a still hunt. This is notably true of Allen county, depending upon the house to house canvass and the button-hole appeal rather than upon the eloquence of orators or the impressiveness of great meetings. The prohibitionists appear to be making the most energetic open campaign of any of the political parties, holding many meetings over the state, speaking from store fronts and on the street corners.

This seeming lack of interest may be a good thing for the people—may yield fruits for the man who pays taxes. Possibly we are in the midst of what is sometimes called a "thinking" campaign—a campaign when the voters display little interest, do little talking and seem apathetic, but at the same time are seriously pondering candidates and issues. Such a state of mind on the part of voters always puts the political managers at sea. When men begin to study political conditions more with respect to their bearing upon the public welfare than upon the ground of party success, there is little foretelling of results.

In Allen county the tickets are all named and the personnel of each of them is all known to the voters. We have faith in the voters of Allen county to believe that they will select the best men for public office. It would be a great thing for the efficiency and honesty of the administration of public office and a source of substantial profit to the tax-paying classes if the practice of selecting men for office upon the basis of fitness rather than their politics became the general rule.

IN NORTHERN INDIANA.

South Bend officials claim to have smallpox under control.

The Decatur fair last week lost money on account of bad weather.

This is the week of the Kendallville fair.

The farm residence of George W. Bolds, west of Geneva, was totally burned, entailing a loss of $2,000.

Huntington people object to the speed at which the Southwestern interurban cars run through that city. Mrs. Rhodes, of Wabash, was painfully shocked when lightning struck her home shortly after noon on Saturday.

The Wabash Home Telephone company, whose plant was badly damaged by fire two weeks ago, has just resumed business.

Marshall George Hann, of Peru, visited every saloon in that city Saturday evening and warned the keepers to close up at 11 p. m.

Goshen has placed an order for 1,000 books as the first installment for the new Carnegie library, which will be dedicated in October.

Material for the construction of the Warsaw and Winona electric railway has been delayed, and work upon the road has not yet begun.

There are hold-up men in Hartford City. Friday night Ed Thomas was knocked down and robbed of all his money, $4.85, on a street corner there.

The annual reunion of the Stoops family, which has 1,065 members in Wabash, Miami, Grant and other Indiana counties, has just been held at Wabash.

The lifeless form of Henry Myers, a carpenter, was found upon a vegetable bench in front of a Peru grocery store Monday morning. Death was due to heart disease.

David Kreglo, who died at Indianapolis Saturday at the age of 90 years, worked at the carpenter trade in Fort Wayne in 1835, removing shortly thereafter to Indianapolis.

Fire drill is to be instituted in the Hartford City schools, so that in the event of fire the pupils will have been trained to retire in order and without loss of time or danger of injury that would follow a mad rush for the doorways.

Metta Spalding, of Goshen, 12 years old, was severely bitten upon the hand by a dog that is presumed to have been suffering from hydrophobia. The girl was hurried to Chicago for treatment at a Pasteur institute.

Charles T. White, a poor Mishawaka paper mill employee, has just invented a method for bottling liquors direct from the faucet without the use of rubber hose, and also an automatic nozzle. He has sold the patent for $40,000.

S. R. Darling, a Baltimore and Ohio conductor at Garrett, while hanging paper at his home Thursday, fell from a ladder and death ensued in a few hours. He was 65 years of age. His son, Roy Darling, died but a month ago.

Mrs. E. J. Mentzer, of Goshen, was run down by an automobile while shopping in Chicago Saturday and so painfully injured that for a time it was feared she could not recover. Later there was improvement in her condition.

George Shoemaker and Charles Marsh, brothers-in-law, got into an altercation in a saloon at Keystone. When results are summed up it is found that Marsh has a long gash across his face inflicted by a knife in the hands of Shoemaker, and the latter is up against an affidavit charging him with assault and battery with intent to commit murder.

Two years ago, it is stated, Frank Ebert, of Hammond, met with an accident which completely destroyed his hearing in one ear. He tried several remedies, but could hear no better. While painters were at work a few days ago decorating overhead in a room, the stepladder collapsed and a heavy board and bucket of paint struck Mr. Ebert on the head. He was uninjured in the accident, but found to his surprise that he could hear as well as ever.

The damage suit of Elam Robbins as administrator of the Sherburn estate against the Nickel Plate railroad went to the jury in the circuit court at Columbia City Saturday afternoon. Sunday morning the jury returned a finding for plaintiff, giving a verdict of $2,500 against the railroad company. Mr. and Mrs. George Sherburn, while passing over a crossing on the Nickel Plate road in a wagon near Sidney, Kosciusko county, were struck by a train and killed. The children, through Elam Robbins, the administrator, instituted suit for damages and on behalf of the loss of their father were awarded $4,000 damages. Judge Biggs, however, set the verdict aside. The second suit, just tried at Columbia City, was based on the loss of their mother, Mrs. Sherburn.

Taulin Epperson and Mrs. William Evans were located in a barn near Mishawaka Wednesday night, after officers had searched for them for a day and a night. They resisted, and it was only when the farmers threatened to burn the barn that the couple surrendered. Householder, the officer whom Epperson shot Tuesday, may recover. The woman is the wife of a Frankfort man, and the capture of the two was the climax of a daring attempt to kidnap the two Evans children from the home of their father.

"INCURABLE" HEART DISEASE SOON CURED

By the Great Specialist in Treating Weak and Diseased Hearts, Franklin Miles, M. D., LL. B.

Will Send $4.00 Worth of His Special Treatment Free as a Trial.

To demonstrate the unusual curative powers of his new and complete special treatments by mail for heart disease, short breath, pain in the side, oppression in the chest, irregular pulse, palpitation, smothering spells, puffing of the ankles, or dropsy, Dr. Miles will send four dollars worth free as a trial, to all who mention this paper.

His treatments are the result of twenty-five years careful study, extensive research, and remarkable experience in treating the various ailments of the heart, stomach and nerves, which so often complicate each case. So astonishing are the results of his complete special treatments that he does not hesitate to offer all persons a trial free.

Nothing could be more generous. Few physicians have such confidence in their remedies. There is no reason why every afflicted person should not avail themselves of this exceedingly liberal offer, as they may never have another such opportunity. No death comes as suddenly as that from heart disease.

Mrs. A. Kronck, of Huntington, Ind., was cured after thirty physicians failed. Mrs. Flora Grator of Bristolville, O., after 23 years, was cured after a score of doctors had pronounced her incurable. Mrs. Frank Smith of Chicago, after five leading physicians had given her up, Mr. Julius Keister of Chicago, after ten, Mrs. R. Parker after sixteen failed.

A thousand references to, and testimonials from Pastors, Clergymen, Bankers, Farmers and their wives will be sent free upon request. Send at once for free examination blank, pamphlets and free treatment before it is too late. Address Franklin Miles, M. D., LL. B., 201 to 211 State street, Chicago, Ill.

NOW SECURES RIGHT-OF-WAY

WORK ON NORTHERN ELECTRIC LINE PROJECT.

Randall Interviewing Wash-to Get Options.

While the city authorities have taken no definite action regarding the Fort Wayne and Northern Railroad company's petition for a franchise enabling the line to enter Fort Wayne, work on the project is going forward steadily.

Yesterday P. A. Randall, one of the promoters of the enterprise, took up the work of securing options on a right-of-way through the country districts, beginning at the northern limits of the city and working northward through Washington township.

The precise route through the country has not yet been selected, and it will not be decided until the canvass for right-of-way is completed. In most instances it is found that farmers are highly pleased at the prospect of securing the electric road, though in occasional instances there is a disinclination to part with right-of-way except at what is considered a prohibitive price.

HER TREASURES IN THIS WORLD.

A story of much significance is related of a worldly, selfish young woman who on one occasion dreamed that she was in heaven.

As she was being shown through the holy city, examining and admiring the many beautiful residences, she paused before one exceptionally beautiful. Turning to her guide, she said, "For whom is this beautiful place?"

"Why, that's for your gardener," answered the guide.

"For my gardener? Why, he would not know what to do in such a spacious dwelling. He would be completely lost in a mansion like this! Why, he lives in such a little bit of a cottage on earth; he might do better, I give him reasonable wages, but he gives so much of it away to poor, miserable people that he has hardly enough to keep his wife and family, let alone any comforts or luxuries."

Walking on apace they came to a little bit of a cottage. "And who is this being built for?" asked the young woman.

"Why, that is for you," answered the guide.

"For me?" she exclaimed in wonder and surprise. "Why, that cannot be for me! I have always been accustomed to a mansion for a house. I could not adjust myself to such a small house!"

Still plainly but sadly answered the guide, "It is for you. Our great Architect does the very best He can with the material that is sent up to Him."

"Where are you laying up your treasure?"

WERE WEDDED AT 3 O'CLOCK

MISS MINNIE VOGELY AND MARTIN F. SCHEELE.

Rev. Ph. Ruhl Officiated and Young
ern Tour.

At 3 o'clock this afternoon Miss Minnie Vogely, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Vogely, of 1238 Oak street, became the bride of Martin F. Scheele, a clerk at the drug store of Meyer Bros. Both young people are well known and have many friends who will unite in the heartiest congratulations over the happy event.

The ceremony was a quiet, but pretty event, solemnized at the residence of Rev. Ph. Ruhl, of Salem Reformed church, on Clinton street, and the wedding party was a small one. Miss Edith Vogely, a sister of the bride, was bridesmaid, and Herman Scheele, brother of the groom, was best man. The bride was attired in a traveling suit of brown, with hat to match. The bridesmaid's costume was of tan.

Immediately after the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. Scheele left for Chicago and other western points. They will be absent about two weeks. After November 1 they will be at home to their friends at 1518 East Lewis street.

GET INVITATIONS.

This morning a number of attorneys and other prominent Fort Wayne men received invitations to attend the dedication of the new court house at Detroit. The engraving of the new building does not indicate that it at all compares with the great building just dedicated in Fort Wayne.

BOOMING THE BIG LOCAL FAIR

RACE ENTRIES PRESENT VERY LARGE LIST OF HORSES.

All Departments Rapidly Filling Up —Good Weather Wanted to Make Big Success.

The bad weather has apparently no terrors for the executive staff of the Fair association as the office in the court house is a model of industry. At the grounds everything is practically in readiness for the opening next Tuesday and the gates will be thrown open without a moment's delay and there will be no hitch anywhere. A dozen or so large tents—big enough for a circus—have arrived and will be used by exhibitors in various departments. It was found that the entries were so numerous that extra accommodations had to be provided. In the big art pavilion there are forty-three spaces for exhibitors and of these forty have been taken. All of the second floor is taken and but three spaces on the ground floor remain. In this building some great surprises are in store for the visitors. In the poultry department D. N. Foster has twenty entries of light Brahmas alone, including his $20 cock, supposed to be the finest specimen of the species in the states. Others include some chicks hatched April 1 of this year one of which weighs 9½ pounds—five-months chick weighing as much as a turkey. The entries in the speed department exceed the most sanguine expectations of the promoters and the end is not yet. Today Charles Hanvert is at the Illinois state fair at Springfield booking entries for the races and in the live stock department, and J. T. Reed is at Findlay, O., on the same errand. Willis J. Pearce is at the races at Hamilton, O., Matthew Stevens is at Portland, F. D. Ellis is at Cincinnati, Vern Chisholm is at the big fair at Hillsdale and Earl Hale is at Wapakoneta, O. When these gentlemen return they will complete one of the largest entry lists ever booked for this city. The management reasons that the water will all have leaked out of the sky by Tuesday and that next week will be a continuous stretch of fair weather.

ART BUILDING SPACE TAKEN

FAIR COMMITTEE CAN NOT SUPPLY ALL DEMAND.

Business Men are Preparing Elaborate Exhibits for the Fair Next Week.

Every bit of space in the new art building of the Fort Wayne fair available for booths and displays of merchants has been engaged, and still the request for places continue to pour in upon the committee.

Great preparations are being made by Fort Wayne business men for the fair next week, and some of the booths will be most elaborate. In several instances from $150 to $200 is being expended upon booths and decorations which are designed to be permanent, and the interior of the building will be very handsome. The art hall is entirely completed and today the committee finished the marking off the spaces to be used by the business men. Work at the fair grounds in preparation for the big exposition next week is going forward rapidly, and those who attend the fair—which, of course, includes everybody—will see not only a wonderful transformation in the appearance of the Driving park, but an exposition of surprising magnitude and genuine excellence.

BROOM—FRENCH.

Columbia City Post: "At the home of the bride's sister, Mrs. Charles Hunter, Sunday, September 28, 1902, in the presence of immediate relatives, at noon, occurred the marriage of Miss Ella M. French, of Fort Wayne, to Thomas W. Broom, of Van Buren, Ind., Rev. J. B. Ford officiating. After congratulations the bridal party proceeded to the dining room, where an elaborate feast was spread. Mr. and Mrs. Broom will make Fort Wayne their home for the present."

INJURIES SEEM SERIOUS.

Harry Crystal, an employee of the Smith & Randall lumber mills, was struck in the pit of the stomach by a heavy piece of timber Monday and sustained internal injuries. He was operating a circular saw when the accident occurred. Crystal was taken to his home, 1007 Pape avenue, where Dr. Culp attended him.

LOCAL BRAKEMAN HURT.

A. P. Sullivan, a local brakeman on the Pittsburg road, received injuries in the Valparaiso yards yesterday, which will disable him for awhile. Mr. Sullivan is congratulating himself that his injuries are not more serious, for he had a very narrow escape from losing both legs. He was handling the pushing pole in shifting a car from the siding to the main track, when he was caught between the pole and the tender of the engine and thrown down very close to the moving wheels. Both of his legs were injured, but he will soon recover from the wounds.

SPORTSMEN.

UNPROFITABLE SPECULATION

DISASTROUS RESULTS OF GARNISHEE CASES.

A Catch of Claims Bought in Ohio and Sued Here Settled at the Purchaser's Cost.

John Ehrman and Abel Pequignot, neighbors living on New Haven avenue, have had a series of difficulties which resulted in a pitched battle in which Ehrman got a shade the worst of it. The result is that Pequignot filed to affidavits against his assailant and asking for a surety of the peace bond. Justice Bird, of Adams township, is balancing the scales this afternoon.

Justice Bird has other cases on hand, too. Recently a Fort Wayne lawyer went to Lima, Ohio, and bought a job lot of claims from a saloonkeeper and boarding house master. There were thirteen all told and they were against employees of the Lake Erie and Western and the Findlay roads, the employees now living in this city. A local doctor furnished the money to buy the claims, for the profit there might be in them. Things got warm after the claims were filed with Justice Bird and the railroad men prepared to fight the cases, and the men, too, if necessary. They congregated and after jumping up in the air quite a distance and clapping their hands together with a loud report, seven of the cases were dismissed at the speculators' costs, amounting to $31. The other six are still pending, with a prospect of dismissal. "It was either pay the costs or get locked up," said the doctor, "so I paid."

Justice Franco today united in marriage Thomas J. Hedges and Blanche M. Moss.

CAULEY—WEISMANTLE.

The marriage of Miss Katherine Weismantle and Frank Cauley took place Monday at St. Mary's Catholic church, Rev. J. H. Oechtering officiating. A wedding repast was served at the home of the bride's mother, Mrs. Lena Weismantle, of 919 Lafayette street, after the ceremony. The groom is a cigar maker for Cooney Bayer and the couple was preceded with a handsome dining set by the employees of the Bayer cigar factory.

Mrs. Ryan Klatt, of Kouts, chief witness against her husband, who is charged with an attempt to kill the woman and their servant, disappeared when the case was called for trial at Valparaiso. She is believed to be hiding in Chicago. Her bond of $1,000 was declared forfeited.

Hurrah for the county fair
You know you will be there,
An the question, what to wear
Is now at hand.
For the best we deeply wade,
And we get it if it's made,
And it's offered to our trade
At our old stand.

For eight years we have offered to our customers high grade, hand made clothing. It took several years to convince some of the people of Allen county that there was a great difference between the hand made clothing that we sell and the machine made goods sold by our competitors. But one by one we got them to try our goods until today we believe that over half of the men and boys in our county are ready to stand up for Patterson's clothing. Did you ever hear one man say that he had bought clothing of Patterson that did not give satisfaction? Such a man is as hard to find as stove coal in Fort Wayne, and if there is such a man—all he has to do is to come to us and we will see that he is perfectly satisfied. We have made great preparations for the Fall trade. Over three thousand new suits and overcoats for you to select from.

Overcoats, $6 to $50. Suits, $5 to $30.

CONGRESS TO ACT IN STRIKE

NATIONAL LAWMAKERS WILL TAKE HAND IN THE GAME.

Senator Hanna Warns the Anthracite Combine—Walter Wellman on the Situation.

Chicago, Sept. 29.—The Record-Herald this morning prints the following Washington dispatch by its well known correspondent, Walter Wellman:

Should the anthracite strike continue until congress meets two months hence efforts will be made to secure legislation against the railway trust which dominates the hard coal field and absolutely refuses to make any concessions or to arbitrate. There is a great demand for congressional action. It is expressed by trade union people, city councils, ministers' meetings and by the overwhelming force of public opinion. So far no one has pointed out the practical method by which congress can get at the subject, but those who advocate congressional action do not doubt that the way can be found.

Senator Hanna is one of those who believe that if the strike continues a couple of months longer congress will take a hand in the game. During his recent visit to New York Senator Hanna uttered some pretty sharp words of warning in the presence of business men who he knew would repeat what he said to the presidents of the coal railways.

"These people do not know what sort of a volcano they are living over," said the Ohio senator. "I can tell them something they ought to know. Ninety per cent of the American people sympathize with the strikers and are against the operators in this fight. If the strikers need more money than organized labor can raise to carry on the battle the people at large are willing to subscribe. I know of business men who are willing to contribute large checks rather than see the men starved into submission. They believe it would be a disgrace to American manhood if Baer and his associates were able to win the victory through the brute force of capital held in stubborn hands.

"If this strike is still on when congress meets Baer and his friends will hear something drop. Four-fifths of all the men elected to the house this year will be pledged to take drastic action against the coal monopoly. There may be some difficulties in getting at the question, but the way will be found. The railway presidents who stand out and say they have nothing to arbitrate and no concessions to make are doing more harm to the republican party and breeding more discontent and socialism than anything else that ever was known in this country."

In the east public opinion is almost as partial to the strikers' side of the case as Senator Hanna reports it in his part of the middle west. Although the people of this city and section are actually suffering from lack of coal with which to heat their houses, they do not blame the miners. The weight of their criticism is visited upon the presidents of the railways, whose stubborn pride, whose determination to crush John Mitchell and the union stands before every consideration of public good, as well as the interests of the corporations which they represent. The pressure for resumption of mining is a pressure which bears down upon the railway managers and not upon President Mitchell and his organization.

This pressure is becoming something very fierce, and the wonder is that the railway presidents are able to withstand it. Schools may not be able to keep open and a few have already been compelled to close, on account of lack of fuel. Hospitals are in the same trouble. Churches must soon suffer, notwithstanding "Divine-right" Baer's presumptive willingness to see that they are provided for. Doctors are beginning to talk of an increased death rate, due to imperfectly heated houses. Colds, croup, pneumonia, catarrh, bronchitis and throat affections are already on the increase. All this before cold weather has come at all. Men who understand the situation fully marvel that the railway presidents have the nerve to take upon themselves such a terrible responsibility. Their lot will not be an enviable one when the mercury drops and women and children are forced to suffer.

Two well known government officials were discussing this question Saturday, as every one discusses it every day, because it is the all-important question with the people of the east, where they are to get fuel with which to warm their houses and keep their children from actual suffering. Soft coal is becoming scarce and difficult to get, because the railways cannot haul it to market fast enough to supply the demand. One of the government officials said:

"Let us suppose the school board of the city of New York, for instance, was asked by the anthracite trust to pay $7 a ton for coal, and the school board thought $6 enough. The school board thought it unfair that a combination should organize in hard coal to put up prices and force people to pay at least a dollar a ton more than a fair profit. Not being willing to submit to this extortion the school board decides to close the schools and deprive the children of that great city of their winter's education. What would the people do to the school board?"

"Let us take another illustration," said the other official: "Suppose a trust gains possession of all the refineries of lubricating oil in the country and turns upon the railways and says to them: 'You've got to pay our price or you can't get any lubricating oil for your locomotives, cars and machinery.' The managers of the railways object to this sort of thing. They admit that they could pay the increased price without much loss, but they do not like to have other people dictating to them how they shall run their business and what prices they shall pay for oil. So they get together and solemnly agree that they will not buy any oil until the oil trust sells at the old price. Not being able to get oil they have to stop their trains. The people can't travel from one part of the country to the other and the mails are stopped. In fact, business and communication are paralyzed. What would the people do to the managers of the railways who took such a stand as this?"

"Well, that is just what the anthracite operators are doing about the labor in the coal field. They admit they could pay the increased wages demanded and take the cost thereof out of the consumers of coal, who would be glad enough to pay it. But the managers don't like the combination that has been formed in labor. They have to have that labor or none, because there is not any other to be had, and yet they say they are going to fight it out to the bitter end, no matter how much the public suffers.

"It is generally assumed that J. Pierpont Morgan has the power to settle the coal strike at any time he wishes to say the word. But during a recent visit to New York I investigated this phase of the question and found that Mr. Morgan's power among the coal mining and coal carrying railroads has been to some extent exaggerated. He is without doubt the strongest personal factor in the coal mining corporations. But this does not by any manner of means imply that he is in position to issue his orders as to settlement of the strike and have them obeyed. Were this the case I am sure the strike would have been settled long ago.

"One thing not generally known is that Mr. Morgan is not in complete control of the Reading. Up to May last the voting trust, comprising a majority of all the stock in that great corporation, was in his hands, and then he was able to control the property's policies. But since May the voting trust has been in his hands only nominally, and pending some other arrangements. If he were to attempt to exercise his power it would be possible for other interests to take the trust out of his hands at any moment. Along with Reading goes control of Jersey Central and Lehigh, two other prominent roads in the anthracite trade. It is an open secret in New York that since his return from Europe a month ago Mr. Morgan has used his influence in favor of some settlement of the strike, and he is still laboring to that end. If he had the power and the responsibility which the public has believed he possessed, the strike would have been settled long ago.

"Violence in the coal regions is the beginning of the end." This is the opinion expressed by the railway presidents. "As soon as the miners begin to murder and intimidate that is evidence of the weakness of their cause, and a surrender cannot be far off."

Perhaps the railway presidents are sincere when they say this, but they should know that a large part of the so-called violence in the coal regions is imaginary or due to the exaggerations. The writer was in the anthracite field a week or two ago, and was told by the newspaper correspondents stationed there: "Violence is what we want now. No other sort of stories are any good. The editors don't want anything but riots or shootings."

These correspondents are honest men, and would not invent tales of lawlessness even to please their editors, but they well know how to make the most of any small disturbances that may occur. A very trifling affair in the coal regions is sure of large head lines in the New York papers next morning. Some violence there has been, of course; it would be foolish to expect such a large number of men, most of them foreigners, to preserve perfect calm. But the reports have been greatly exaggerated. There isn't as much lawlessness in the entire anthracite field as there is in the tenderloin region of New York city, and not very much more need of the presence of troops.

Up in the coal fields the miners laugh at the reports which the corporations give out of the amount of coal mined each day. Every morning the New York papers print little tables of the quantity mined and shipped the day before. According to the table it runs from 26,000 to 29,000 tons every twenty-four hours, and the list looks quite formidable, as it is printed in full detail and apparently with a great deal of exactness. If the companies are actually mining an average of 100,000 tons a week they are taking out about one-seventh of the regular output when all hands are at work. As a matter of fact, they are not doing even that much, nor the half of it. The miners count every car that comes out of the mines or from the breakers, and they know to a ton just how much coal is being shipped. Ten thousand tons a day would be much nearer the truth than 26,000 tons, and very little of that is freshly mined coal. It consists almost entirely of cleaned-up or washed-out stuff and is fit only for steam purposes. Coal that can be burned in the furnaces of the houses where children will soon be suffering from cold is not being mined to any extent worthy of consideration. The miners know the coal companies are putting up a bluff about their output of coal, and consequently there is no stampede among the men.

Leaving out of the question whether the miners ought to win or not, their persistence and courage is certainly worthy of admiration. They have been without work for five months, and the most of them are now subsisting upon $2.50 a week per family doled out to them in the shape of store orders by the union. It is just enough to avert actual hunger. Clothing fit for winter use is much needed, and men will do most anything before they will see their children going barefooted. Every licensed miner in the anthracite region knows that he can go to work tomorrow and earn $20 or $30 a day. All he has to do is to walk up to the mine boss and say he is ready, and he will be put in the mine with eight or ten laborers to do his loading for him. The licensed miner will be given the easiest and softest breasts in the mine to work, and his share of labor will be simply the blasting down of the coal from the thick vein. The company will hire all the other men and give the miner credit for every ton thus taken out. Twenty or thirty dollars a day is as big as a mountain to a man who hasn't had a $5 bill in his hands for five months, and whose children need shoes. It is a credit to the manhood of the miners in the anthracite field that not 300 out of the 40,000 licensed miners have succumbed to this temptation to desert their fellows and go back on the cause. There are some things that even money can't buy.

LOCAL LINES.

Tony Luley, who resigned a position at the Wabash shops Saturday, will soon take a position in the Pittsburgh machine shop. He is off duty now on account of the death of his sister.

James Stewart and May Gooding were married at the home of the bride's sister, in Woodburn, recently, by Rev. E. A. Bunner, pastor of the M. E. church. Mr. and Mrs. Stewart will live in this city.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Sweigert, of Clarksburg, W. Va.; Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Wollen, of Williamsport, and Will Ratcliff, of Connorsville, were guests over Sunday of Mr. and Mrs. Manning Smith, of 1015 East Wayne street.

Alfred Hall, a brakeman on the east end of the Nickel Plate, was killed at Kingsville, Ohio, last Thursday. The trainmen in this city who run in and out of Bellevue were well acquainted with the deceased and will be sorry to hear of his death.

The nuptials of Henry Baral, of this city, and Miss Minnie Kammerer were celebrated at the home of the bride's parents, four miles west of the city, on the Leesburg road, Rev. Gross, of Emanuel's Lutheran church, officiating. Over a hundred guests from the city were present and partook of the wedding supper.

H. Lamm, Arthur Harter, Henry Herbst, M. J. Smith, Harry F. Ayers and Fred Gaskins are new names on the Fort Wayne Electric works' pay rolls. P. J. Littot has been transferred from the lamp department to Foreman A. Keyser's machine room. Thomas Saffen and William Haynes resigned their positions at the works today for the purpose of taking a position at the factory of the Western Gas Construction company.

F. Koenig, a carpenter, had the index finger of his right hand lacerated Saturday afternoon at the Wabash carpenter shops, while operating a saw. He will not be compelled to part with the digit, but he will be off duty several days on account of the injury. Truckman D. C. Fadling, of the Pittsburgh freight house, had an ankle sprained yesterday by slipping while wheeling a load. Caller H. L. Newhouse, of the same establishment, had two fingers pinched beneath a casting he was handling Saturday night. Fireman C. Beltz was slightly injured Saturday night by falling from a Pennsylvania engine. He will be off duty a few days.

Smallpox has again appeared at Albion.

THE MARKETS.

Chicago, Sept. 30.—Wheat was influenced today largely by the action of the September option and trading the first half hour of the day developed the fact that there were still some shorts who were anxious to cover. Cables were weak, but the weather prospects helped with prices. September opened $\frac{1}{4}$ ¢ to $\frac{1}{2}$ ¢ higher at 88¢ to 88 $\frac{1}{2}$ ¢ and sold up to 90¢ within a few minutes after the opening. A reaction to 88¢ followed. December was offered freely and after opening unchanged at 68 $\frac{1}{2}$ ¢ sold down to 68 $\frac{1}{2}$ ¢. Minneapolis and Duluth reported receipts of 1,070 cars, with local receipts of 357 cars, 83 contract grade, makes total receipts for the three points of 1,427 cars, against 1,479 cars last week and 1,533 cars a year ago.

Toward the noon hour there was a sudden rise in September and prices advanced by leaps until 95¢ was reached, the highest price since 1898. The close was at the highest point with a gain of $\frac{7}{8}$ ¢ over last night's close. December closed $\frac{1}{4}$ ¢ to $\frac{1}{2}$ ¢ lower at 68 $\frac{1}{2}$ ¢ to 68 $\frac{1}{2}$ ¢ after touching 68 $\frac{1}{2}$ ¢. Corn was quiet and slightly stronger due to steady cables and general rains throughout the west and southwest. Reports from Iowa claimed the crop had been quite seriously damaged by too much dampness. December opened unchanged to $\frac{1}{4}$ ¢ higher at 45 $\frac{1}{2}$ ¢ to 45 $\frac{1}{2}$ ¢, and early trading was confined within the opening range. Local receipts were 340 cars, with 97 cars of contract grade.

The market held firmly steady throughout the day and the close was $\frac{1}{4}$ ¢ to $\frac{1}{2}$ ¢ higher at 46 $\frac{1}{2}$ ¢ to 46 $\frac{1}{2}$ ¢.

Dullness prevailed in oats with prices about steady except for September, which was a shade lower. Receipts were quite liberal, but the grading was not as good as of late. December opened unchanged at 30 $\frac{1}{2}$ ¢. Local receipts were 230 cars. Provisions opened easier all around under the lead of January pork, which was offered quite freely. Trading was fair with brokers the best buyers. Prices of hogs at the yards were steady. Pork opened unchanged at \$17.12 $\frac{1}{2}$ ¢; lard opened $\frac{1}{2}$ ¢ lower at \$8.57 $\frac{1}{2}$ ¢, with ribs also $\frac{1}{2}$ ¢ lower at \$8.05.

THE DAY ON WALL STREET.

New York, Sept. 30.—Prices opened with a violent rebound from yesterday's demoralized closing. The developments over night, including the measures proposed by Secretary Shaw by releasing large credits to the market, served to completely reassure sentiment over the money outlook. First sales of prominent stocks were of 1,000 to 9,000 shares, the latter Missouri Pacific, which opened at a spread of 4 points, rising an extreme $\frac{5}{8}$ ¢ over last night's close. Other violent recoveries were St. Paul 4 $\frac{1}{4}$ ¢, Manhattan, Louisville and Atchison 4 points, New York Central and Baltimore and Ohio 3 $\frac{1}{2}$ ¢, Canadian Pacific 3 $\frac{1}{2}$ ¢, Brooklyn Transit, Union Pacific, Western Union and General Electric 3 points and the market generally from a fraction up to 3 points.

Opening prices were the highest all around as a rule. New York Central rose over a point higher and a few stocks advanced an additional fraction. There was heavy unloading at the high level by traders who bought yesterday and prices were beaten back again. Louisville's rise was completely wiped out and Missouri Pacific relapsed 3 $\frac{1}{2}$ ¢. Reactions ran from 1 to 1 $\frac{1}{2}$ ¢ in the principal active stocks. Illinois Central reacted 2¢ and Canadian Pacific 1 $\frac{1}{2}$ ¢. Fluctuations were wild and varied $\frac{1}{4}$ ¢ to a full point between sales in both directions. The market steadied and became comparatively quiet before 11 o'clock and recovered from the low ebb.

Some stocks reacted further before a demand for St. Paul lifted it to 189 $\frac{1}{2}$ ¢, the best of the morning. Prices all around then hardened, but they failed to get back to the highest. The maintenance of stiff money rates, call loans ruling at from 15 to 19 per cent, checked animation. Louisville was a fraction under last night at noon.

Another buying movement carried St. Paul to 190 $\frac{1}{2}$ ¢ and some other stocks higher than the top level, notably Reading, Illinois Central, Union Pacific, Amalgamated, United States Steel preferred and Sugar. The August price level was lifted to the best of the day, but fractional reactions followed and the market became very dull.

Prices were well held during the dullness and business livened up late and a higher level resulted all around under the lead of Manhattan and St. Paul, which sold at 137 $\frac{1}{2}$ ¢ and 191 $\frac{1}{2}$ ¢ respectively. By 2 o'clock the market was animated and advancing rapidly. Lackawanna jumped $\frac{5}{8}$ ¢ and the coals generally were conspicuous. Sloss-Sheffield Steel dropped 6 points.

The money market became easier and stocks were bought again in large volume, prices rising higher than before. The coals were very buoyant, Reading rising 7 $\frac{1}{2}$ ¢ and Delaware and Hudson 5 $\frac{1}{2}$ ¢. St. Paul's extreme rise was 9 $\frac{1}{2}$ ¢, the preferred 8, Illinois Central 6 $\frac{1}{2}$ ¢, Pennsylvania 6, North American 8 $\frac{1}{2}$ ¢, Manhattan 5 $\frac{1}{2}$ ¢, General Electric 5 and Union Pacific, Baltimore and Ohio, Louisville and Sugar 4 or over. Yesterday's heavy losses in prices were in some cases more than recovered.

The closing was furiously active and buoyant.

Bonds were steady at noon.

THE SUNDAY SCHOOL.

Lesson in the International Series for October 5, 1902—Joshua Encouraged.

THE LESSON TEXT.

(Joshua 1:3-9)

1. Now after the death of Moses the servant of the Lord it came to pass that the Lord spake unto Joshua, the son of Nun, Moses' minister, saying:

2. Moses my servant is dead; now therefore arise, go over this Jordan, thou, and all these people, unto the land which I do give to them, even to the children of Israel.

3. Every place that the sole of your foot shall tread upon that have I given unto you, as I said unto Moses.

4. From the wilderness and this Lebanon even unto the great river, the river Euphrates, all the land of the Hittites and unto the great sea toward the going down of the sun shall be your coast.

5. There shall not any man be able to stand before thee all the days of thy life; as I was with Moses, so I will be with thee; I will not fail thee, nor forsake thee.

6. Be strong and of a good courage; for unto this people shall thou divide for an inheritance the land, which I swear unto thy fathers to give thee.

7. Only be thou strong and very courageous, that thou mayest observe to do according to all the law, which Moses my servant commanded thee; turn not from it to the right hand or to the left, that thou mayest prosper whithersoever thou goest.

8. The book of the law shall not depart out of thy mouth; but thou shalt meditate therein day and night, that thou mayest observe to do according to all that is written therein; for then thou shalt make thy way prosperous, and then thou shalt have good success.

9. Have not I commanded thee? Be strong and of a good courage; be not afraid, neither be thou dismayed; for the Lord thy God is with thee whithersoever thou goest.

10. When Joshua commanded the officers of the people, saying:

11. Pass through the host, and command the people, saying, Prepare your victuals; for within three days ye shall pass over this Jordan, to go in to possess the land, which the Lord your God giveth you to possess it.

A HEADLESS BODY

FOUND ROASTING IN A FURNACE IN NEW YORK.

A BLOODY CRIME REVEALED

MAN ARRESTED AS SUSPECT TELLS OF MURDER.

BEHEADED WITH A CLEAVER

ATTEMPT TO CONSUME BODY IN THE FURNACE.

New York, Sept. 27.—The headless and nude body of a man was found today at 38 West 29th street, a building occupied by a Chinese restaurant. Six arrests have been made.

According to the police, some persons went to the station house nearest the place this morning and complained of a bad smell from the building in West 29th street. They said that there was a terrible odor. Several detectives traced the odor to the basement of the building and found the body. The head was in a furnace. Blood was all over the place. Close by, under a pile of lumber Thomas Tobin, a waiter, was found, feigning sleep, according to the police. There was a fire in the furnace, which the police say was extinguished with a few pails of water. Then with a long bar they pulled the charred head of a man out.

Tobin is under arrest on a serious charge.

Police Captain Sheehan went to the upper part of the building, which is known as the empire hotel, and arrested four men and a woman as witnesses.

The building is a three story, shabby-looking brown stone structure close to Broadway.

It is said that a suit of clothes, a vest, with a mackintosh and a shoe, were found in the furnace.

Blood stains were found in the cellar, which lead to the belief that a murder was committed there and the body taken to the furnace, which is near.

It is said that one of the men arrested as witnesses, named McAnerney, has given the police some valuable information and has hinted that he saw part of the tragedy. The dead man is said to have been a patron of the place.

The odor of the burning flesh was perceptible, it is said, a block away.

STORY OF BUTCHERY.

According to Captain Sheehan, McAnerney is the bartender in the place. The captain says McAnerney told him that Tobin, the dead man, who was known about the place as Captain Jim, of Long Island; a woman known as Turner, and he (McAnerney), were sitting in a room drinking at about 2 o'clock this morning when Tobin and Captain Jim had a quarrel. Their trouble became very bitter and Tobin left the room, returning in a few seconds with a cleaver, with which he struck Captain Jim on the head, after which he dragged the man down stairs to the cellar, where he hacked the body to pieces.

Captain Sheehan did not learn the cause of the trouble. He says he did not find Tobin in the cellar, as at first reported, but in a room on the parlor floor, hiding behind some curtains.

The murdered man is believed by the police to be James Craft, of Glencove, L. I.

A dispatch from that place says Craft lived on a farm there. He was supposed to be well-to-do.

Tobin, Alexander McAnerney, the bartender, and Robert Kelly, the porter employed at the restaurant, were all committed without bail. The Turner woman was sent to the house of detention. Another woman named Stella Davis was arrested later in the day. She admitted she had been in company of the dead man and others up to 2 a. m. today, but said that there was no quarrel while she was in their company.

A HORRIBLE STORY.

At the examination at the coroner's office the police declared that they found on Tobin, McAnerney and Kelly letters and papers belonging to the dead man. In his story the coroner McAnerney said the man who was killed exhibited a big roll of bills and Tobin suddenly told him he lied and struck him over the head. He dragged him down stairs and as he passed through one of the lower floors he picked up a cleaver, and struck the unconscious man across the chest.

"I followed him to the cellar," McAnerney continued. "I watched Tobin drop his burden and begin to hack at the man's neck. He chopped and chopped, and when the head refused to come off he began to saw it with the cleaver. He suddenly turned around and discovering me he said he would cut my head off, too."

As McAnerney related the story Tobin jumped to his feet and said it was McAnerney who murdered the man and not he.

HE TALKED TOO MUCH.
Richmond, Ind., Sept. 25.—Edward

Bever was arrested here yesterday on a grand jury indictment from Randolph county, charging him with robbing the postoffice at Lozantville, Randolph county, in April, 1901. Detective Fletcher, of Winchester, took Bever to that place to await trial. The Lozantville postoffice was robbed of between four and five hundred dollars. There was no clew to the robbery at the time, but government officers and Detective Fletcher have been at work on the case continually. It is said that Bever, who supposed that the affair had been forgotten, talked about the Lozantville robbery a few weeks ago and told how it was done. The detectives were notified, and as a result Bever was arrested. He denies any knowledge of the robbery and his family has obtained counsel for him.

HE SPEAKS FOR FORT WAYNE

CHAIRMAN FOSTER SENDS MESSAGE TO PRESIDENT.

Voicing People's Hope for His Prompt Recovery and Urging a Future Visit.

Representing the people of this city, who regretted keenly the illness of the president and his consequent inability to visit Fort Wayne last Tuesday, Chairman Samuel M. Foster, of the citizens' executive committee in charge of the court house dedication, at once replied to the telegram from the president's secretary which arrived shortly before Mr. Cockran closed his address yesterday afternoon. Mr. Foster's telegram was as follows:

"The people of Fort Wayne are greatly disappointed at the president's inability to visit them at this time. They rejoice, however, that his ailment is not more serious and hope for his prompt and complete recovery. They will keep in mind his promise to endeavor to visit them at some future time and trust the way will be found for him to do so."

"Samuel M. Foster, Chairman Citizens' Executive Committee."
"To Hon. George H. Cortelyou, Secretary to the President."

CORN CROP HAS SUFFERED.

Three weeks ago the corn crop hereabouts promised to be one of the very largest in the history of Allen county. Now, according to the opinion of farmers, the situation is vastly different. Frost and the extraordinary rainfall have wrought extensive damage to the crop.

Farmers from all over the county, who have had business during the past few days with the general offices of their insurance company in this city, have been asked concerning the outlook, and there is a very general opinion that the crop will not come nearly up to the estimates based upon the favorable outlook three weeks ago.

In several instances prominent corn-growers have placed the damage from frost and rain at 25 per cent of the crop. Considerable of the corn was yet soft when the first frosts arrived, and the excessive rains which followed later have started much of the crop to rotting. In many fields the corn is said to be lying flat upon the ground on account of the water overflow.

FIVE DIE IN WRECK.

Princeton, Ill., Sept. 26.—Five men were killed in a railroad wreck on the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy railroad at Malden, four miles east of here yesterday.

The dead are:
A. H. Wagner, Prairie City, Ill.
W. L. Collins, Bardolph, Ill.
Eans Rasmussen, Ipaiva, Ill.
J. H. Garriters, residence unknown.

Leroy B. Woolsey, Knoxville, Ill. All of the men killed were on their way to Chicago with live stock on a train which collided with the passenger due in Chicago at 7 o'clock. As the freight train pulled into Malden a signal was given to stop and a brakeman sent to the rear to flag the passenger. Before the brakeman reached the rear platform the passenger crashed into the rear of the freight.

Seven men and one boy jumped out of the way car and escaped injury.

COAL FAMINE ON

NEW YORK NOW GRIPPED BY THE SHORTAGE.

NO FUEL TO BE PURCHASED

COAL TRUST OFFICERS ARE OBSTACLES.

MINERS' LEADERS CONFER

DECLARE STRIKE WILL GO ON TO THE FINISH.

New York, Sept. 27.—A leading coal dealer said today:

"There is no use in trying to quote prices now. The coal famine is upon us and there is no such a thing as a fixed price. We have been instructed by some of our hotel and office building customers to keep them supplied with coal regardless of the price. If we can get the coal we will keep them supplied if we have to pay $100 a ton. But we have not been able to pick up a ton of anthracite in the market in a week."

A firm which has one of the largest contracts for supplying coal for the schools said that no school in Manhattan is without sufficient coal to last a month after the cold weather begins, and many of them have enough on hand to keep them going until March.

Despite the panic among all classes in the city, caused by the scarcity of anthracite and the early approach of winter, the operators still maintain that the strikers will soon return to the mines and that no concessions will be made to them.

"We have taken the position we have on principle," said an official of one of the coal roads today, "and if the public suffers it must place the blame where it belongs—on the strikers, not on the mine owners."

LEADERS IN CONFERENCE.

Pittsburg, Pa., Sept. 27.—President John Mitchell and Secretary-Treasurer W. B. Wilson, of the United Mine Workers of America, arrived in this city shortly before 9 o'clock today and went at once to conference at the Hotel Henry.

President Mitchell stated just previous to the opening of the conference that nothing of importance would be transacted at the meeting. "We are here to go over routine business only," he said.

When asked if other parties would take part in the meeting, he said: "No. We will probably be here until tomorrow evening, unless we can get through before."

In concluding, he said: "The cause of the strike in the anthracite mines will be sustained until the end. If I have anything more to say it will be given out later in the day."

Secretary-Treasurer Wilson said: "The strike has been on for twenty weeks and will be continued until the miners win."

It is reported here that the meeting will be more important than the officials will admit, and further that a number of labor leaders will be in the conference before it is over.

IN NORTHERN INDIANA.

Bluffton has many cases of scarlet fever.

John C. Evans, an Elkhart pioneer, is dead at the age of 76.

Angola Odd Fellows are erecting an elaborate lodge building.

Irene Leininger, 3 years old, fell down a cellar stairway at Columbia City and broke her shoulder bone.

At Peru John Hayes, colored, was sentenced from two to twenty-one years for killing Clarence Gillespie.

Miss Fay Robinson fell twenty-five feet from the second story window of a residence at Bluffton and escaped serious injury.

Public schools have been closed and all public gatherings prohibited at Metz, Steuben county, on account of diphtheria.

Cal and Henry Bennett, at Bluffton, stole a turkey and picked it alive. They are now doing twelve days in jail.

Moses Brandenburg, near Mt. Pleasant, Jay county, who has been blind nearly all his life, is said to be regaining his sight.

Benjamin Kerschner, a Wabash veteran, aged fifty-nine, was found dead in bed at his home Friday morning. Death was due to heart disease.

The first good oil well drilled near Peru in the past year was struck Thursday three miles east of the city. It is good for one hundred barrels daily.

The trustee of Richland township, in Whitley county, claims he will save the county $500 by closing three district schools and conveying the scholars to Larwill.

Frank Hughey, lineman for the electric light company at Fremont, Steuben county, fell from a pole and sustained injuries which resulted in his death shortly after.

The first Christian Science funeral ever held at Elkhart occurred Thursday. Mayor Charles T. Greene, a leader among Elkhart Christian Scientists, officiated.

Mrs. Simon S. Small, near Valparaiso, died from lockjaw. Her malady was the result of an injury sustained six weeks ago, when her home was struck by lightning.

Thomas Carter, proprietor of a feed store at Elwood, was bitten upon the hand by a rat. Now the hand and arm are swollen to twice the natural size and blood poisoning is feared.

Twenty-three children, inmates of the Wayne county orphan's home at Richmond, have been transferred to White's institute near Wabash. The Richmond home has been closed after an existence of twenty-five years.

V. D. Singer, of Huntington, was fined $1 in the mayor's court for too severely punishing his son Fred, 13 years old. The lad had taken money from his brother's bank, and as a result of the chastigation administered by the father, Fred carries a blackened eye.

Huntington saloon men seek to retaliate for the activity of the temperance people, and are out with a signed statement to the effect that they will enforce strictly a closed Sunday there. This will include drug stores, cigar stores, ice cream parlors, etc.

The loss by theft of a twenty-five cent whip by James E. Gill, of Franklin township, Kosciusko county, has caused the arrest of Clarence Brown, of Harrison township, by officers of a local horse-thief association. Brown was bound over to the circuit court in the sum of $75. The men had long been good friends.

When officers were called to the scene of the strike at the Diamond Flint Glass company's factory at Hartford City they found the "boy strikers" encamped about a big fire, while three boys, who had taken the strikers' places, were tied hand and foot to trees near by. The boys had been captured by the strikers while en route to work.

Dr. Arthur L. Griffin, of Kosciusko county, was arrested at Lagrange for practicing medicine in that county at Topeka from Jan. 1, 1901, to February, 1902, without a license, as required by law. The court continued the case until the first day of next term and the defendant deposited $200 in money for his appearance at that time.

Commander Henry McCrea, of the United States gunboat Machias, is visiting at his old home in Logansport, and citizens there gave him a rousing welcome upon his arrival. The Machias has recently been on duty in southern waters, and McCrea's position there during the South American revolutions was a very delicate one.

BROKE THROUGH THE BANKS

WATER FROM BIG DITCH OVERFLOWS LARGE SECTION.

Acres of Corn and Potatoes Badly Damaged in Territory West of Fort Wayne.

During the recent heavy rains immense volumes of water from the big Fairfield ditch three miles west of this city broke through the west embankment of the new waterway, inundating a large section of country and badly damaging many acres of corn and thousands of bushels of potatoes growing upon the prairie.

The ditch was to extend from the lower Huntington road to St. Marys river and was designed to turn the water from Little river into the St. Marys river in order to prevent just such a contingency as has happened. The contract was let in February and it was expected that the work would be completed by August 1, but the contractors, Messrs. Kruse & Co., have thus far constructed only about half a mile of the three miles to be constructed.

Farmers west of the ditch, whose lands were overflowed when the water burst through the banks, are highly incensed over the situation, and several suits for damages may grow out of the situation.

Foley's Honey and Tar is peculiarly adapted for chronic throat troubles and will positively cure bronchitis, hoarseness and all bronchial diseases. Refuse substitutes. For sale by Dreier & Bro. and Pellens & Polster.

Democrats of Blackford county have nominated Benjamin F. Wampler for auditor, John H. Stewart for treasurer, Elbridge M. Hudson for sheriff, David A. McMichael for surveyor and Dr. W. A. Hollis for coronator.

THINK THE MAN IS DEMENTED

WILLIAM VEITH HAS MANIA FOR SINGING.

Disturbed Lakeside Residents With His Actions—Hoodlumism Again Rife—Police News.

There was no police court this morning, the nearest approach to it being the continuance of a case against William Veith, living at the corner of Wayne and Francis streets, who was picked up yesterday in Lakeside, where he was frightening women by his strange actions. Veith is supposed to be demented. He went to a number of places on Crescent avenue and insisted on singing for the residents and at one place he entered the house and after informing the lady of the house that he was Buffalo Bill proceeded to render a vocal concert that was decidedly harrowing. His penchant for singing grew on him and he continued his serenading tour until he was exhausted. His presence was reported to police headquarters and Officer Paul was sent over to take him in charge, but when the officer arrived he had disappeared, but was finally located at the watchman's shanty at the Nickel Plate crossing at Walton avenue. He made great resistance before being loaded into the patrol wagon and at the police station he raised merry Rome for a while. He tugged at the bars of his cell and tried to pull them down and each time he gave a vigorous jerk he battered his face against the cross-bars, bruising himself considerably, and in the meantime he kept up his vocal fanfare. Later in the evening relatives secured his release on promise that he would be taken home and kept there under watch. A report that he had been mistreated by the officers was entirely unfounded, as the man inflicted his own injuries in his efforts to break down his cage. An inquiry into his mental condition will be instituted and in the meantime he will be forcibly restrained from doing violence or perpetrating any further annoyances.

AUMANN—SCHWARTZ.

The marriage of Miss Sophia Schwartz and Louis Aumann was solemnized at 6 o'clock last evening at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. H. F. Schwartz, Rev. C. Luehr, of Zion's Lutheran church, officiating. Miss Edith Schwartz, sister of the bride, and Fred Wellman, were the attendants. The bride's dress was of white mull, hung over white tulle, with tulle veil. The maid wore white dotted Swiss muslin and carried pink carnations, the bride's flowers being white roses. The room decorations were by Miss Flick, palms, smilax and roses being used, the bride's table being decorated in pink and green. Mr. and Mrs. Aumann have begun housekeeping on South Hanna street.

INDIANS LYNCH A PRISONER.

Guthrie, Ok., Sept. 25.—While federal officers were en route to South McAlester with two prisoners charged with horse-stealing they were suddenly surrounded near Pentress, I. T., by Greek Indians. Both the prisoners, Frank McCulloch and Edward Wepunt, were taken into the woods, while a portion of the Indians stood guard over the officers. After compelling McCulloch to admit the stealing of the horses he was shot by the mob, which then returned Wepunt to the officers. McCulloch was known as one of the worst desperadoes in the southwest, while Wepunt has no previous record.

HOPES TO REACH THE POLE.

Indianapolis, Sept. 25.—Sergeant Julius R. Frederick, who will be a member of the new expedition to seek the north pole, declines to give the names of the persons backing the expedition. He was a member of the Greeley expedition and he insists that if a dash for the pole be made without regard to establishment of winter quarters, the expedition will find itself, upon nearing the pole, in better position climatically than it would be were the long arctic nights spent either at Etah or Cape Sabine.

TORNADO IN GRANT COUNTY.

Marion, Ind., Sept. 25.—A tornado passed over the southern part of this county yesterday afternoon about 3 o'clock, leaving desolation in a path two miles wide. Farm buildings and all crops were destroyed and many persons injured, but so far as is known no lives are lost. The country home of Daniel Haines was destroyed, as was also his granary and barn, containing thousands of dollars' worth of grain and stock. The Chicago Pipe Line company, Standard Oil company and Jonesboro Mining company lost thousands of dollars' worth of oil and gas property. Among the farmers who sustain heavy losses are E. M. Whitson, Ashton Horner, Joseph Winter, Daniel

FELL FIFTY FEET

WILLIAM BOCK BADLY INJURED THIS MORNING.

KNOCKED OFF HIGH SCAFFOLD

ROOF TRUSS SLIPPED AT PENNSYLVANIA SHOPS.

HIS RECOVERY IS UNCERTAIN

DEPENDS UPON EXTENT OF INTERNAL INJURIES.

William Bock, a boilermaker employed by Contractor C. E. Sproul in erecting the structural part of the new Pennsylvania shops on Clinton street, fell from the top of one of the massive beams a distance of fifty feet at 11 o'clock Saturday last and received injuries which the attending surgeons regard as very serious, if not fatal. His right arm was fractured between the elbow and the shoulder, his right cheek was cut from the angle of the mouth back towards the ear, there is an ugly lacerated wound on the right forearm, and the unfortunate man complains of a soreness in the back. There is every indication of internal injuries also, but the surgeons say that it will be impossible to determine how serious these are for some hours. If they are not very serious the man will recover, but his fate will be a matter of grave doubt for the next twenty-four hours.

Mr. Bock was conscious when picked up and taken to the hospital and remained perfectly conscious until he passed under the influence of the anaesthetics administered by the surgeons when they were about to dress his wounds.

HOW IT HAPPENED.

From a witness of the accident The Sentinel learns that Mr. Bock was standing on one of the little portable platforms used by the structural workers when they connect the heavy pieces. He was at the top of one of the big iron posts on the north side of the building, guiding one of the big roof trusses which the immense derrick had just hoisted. For this purpose Bock was using a pincher, and as the end of the truss neared the connecting point it slipped and struck him in the breast with force sufficient to throw him from the scaffold.

In the descent Mr. Bock struck the big crane beam to which the traveling crane will be attached and made an effort to cling to it, but failed and went face downward upon some iron beams and stones at the foot of the post upon which he had been working.

He was picked up and carried into the Pittsburgh machine shop and a few minutes later removed to St. Joseph hospital, where Drs. C. B. Stemen and E. J. McDear attended him.

Mr. Bock is about twenty-six years old, married and resides at 227 Melita street. His wife was notified of his misfortune and was soon at his side at the hospital and remained there during the time her husband was under the influence of the anaesthetics. Mr. Bock is a boilermaker by trade and for some time was thus employed in the Pittsburgh shops under Foreman Frank Sarver. He resigned that position September 8 to take a position as iron structural worker with Contractor Sproul.

WOMEN TO AID POLICE.

Lafayette, Ind., Sept. 26.—This crusade against vice was taken up yesterday by Chief of Police Harrison, who announced that he would appoint fifty young women prominent in church work, to patrol the streets after night and take the names of women who are seen promiscuous the streets. Many young women walk the streets at night in company with men unknown to them, and it is this practice that the chief is attempting to stop. The fifty young women will give all names to the police and arrests may result.

TAKE CARE OF THE STOMACH.

The man or woman whose digestion is perfect and whose stomach performs its every function is never sick. Kodol cleanses, purifies and sweetens the stomach and cures positively and permanently all stomach troubles, indigestion and dyspepsia. It is the wonderful reconstructive tonic that is making so many sick people well and weak people strong by conveying to their bodies all of the nourishment in the food they eat. Rev. J. H. Holladay, of Holladay, Miss., writes: "Kodol has cured me. I consider it the best remedy I ever used for dyspepsia and stomach troubles. I was given up by physicians. Kodol saved my life. Take it after meals. Meyer Bros. & Co."

MORE WHITE-CAP OUTRAGES

TWO WOMEN BRUTALLY LASH-ED IN BROWN COUNTY.

Public Indignation Rises as the Story of the Outrage is Told—Indiana News.

Dublin, Ind., Sept. 27.—Edna Colson and Lizzie Bush, two Brown county women, were brutally whipped by whitecaps at Maple Heights a few nights since. The indignation of Brown county citizens reached a high pitch when a relative stood among a crowd of people and told how the women had been beaten. The whitecaps forced their way into the victims' homes, dragged them out and beat them unmercifully. The women managed to crawl back into the house and they have since been unable to leave their beds. Bessie, the little daughter of S. Hampton, was compelled by the whitecaps to stand by and witness the flogging. There is strong talk of appealing to Governor Durbin for help. Scarcely a week has passed for two months in Brown or Monroe counties that has not seen a woman or man whipped by the regulators. Seven persons have been severely whipped in the last four weeks. Seven persons have been forced to leave their homes. Whitecappings within the last year are as follows: William Moore and wife and William Caldwell, whipped once in Brown county and once in Monroe; James Helms, wife and two sons; Robert Palmer and Findlay Stretchberry and wife, whipped in Brown county; Mat Sturgeon and wife, Bessie Hampton, Edna Colson, Lizzie Bush, Thomas Johnson and wife, whipped in Monroe county; Petros boys and C. S. Price, forced to leave by threats.

STATE AUTHORITIES TO ACT.

Indianapolis, Sept. 27.—The state authorities are determined to put down whitecapping in Indiana. Governor Durbin and Attorney General Taylor are vigorous in their expressions on the subject, and although they do not announce what policy will be followed, it is certain that whitecappers who may be caught in the act or against whom complicity in assaults and acts of terrorization may be proved will not fare well, even if they escape punishment by their county authorities. The governor has declared that whitecapping lowers the standard of the community in which such things happen and is in addition a disgrace to the whole state. Attorney General Taylor is equally severe, and has said more than once that sometimes the only way with which men of this stripe can be dealt is by shooting to kill. Not infrequently has it been found difficult to obtain convictions in county courts, for the reason that the friends of whitecappers get on the juries, despite all efforts against it, and once in awhile people who have been mixed up in whitecapping depredations have sat themselves on juries.

RIPPED BY A BUZZ-SAW.

Union City, Ind., Sept. 27.—While kicking blocks from in front of a cut-off saw at the wheel works Otto Coats, an employe, aged twenty-five, slipped and fell on the rapidly revolving disc, which cut through to the lung, nearly severing his shoulder from his body. His chances for recovery are slight. He is the son of Marcus Coats, of the Big Four railroad, and was only recently married.

Fred Booth and wife, of Waterloo, can not agree. Therefore, upon demand of her husband, the woman sold two pigs she had been feeding, divided the cash with her husband and the partnership was dissolved. Later the couple quarreled upon the street, and Booth was arrested for pulling his wife's hat off her head and slapping her.

a substitute carrier on rural mail route No. 2.

The two children of Mr. and Mrs.
Ben Bright, of Horace street, are ill from scarlet fever.

Miss Mary E. Meyers and Louis
E. Roeger were quietly married at 5 o'clock Wednesday afternoon at the home of the groom's mother, No.

Roeger have gone to housekeeping at Holman and Harmer streets.

John W. Streicher and son William, guests of John and George Streicher, cousins. The guest was born and schooled in Fort Wayne, but has for years been living in Peoria, where he is a department foreman in the extensive works of the Peoria Planter company.

Farmers throughout the county are beginning to organize township associations for the protection of game birds and by the time the hunting season opens there will be very little ground in Allen county over which a hunter can pursue the even-tenor of his way without encountering opposition.

WEDDED LAST EVENING.

Charles F. Kromm and Miss Lulu
F. Nahrwald were united in marriage Thursday evening, the ceremony being performed at 8 o'clock at the residence of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Diederich Nahrwald, 2336 Smith street. About fifty invited guests were present, and the ceremony was performed by Rev. M. C. Cooper. Following the pretty marriage service an elaborate wedding supper was served. Mr. and Mrs. Kromm received a number of very handsome presents. They will reside for the present with the groom's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Moses Kromm, on Home avenue. Both are very estimable young people, the groom being a moulder at the Men-fice foundry.

FINE FEATURES FOR FAIR.

Entries for the Fort Wayne fair, which will be thrown open one week from next Tuesday, are coming in by every mail, besides many persons are calling individually to make their entries. The finest herd of cattle ever seen in northern Indiana will be one of the attractions and will be particularly interesting to farmers. The fine arts hall will be stocked with an elegant display of all kinds of goods and large pavilions will accommodate the exhibits of farm machinery, which will all be in motion. Around the fine arts hall a plaza fifty feet wide has been reserved and from this plaza four avenues forty feet wide have been extended, and fronting these avenues lots for exhibitors have been laid out, and here also will be found the midway, where the side shows, snakeswallowers, fat girls, ossified men, pie eaters and others will hold forth.
The balloon incubator will be still further around on the back side of the grounds. A feature will be concerts daily by a concert band and these bands will be found there forenoon and afternoon both. The management is more than satisfied with the prospects and now only hope for good weather, which has recently been a rather uncertain quantity.

BEWARE OF THE KNIFE.

rapidly of late than surgery, but it should not be used except where absolutely necessary. In cases of piles, for example, it is seldom needed. De-led for cuts, burns, bruises, wounds, skin diseases. Accept no counterfeits. "I was so troubled with bleed-

JUDGE DURAND WITHDRAWS

WILL NOT RUN FOR MICHIGAN
GOVERNORSHIP.

Democratic Nominee Forced to Retire From Race Owing to Paralytic Stroke.

Flint, Mich., Sept. 24.—Judge Geo.
H. Durand, of this city, who was stricken with paralysis three weeks ago and is now slowly recovering at his home here, has withdrawn as the democratic candidate for governor.
The following letter of resignation has been sent to Justin R. Whiting, chairman of the democratic state central committee:

"Dear Sir: The severe nature of my illness constrains me to relinquish the nomination for the office of governor of Michigan with which I was honored by the democratic state convention recently held in Detroit.
In doing this I express my gratitude for the confidence reposed in me by the convention and for the manifestation of personal friendship which I have received from all parts of the state, irrespective of party politics.
Very truly yours,
"George H. Durand."

Judge Durand's withdrawal is a great relief to his family, as he is still a very sick man. A family council was held yesterday afternoon, at which the judge's condition was talked over and the decision to withdraw his name arrived at. The letter was accordingly later prepared and shown to Judge Durand, who signed it.

NOW FOR THE FAIR.

The equinoctial storm came in on time this year, which was very gratifying to the management of the fair, although quite disappointing to the management of the court house dedication. During the strenuous rains of the past few days work at the fair grounds was somewhat interrupted, but not entirely interrupted. The big art hall and crafts building is under roof and work on the interior was pushed without regard to the outside weather. The sheds are ready for occupancy at this minute and visitors to the grounds would not recognize the place as the same old racetrack ground. The track is well packed and in good order, the fences have been rebuilt in places and white wash is being applied to all buildings, so that everything looks bright and fresh. In the secretary's office in the court house business has gone ahead with rush and vim and the list of entries is much larger than was expected for the meeting, and two weeks nearly still remain before entries will close. There is no possibility of not being ready on time now and as entries close October 6, the morning of the 7th will see everything in readiness for the opening of the finest fair ever given in Allen county and the best of the year given in the state, even including the state fair at Indianapolis.

WILL PROSPECT FOR OIL.

The Roanoke correspondent of the Huntington News-Democrat says it is rumored that the Messrs. Bash & McCulloch, of Fort Wayne, and Mr.
Pfeiffer, of Buffalo, will make some drillings for oil in the vicinity of Roanoke. Mr. Pfeiffer owns a farm in that locality and the prospecting will be done on his land.

DURYEE—CRAWFORD.

Miss Grace Crawford and Fred T.
Duryee were united in marriage on Wednesday evening at the bride's home by Rev. J. N. Field, of the First Baptist church. The wedding guests were relatives and immediate friends of the young people.

Current was turned on Tuesday evening from the new municipal electric lighting plant at Waterloo.
The system was constructed by the C. L. Olds company of Fort Wayne, and is said to be a very fine one. The starting of the system was made a holiday event in Waterloo.

IN OLD AGE the question of health becomes mainly a question of nutrition. If the stomach and other organs of digestion and nutrition are kept in a healthy condition there will be a well-nourished body, and little liability to disorders of the liver, bowels or such other disorders as may result from in-nutrition and lack of exercise.

Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery cures diseases of the stomach and other organs of digestion and nutrition, and also diseases of organs which are caused by the diseased condition of the stomach. By enabling the perfect nutrition of the body it increases the vital power and promotes a vigorous old age.

"I was a sufferer from chronic diarrhea for five years," writes Mrs. Mary A. Aaron, of Rolla, Missouri. "I tried different remedies, which would give me relief for a short time only. My trouble would return as bad as ever.
I consulted you in July, 1900, and by your advice commenced using Dr. Pierce's remedies. I took two bottles of the 'Golden Medical Discovery.'
Three visits of the 'Pellets,' and some of the 'Extract of Smart-Weed,' as you advised, I have not had any return of my trouble since using your medicines. Am now seventy-one years old and I never had anything to relieve me so quick. I think Dr. Pierce's medicines the greatest on earth. Should I ever have any return of my trouble shall use your medicine.
My thanks to you for your advice and thanks to Almighty God for restoring me to health through your hands."

Accept no substitute for "Golden Medical Discovery." There is nothing "just as good" for diseases of the stomach, blood and lungs.

DAMAGED BY HEAVY RAINS

SOUTHWESTERN LINE SUFFERS
NEAR ROANOKE.

Big Volume of Water Washes Gravel
From Beneath Tracks for Some Distance.

When last week's deluge swelled the volume of water from the rainfall during the day it started trouble for the Southwestern electric line, and today a large force of trackmen is at work repairing the damage.

For a considerable distance in the vicinity of Roanoke a big volume of water collected along the line of the road and rose higher and higher until it began sweeping over the tracks, washing out a large quantity of the gravel which had been used in ball-asting. There was no suspension of traffic, but cars in passing that point were compelled to move with extreme caution.

Early next morning the company sent out its force of trackmen to repair the damage and prevent any further break in the line.

OFFICER SHOT BY A KIDNAPER.

South Bend, Ind., Sept. 24.—Larry Eperson, a Spaniard, who eloped two years ago with Mrs. William Evans, of this city, after making an unsuccessful attempt yesterday to kidnap Evans' two little girls, shot arresting Officer Householder, of Mishwaka, wounding him seriously.
Monday night, during the absence of the father, the couple entered the home of Evans and forced his housekeeper to surrender the children. She gave the alarm as soon as the kidnapers had departed and a mob gave chase. The fleeing couple escaped on a galloping horse, leaving the children in the street. Officer Householder, with a warrant and in company with Evans, traced the pair yesterday afternoon to a shanty at Twin Branches, eight miles east of South Bend, where the shooting took place. Eperson escaped and is still at large.

ARM BROKEN IN A FALL

A little daughter of Conductor
William Koontz, of the Pennsylvania, fell off a shed last week and broke both bones of her right forearm. Dr. A. J. Kesler reduced the fractures.

DOCTORS COULD NOT HELP HER.

"I had kidney trouble for years," writes Mrs. Raymond Conner, of Shelton, Wash., "and the doctors could not help me. I tried Foley's Kidney Cure, the very first dose gave me relief and I am now cured.
I cannot say too much for Foley's Kidney Cure. For sale by Dreier &

Marshall county, had 2,700 bushels of wheat threshed from this year's glossy as when the wheat was first

John B. Rose, ex-city treasurer of Wabash, who disappeared September 1, leaving an alleged shortage in his

Wabash by the end of the present week to face the situation. It is claimed that Rose has at no time been more than 150 miles away from Wabash, but that he has been near the Ohio state line. In a letter he declares that he has been sick from the day he left Wabash, being confined to his bed much of the time, and that no one not in that situation could appreciate the mental anguish he had undergone. He expressed the greatest anxiety to see his family, and asserted that he intended devoting the remainder of his days to righting the wrongs he had done to his relatives, his bondsmen and his friends.

BEATEN OUT

MINER CLUBBED TO DEATH BY ANGRY STRIKERS.

MURDER NEAR SCRANTON

VICTIM HAD RETURNED TO WORK IN MINES.

STATEMENT BY MITCHELL

REPORTS OF DISORDER ARE EXAGGERATED.

Scranton, Pa., Sept. 25.—James Wenzel was clubbed to death today near the Grassy Island colliery, within a less than a mile of where the thirteenth regiment is in camp. Wenzel was formerly secretary of the Grassy Island local union of the United Mine Workers. He returned to work a few weeks ago and thereby gained the enmity of the other members of the union. No arrests have been made.

Colonel Watres, commanding the thirteenth regiment, sent two companies to Forest City today. Everything was found to be quiet there and no company returned to camp atlyphant.

STATEMENT BY MITCHELL. Indianapolis, Ind., Sept. 25.—President John Mitchell, of the United Mine Workers of America, in a long telephone message to the News today from Wilkesbarre, said:

"The press reports of lawlessness in the strike region are greatly exaggerated. There has been no serious outbreak. There have been individual acts of lawlessness, but nothing that has been a concerted move on the part of the strikers.

"There is no reign of terror and the miners are conducting themselves as peaceably as when the strike started. It is not for me to criticize the state authorities in sending troops to the strike region, but I do not see any need for troops now than there is as the day the strike began.

"The miners are standing firm, and can see no evidence of weakening on their part. Every day non-union miners are quitting the mines and joining forces with us."

CAPTURED A GOLD BUG.

F. S. Parkinson, residing at 710 Orchard avenue, is exhibiting a queer specimen of insect life that is of unusual interest to amateur entomologists who have examined it. The bug is evidently of the beetle family, but its remarkable feature is in the fact that it has a luminous metallic luster, closely resembling gold. The insect, though smaller in size, is shaped somewhat like a potato bug, is back covered by a translucent shield, upon which are scales resembling gold, while the muzzle of the insect is of similar metallic hue. One to whom the specimen has yet been submitted has been able to classify it authentically. Persons who have read Poe's story of "The Gold Bug" may have presumed the animal there cited to be a creature of the erratic author's very lively fancy, but in this instance Mr. Parkinson's gold bug is the real thing. The insect was found by his daughter. While the young lady was brushing a cockle the bug fell from its folds.

FOUR KILLED BY TRAIN.

Greenville, Pa., Sept. 25.—In a collision of freight trains on the Pittsburgh, Bessemer and Lake Erie railroad, near Pardoe, today four men were killed and two fatally injured.

The dead: Edward Billington. Fireman Mackey. Brakeman Gaskey. Brakeman Loffie. The injured: Brakeman Gulliford. Unknown fireman.

PRISON GUARD KILLED.

Nashville, Tenn., Sept. 25.—Polk Hill, a guard at the Davidson county asylum, five miles from this city, was killed today by Thomas Copeley, an inmate of the institution. Hill was about to serve Copeley with breakfast when the latter came up behind and stabbed him. Hill died two hours later.

CARRINGTON—KECK.

Miss Veora Keck and Andrew D. Carrington were married last Thursday at the residence of George Shannon, 911 Eliza street, by Rev. J. W. Lake, pastor of Calvary U. B. church. After the wedding ceremony a wedding supper was served. Miss Keck is the daughter of William Keck, of Cedarville, and Mr. Carrington is a painter employed by the Pennsylvania company. Mr. and Mrs. Carrington will be at home for the present at 911 Eliza street.

W. W. WOOLLEN DEAD.

Indianapolis, Ind., Sept. 25.—William Wesley Woollen, for many years conspicuous in public life in Indianapolis and Indiana, and a writer of note, died yesterday at the family home, 314 East Ohio street. Death was caused by paralysis, but Mr. Woollen was conscious until the end. Although an invalid for the last ten years, he bore his sufferings uncomplainingly and during that time many of his later writings were completed. Mr. Woollen was born in Maryland in 1828. He came in 1844 to Madison, Ind., and to Indianapolis in 1865. He was identified with the banking business and was an influential factor in financial matters. In politics he was a democrat and in religion a Presbyterian.

NEW AMBASSADOR TO BERLIN

CHARLES MAGNE TOWER WILL SUCCEED A. D. WHITE.

Mr. Tower is Taken from the St. Petersburg Embassy and Belamy Story Will Get It.

Berlin, Sept. 25.—President Roosevelt has chosen Charles Magne Tower, ambassador to Russia, to succeed Mr. White as ambassador to Germany.

CHARLES MAGNE TOWER.

Notifications of this decision and that Mr. White's letters of recall had been issued by the state department have reached the foreign office here.

The appointment of Mr. Tower had been expected here for several weeks. As he was passing through the country six weeks ago he gave a hint to one or two of his friends that he might be transferred to this city. Mr. White probably will not have his farewell audience with the emperor on November 12, on his birthday, as had been provisionally arranged, as his majesty leaves on November 5 for England. The retiring ambassador is not likely to present his letter of recall until the middle of November.

CONFIRMED IN WASHINGTON.

Washington, Sept. 25.—The appointment of Charles Magne Tower as ambassador to Germany, to succeed Mr. White, is confirmed here. It is likely that official announcement of the change will be made soon, either by President Roosevelt himself or by the state department.

Mr. Tower's acceptance of the German mission will create a vacancy in the ambassadorship to Russia, which is held now by him. It is regarded as quite likely that he will in turn be succeeded by Hon. Bellamy Storer, present ambassador to the court of Madrid. It is intimated further that the vacancy in the Spanish mission may be filled by the appointment of Mr. Henry White, present secretary of the embassy in Great Britain.

DESPERATE DEED

WASHINGTON MAN WRECKS A HOTEL WITH DYNAMITE.

LOVED LANDLORD'S DAUGHTER

WAS FRIEND OF FAMILY, BUT HIS SUIT NOT FAVORED.

GUESTS HURT; MAN SUICIDES

GREAT QUANTITY OF EXPLOSIVE WAS FOUND.

Washington, Sept. 25.—The Golden Eagle hotel, on the corner of New Jersey avenue and D streets, was dynamited this morning at 4:30 o'clock by Frank McKie, who subsequently committed suicide. Between twenty and thirty guests were thrown from their beds by the explosion, but only the proprietor, Louis Brandt, and his wife, were injured, the latter seriously. The roof of the building was blown off and the falling wreckage crashed through to the basement, leaving the structure as if wrecked by a tornado. Every pane of glass in the building and the adjoining structures was broken. The explosion called out the fire department.

The affair is involved in some mystery. The proprietor gave a banquet last night in honor of his wife, who had just returned from Germany, and McKie was a guest.

McKie had boarded at the hotel four years and had been treated as a member of the Brandt family, which included a daughter, Sophie, with whom McKie is said to have been in love. Brandt denies that there was any understanding between the two. McKie remarked last night that he was going to wait until Sophie returned from Germany with her mother and then was going to his old home in Philadelphia. Mrs. Brandt and her daughter returned about 8 o'clock last night.

HAD A PISTOL.

The attempt at wholesale murder followed this morning. McKie, with a pistol in his hand, was seen by an employe of a lunch room opposite the hotel just before the shots were fired. When the explosion occurred a slight blaze sprang from the debris, but it was quickly extinguished by the firemen. Brandt and his wife were rescued before many of the thirty guests of the establishment had reached the part of the building in which McKie's room was located. McKie, with revolver clutched in his hand, was found lying on the floor with his head in a pool of blood. A bullet hole near the right ear had caused instant death. Brandt was bruised about the body and shaken up badly and received a severe cut on the left leg. Mrs. Brandt sustained bruises about the body and a cut hand. When the wrecked building was searched today enough dynamite was found in McKie's trunk to blow up the block of buildings.

PREPARED FOR BUSINESS. There were six whole sticks and parts of two or three broken sticks, together with a box of caps and a quantity of wire for long distance explosions. He had at least nine sticks of dynamite in his possession.

McKie was about 28 years old. He was formerly of Philadelphia and had relatives in Chicago. His brother, Harry McKie, was killed in Chicago last year, according to a telegram found in the dead man's room today. McKie was a machinist in the navy yard here, but resigned on inheriting upwards of $20,000 about four years ago. This amount he is said to have lost on the races and his act is accredited by some to this loss. Detectives are investigating the case today.

PRAIRIE WAS UNDER WATER

RECENT DELUGE BROKE PREVIOUS RECORDS.

Territory West of Fort Wayne Flooded by Rainfall, But Little Damage Ensues.

A large section of the prairie country southwest of Fort Wayne was inundated by the terrific rainfall which started Tuesday morning and continued practically without cessation until the brief respite Thursday. Old residents of that section say they do not remember to have ever seen the water so high, and while it occasioned much inconvenience very little actual damage resulted.

For miles along the line of the Southwestern the effect of the heavy rain was noticeable. The tracks of the electric road were under water for some distance and at Ranoke and Abolt it was almost impossible to reach the electric road stations without either making wide detours or resorting to the use of boats.

INJURED ON THE MARKET.

Mrs. George Connett, living two miles west of the city on the Huntington road, was painfully injured on the Barr street market Thursday, and the accident caused great excitement, it being reported that the woman had been killed. Mrs. Connett's horses became frightened and started to back the vehicle onto the sidewalk, and Mrs. Connett being unable to get out of the way in time was caught between the wagon and her market stand and painfully crushed. She was carried into Loesch's drug store in an insensible condition and Dr. Macbeth attended her. It was found that no bones were broken, but the woman suffered much from shock.

TREATMENT OF CATHOLICS.

Evansville, Ind., Sept. 25.—The convention of the Catholic Central society, at its session yesterday, considered reports. A report was made from the committee on what is known as Leo house, maintained for the benefit of German Catholic emigrants. A large album is to be made, in which will be placed the photographs of all persons contributing $50 or more to the support of the institution. It will also contain photographs of the German Catholic archbishops. The album will be sent to Rome and presented to the Pope, next year, on his silver jubilee. Resolutions were passed on the treatment of Catholics in the Philippines. It is alleged that the Catholics there do not receive the same treatment as in the United States. The afternoon session was devoted to the discussion of the Indian school question.

IT GOES TO SUPREME COURT

DUNN MURDER CASE HAS BEEN APPEALED.

Attorneys Filed Record Wednesday—Oral Arguments Will be Offered Later.

The case of Charles Dunn, the aged Allen county man now serving a life sentence at Michigan city prison for the murder of Alice Cothrell, a ten-year-old girl at Wallen in July, 1901, has reached the supreme court.

The record was filed at Indianapolis Wednesday by Henry Colerick and Samuel L. Morris, attorneys for the convicted man, on appeal to the supreme court from the decision of the Allen circuit court, where the famous case was tried nearly one year ago.

The record is a voluminous affair, comprising about 1,500 type-written pages, and the work of preparation for the appeal has been a tremendous one. It is impossible to say just when the case will be taken up by the supreme court, but it is likely that two or three months may elapse before there is a decision from the higher tribunal. Before the court renders its finding on the appeal Attorneys Colerick and Morris will argue the case orally before the supreme court, and this may not be done until shortly before the holiday season.

THE CARRYING OF A GUN.

The local hunter should remember the law concerning the carrying of a shotgun for hunting purposes between the dates of October 1st and November 10th. It is unlawful to carry one without first securing the permit of the game warden. The idea is to keep the hunter from temptation, it being a task for the ordinary sport to keep from shooting game at this time of the year.

MORE EVIDENCE.

IT IS COMING IN RAPIDLY IN FORT WAYNE.

Evidence on the following subject will prove of interest to every Fort Wayne reader. So many people go through the same experience daily. This public statement should be proof positive to every wavering doubter. Read it carefully.

Mrs. Flora Brown, of 37 Bass street, says: "My daughter and I had read a good deal about Doan's Kidney Pills and the wonderful cures they were making, so we decided to get them. I had kidney trouble, as the secretions were discolored and contained sediment, my feet swelled and I was much bothered with dizziness; still I did not have much backache. My daughter got Doan's Kidney Pills for me at Meyer Bros. & Co.'s drug store and I began taking them as directed. They were just what I needed. From day to day as I continued the treatment I improved until I was in good health."

For sale by all dealers, price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y., sole agents for the United States.

GIRL LEAPS TO HER DEATH

OBSTACLE TO MARRIAGE THE CAUSE OF RASH ACT.

She Was a Syrian Whose Deportation Had Been Ordered by the Government.

Detroit, Mich., Sept. 26.—Driven to desperation by the prospect of being forever separated from her lover, in the expectation of marrying whom she had nearly circled the globe, Alexandria Joseph, a young Syrian girl, in a supreme effort to escape from the United States immigration agent who was about to deport her, threw herself from the window of a Michigan Central passenger train running fifty miles an hour yesterday, and was instantly killed. The tragedy occurred two miles north of Newport, on the Toledo division of the Michigan Central, and was the culmination of years of effort on the part of Abodelly, of Cedar Rapids, Iowa, to lead his old world sweetheart to the altar. But when he had saved enough money to pay the girl's passage to the United States, and she had come as far as Montreal, the girl was refused admittance to the United States on the charge that she was afflicted with trachoma. Abodelly had the young woman cared for at the hospital for three months. On August 19, however, his funds having given out, he attempted to run the gauntlet of the inspectors at Detroit, and was caught. Both the young foreigners were detained by the United States authorities at Detroit and Abodelly narrowly escaped deportation for violating the immigration laws. The sympathy of the officers was aroused in his favor, so that he was allowed to leave town. From that time the girl's fate hung in the balance, until yesterday Immigration Agent Cameron Miller took her in custody with a warrant from the secretary of the treasury to have the girl deported to her home in Syria. The officer had allowed his charge to go to the toilet room, and a moment later the door opened, revealing an empty room and an open window. The train was run back and the young woman was found dead beside the track.

APPEAL FOR OLD SHRINES

BUDDHIST ADDRESSES PEOPLE OF AMERICA.

Shrines in Sacred City in Ceylon Threatened With Destruction by British.

Los Angeles, Cal., Sept. 26.—Anagarika H. Dharmapala, Buddhist representative in America, has just arrived in Los Angeles from Ceylon, en route to London. He has addressed the following communication to the American people:

"I want to call your attention to a subject which, to a great degree, is bound to affect the greater portion of the entire population of the civilized world.

"I have been officially informed of the outrageous action of the British officials in the distant island of Ceylon in threatening to desecrate the ancient shrines in the sacred city of Anuradhapura, which is to the Buddhists as great as Mecca is to the Mohammedans or Jerusalem to the Christians.

"This historic city, which for two thousand, two hundred years, on account of its hallowed associations, has received the homage of five hundred millions of Buddhists of China, Japan, Siam, Cambodia, Burma, India, Thibet, etc., is now threatened with the destruction of its shrines at the hands of the despotic British officials, who in their madness wish to bring about a catastrophe which will result in a religious convulsion throughout the entire Buddhist world all over Asia. I have addressed a communication on the subject to Mr. Joseph Chamberlain, the secretary of state for the colonies, and I make this appeal to the American people for their moral support for the suppression of this atrocious act of vandalism and diabolism.

"The letter to Joseph Chamberlain, referred to, states that the Buddhists of Ceylon are greatly distressed at the high-handed course of British officials in the city of Anuradhapura. 'The Singhalese have never been savages and they have loved and do love religion more than gold. The British, when they were called upon by the Singhalese chiefs to administer the government of the Kandyan provinces, were pledged to protect the religion of the Buddhist.'

The sacred character of the threatened city is pointed out and the letter concludes as follows:

"Buddhists are not fanatics, neither are they savages, but it is hoped that Great Britain will instruct the subordinate officials in Ceylon not to create unrest in the minds of millions of Buddhists, for their religion is sacred and any attempt on the part of the British officials to desecrate the shrines will be resented by the Buddhists of the world."

NEGRO HANGED IN PRISON

ANOTHER EXECUTION OCCURS AT MICHIGAN CITY.

Lewis Russell Pays With His Life the Penalty of a Cold-Blooded Murder.

Michigan City, Ind., Sept. 26.—Lewis Russell, the negro who murdered Perry Stout, another negro, at a dance at Stout's house, near Princeton, last April, was hanged in the penitentiary just after midnight this (Friday) morning. The condemned negro spent the day quietly and was apparently resigned to his fate. When the prison officers dressed him in the regulation suit of black, Russell showed signs of weakening, but he was able to mount the steps of the black gallows with little assistance. He said he had no statement to make and the black cap was quickly adjusted and the trap was sprung. In thirteen and one-half minutes the prison physician pronounced him dead. The execution was witnessed by no one but the prison officials. The body was shipped to the negro's wife this morning.

The crime for which Russell was hanged was cold-blooded. Russell, who was regarded as a bad negro, went to a dance at the home of Stout, where a woman with whom Russell had associated was a guest. Russell deliberately drew a revolver, told Stout he "had him where he could not get his life preserver," and fired two shots, killing Stout almost instantly. Russell was speedily convicted and sentenced to be hanged August 26. He appealed to Governor Durbin for a respite, claiming his attorneys had deserted him and that he had been given no opportunity to take his case to a higher court. Governor Durbin granted a thirty days' stay of execution, but refused to commute Russell's sentence to life imprisonment.

ORDERS PHILIPPINE CENSUS

PRESIDENT ACTS ACCORDING TO LATE LAW.

Does So on Certificate That the Insurrection Is Ended—The President Doing Well.

Washington, Sept. 26.—President Roosevelt has signed the order providing for the taking of a census of the Philippines in accordance with the terms of the Philippine act passed at the last session of congress and upon the certificate of the Philippine commission that the insurrection has been suppressed.

THE PRESIDENT'S CONDITION.

Washington, Sept. 26.—The condition of President Roosevelt's injured limb is considered satisfactory by his physicians. There have been no appreciable variations in his temperature since yesterday and after the examination of the wound this morning by Dr. Rixey and Dr. Lung it was announced that the president was progressing favorably. Inflammation around the wound is slowly subsiding. This morning the president sat up on a lounge in his bedroom, read the papers and attended to some executive business.

None of the members of the cabinet called before noon and no visitors were admitted to his room. The president is obeying strictly the injunctions of the physicians for absolute rest and quiet, although the inactivity is exceedingly irksome to him. Much of the time of Secretary Cortelyou and the white house force is employed in explaining to committeees in the places in which the president was to have visited on his western trip the keen regret which the president experienced on being obliged to abandon his journey. To some of these letters the president is giving his personal attention. The dreary, rainy weather outside yesterday and today has in no wise affected the president's spirits and he is as cheerful as possible in his enforced confinement.

FEET SWOLLEN TO IMMENSE SIZE.

"I had kidney trouble so bad," says J. J. Cox, of Valley View, Ky., "that I could not work; my feet were swollen to immense size and I was confined to my bed and physicians were unable to give me any relief. My doctor finally prescribed Foley's Kidney Cure which made a well man of me." For sale by Dreier & Bro and Fellens & Polster.

James Ertle, tried at Portland upon the charge of having murdered his wife, was acquitted.

THE FIREMAN'S PARADE.

How It Was Made a Big Success by the Elimination of Whisky and Beer.

A thousand firemen paraded on a hot July day without drinking beer on whisky, and this is how it came about. A charming village in western New York, renowned for its life-giving ozone, fine sanitarium, public library and its freedom from saloons, begged the privilege of entertaining the County Firemen's association for its annual meeting and parade. For weeks the public spirited folk made lively preparations for the coming of their guests—1,000 firemen from 13 towns. It was to be a grand gala day.

"Barrels of beer have been stored in a room in the engine house," was whispered about shortly before the eventful date. The white ribboners were astonished and grieved, but timid because influential voters and town dignitaries had put money into that beer. What was to be done?

The proprietor of the sanitarium, the lady elect of the town, was a woman with the sort of gospel which is both love and law. The courageous, fearless spirit that burned in her was like that of her grandmother, who rode 60 miles on horseback to urge John Quincy Adams to legislate against the sale of alcoholic liquors. She and a few others rallied the faint-hearted women, young and old, and many brotherly-hearted men gladly stood by them. At a meeting of the union committees were appointed and the work systematically arranged.

It was a typical July day, of blazing heat, when the thousand firemen in costumes of blue, green, scarlet and gray arrived, each company with its band. How gay they looked, how stirring was the music and how they marched with their hose carriages loaded with flowers, from the station, through Main street, past the hotel, to the band stand in the square!

Not 60 feet away from the hotel a novel and cheering sight greeted the eyes of those perspiring, thirsty men. It was a pretty rustic booth with white draperies, festooned with evergreens of hemlock and cedar. A conspicuous sign across the front made the welcome announcement: "Lemonade, strawberry lemonade, raspberry lemonade, currant lemonade, pine apple lemonade, grape juice lemonade, hot ginger tea, iced tea, and ice water, All Free to Firemen."

It was astonishing how soon the front compartment of the little booth was filled with firemen. They were deftly served by pretty and womanly girls in holiday attire who stood behind the counters that were in gorgeous array, with their shining glass pitchers and crystal tumblers filled with cool, delicious fruit juices and lemonade. In the rear compartment on an oil stove a singing tea kettle was always ready to provide hot ginger tea or hot lemonade. Here the women received from the basement of an adjacent church the supplies that had been prepared the night before. There were two great crocks containing ten gallons of lemon juice and sugar and the merry-hearted young workers had taken extra pains to strain out every seed. Near the crocks were great milk cans of ice water and glass cans of the brightest and clearest grape and berry juices.

Relays of young women went to the weary musicians with trays full of tempting drinks and the bands played their liveliest airs with fresh vigor, after draining the glasses brimming with the unfermented juices of the grape, currant and strawberry—"cups that cheered but did not inebriate." After each march young men with pails of lemonade and baskets of tumblers hurried about among the firemen until their thirst was satisfied. The little white ribbon bow was everywhere in evidence; the mother-hearted women were praying for the boys as they worked.

Early in the day the fire of some of the men was aroused when they saw what the women were doing and this so scared one prominent woman that she went to the leader and said: "I'm afraid we've made a mistake—the men are angry and say we are taking the entertainment of the firemen out of their hands. One man swore a great oath and said he would keep the firemen away from us and our booth." Still the good work went on cheerily and swimmingly throughout the long hot day.

Where was the beer that had been purchased by the local chief and his allies for the delectation of the guests? Safely locked up in the room where it was stored, and the key mysteriously lost; at least, no one seemed to know where it was.

The firemen cheered the women and their booth as they formed in line of march for the station, and returned to their homes sober and decent men.

The next week the village paper contained letters from the different companies thanking the ladies for their delightful entertainment.

"How far a little candle throws its beams." In the weekly paper of another town in the same state this notice recently has been printed.

"No intoxicating liquors will be served in the rooms of any of the fire companies during the firemen's convention, in accordance with an agreement with the ladies who assisted at the firemen's fair."—Elizabeth P. Gordon, in Union Signal.

TOBACCO AND DEAFNESS.

The Use of the Weed Often Affects the Sense of Hearing and is Related to Catarrh.

Any relation between deafness and the use of, rather, the abuse of tobacco is generally due to the irritant effect of the latter on the upper passages, whereby catarrhal conditions are induced which may spread up the eustachian tubes to the middle ear. Thus the best explanation for the chronic hardness of hearing sometimes observed by smokers is that it is due to a simple middle ear catarrh. The possibility of a chronic neuritis of the auditory nerve analogous to tobacco amblyopia, which Moss assumed to be the cause of smokers' deafness and tinnitus aurium, cannot be denied; but, so far, no adequate proof of its occurrence has been placed before us. In the December number of the Birmingham Medical Review, however, Stanley published the interesting case of a soldier, invalided home from South Africa for enteric, who, on the voyage home, smoked largely of a coarse, strong twist, the only merit of which appeared to lie in its cheapness. He developed a tobacco heart from this indulgence, and with it complete deafness. The condition was evidently one of internal ear deafness. The patient was told to give up smoking, and when this order had been carried into effect for a month both heart and hearing were greatly improved. It is unlikely that the deafness can have been due to the enteric fever, as the labyrinthine complications following that disease are very unfavorable, and are certainly most unlikely to improve without treatment. As far as we can judge, the case must have been one of auditory neuritis due to tobacco poisoning, a condition of such rarity as to make the case referred to of great importance.

TEMPERANCE POINTS.

A meeting of the Women's union of the Church of England Temperance society deplored the lot of the 100,000 women employed in drinking bars, and urged that barmains be done away with.

In order to prevent their employees from entering the saloons at East Pittsburgh, Pa., the Westinghouse Electric & Manufacturing company has established at a cost of $10,000 an institution known as the Casino.

Dr. Lee, of Mississippi, declares that if a man will eat raw onions and drink whisky he will never have malaria. Such a man certainly ought to be an object of fear if not of respect even to malaria.—Chicago Chronicle.

A new convalescent home has been opened at Brighton, England, by the Sons of Temperance. At the dedicatory services Lady Henry Somerset was represented by Mrs. Ward Poole, who presented a portrait of her ladyship to the home. It was received with a vote of thanks.

The French Academy of Medicine has advised the government to prohibit by law the sale of absinthe, anisette, vermouth and chartreuse, as well as gin and all classes of "bitters." Alcohol has been the bane of previous opponents of the drink habit, but the academy finds more dangerous constituents than alcohol in the compounds named and in some others.

Menelek, emperor of Abyssinia, has forbidden the sale of intoxicants in any part of his dominions, and the culprit who infringes this law is liable to the heaviest penalty. It is said that the emperor felt compelled to take these stringent measures by reason of the lamentable excesses to which many of his nobles gave way. The emperor is himself a total abstainer.

Bishop Nicholson on Tobacco.

Referring to the recent order of the Northwestern Railroad company, forbidding smoking to its employees while on duty, Bishop Nicholson, of Milwaukee, in a letter issued to the clergyman of his diocese, says that some of the clergy may learn from this action a useful lesson in morals and in those measures which make men.

"We have never yet," he declares, heard of any argument in favor of the persistent use of tobacco, except that of a purely selfish indulgence. Men whose vocation calls them to a daily crucifixion of the flesh, and who are supposed to be on duty day and night, have no right to use such an argument. We have never yet met with one single trace of moral good or of spiritual help of physical gain resulting from the use of tobacco, but we have seen untold evils and grave decadence following in its train."

To the clerical smoker we commend this vigorous protest of this fearless, moral and spiritual bishop.

For the Children.

A BOY AND TWO LIONS.

Over in Torino, Italy, there is a little five-year-old boy, Ettore Cesa by name, the youngest son of a prominent business man, who has a daily romp with two baby lions. These infant monarchs of the jungles have not been taken in hand by expert trainers or subjugated by famous tamers. Little Cesa himself converted them from snarling little cubs into affectionate playfellows. The plucky little boy and the beasts are inseparable and have as merry times together as three youngsters of the human family.

It was by accident that little Ettore secured his big, clumsy playfellows. Hearing that two lion cubs had been born at the zoological gardens at Torino, Signor Cesa, thinking the animals good material for an interesting photograph, arranged with the superintendent to take a flashlight of the cubs.

Thinking that little Ettore might enjoy a visit to the zoo, Signor Cesa took his little son with him when he went to secure a photograph of the lions. While the signor was arranging his camera and fuses preparatory to making the flashlight his little son slipped unnoticed into the cage where the cubs were curiously watching the visitors.

Before the startled father or the keeper had time to reach him he was down on his knees, with both baby arms thrown about the cubs. The lions seemed not at all astonished by the presence of the youngster. The keeper entered the cage and stood ready to protect the boy should the beasts show any sign of anger. There, however, calmly looked him over, gave him a playful push with their great paws and as a friendly overture invited him to a game of tag by scampering around the cage.

Baby and lions were soon rolling over and over together, the little one shrieking with laughter and the lions showing their pleasure by low, guttural sounds. When the strange trio were tired of playing, Signor Cesa posed the three and secured several excellent photographs.

Little Ettore had become so attached to his new playfellows that he refused to leave the cage and begged earnestly to be allowed to take the animals home. The signor promised to do his best to secure the cubs and greatly surprised the superintendent of the gardens by announcing that he wished to purchase the two infant lions. After a short discussion the bargain was closed, and little Ettore was persuaded to leave his pets by the promise that he should have them in his own home the next day.

The news flew like wildfire, and half the neighborhood turned out to witness the arrival of the cubs. Mothers kept tight hold of their children and forbade them going near little Ettore, predicting all the while the direst mishaps to that little fellow.

Signor Cesa himself somewhat doubted the judgment of the venture, and he remained home from business anxiously awaiting the arrival of the beasts. The keeper brought them in a covered wagon, and the people scattered in all directions when the cubs were led out. Little Ettore, however, who had been watching for his playfellows, dashed out of the house and down the steps to greet them. The cubs seemed as delighted as the child at the meeting, recognizing the boy instantly.

A cage had been placed on the lawn for the cubs, and after a short romp the animals were established in their new home. Every day now Ettore and the lions may when the weather is fine be seen racing over the lawn together or tumbling about on the grass as friendly and intimate as three children. When it storms, the cubs are taken indoors, and the entire third story of Ettore's home is given over to these beasts and their baby owner.

It is no unusual thing for Ettore to take his two friends with him when he goes in town, and the people of Torino are now quite accustomed to the lions. Other children stroke their lovely heads fearlessly; but, although they accept calmly all friendly advances, with no one will they romp as with their little master.

The little one has succeeded in teaching them many tricks. They always wipe their big paws before entering a house and will shake hands when commanded. They play "dead lion" well and have been taught to sit up and beg for their food much the same as a dog will.

Signor Cesa has become almost as fond of the lions as his little son, and he says that Ettore shall keep his pets as long as they prove docile, and he is anticipating having in a year or so two full grown lions wonderfully tamed and trained.—New York Tribune.

PLAYING ROBIN.

A True Story of How Two Little Girls Got Enough Cherries.

Grandpa saw the two little girls walking toward the cherry tree. "Don't pick my cherries," said he sharply as he hurried into the house. The little girls looked soberly at each other, then at the beautiful cherry tree.

"Let's go to the barn," said Jessie. "Let's play under the cherry tree," said Beatrice. "We needn't pick his old cherries."

"I can climb this tree!" cried Jessie. "So can I," said Beatrice. "Just as easy. Let us do it and play we are robins."

They fetched a long fence board and placed one end against the tree and so managed to scramble at last upon the large branches. Here they sat, swinging their feet and singing, for several happy minutes. But above them, high in the tree, the cherries looked red, much redder than they had looked from the ground.

"I tell you what," said Beatrice. "Let's climb up to that tough yonder, and we can reach up and eat cherries like robins do. Then grandpa will never know. I think grandpa is selfish."

Jessie looked first at Beatrice and then at the cherries. "He is selfish," she said. And the two girls climbed higher and soon were pulling down the twigs with their shining fruit.

It was slow work for the eager little mouths to eat the pulp and leave the pits and stems on the twigs, but they ate a great many cherries. The breeze blew the branch out of their reach, and, stretching up to catch it, one girl lost her footing and fell against the other. The slender branch snapped, and down through the boughs they crashed to the ground.

"Oh, oh, oh!" they screamed. "I'm most killed!" wailed Beatrice.

"My foot is all broke to pieces!" cried Jessie. They could not rise for pain. Grandpa ran to them. "Oh, I see," said he sternly, but after helping Beatrice to the house he carried Jessie to her home. Each had a sprained ankle, which kept them indoors for more than a week.

When Jessie came to see Beatrice for the first time after the accident, the two little girls sat soberly on the porch. They looked at the beautiful cherry tree with its broken limb. "I don't want to play robin, do you?" asked Jessie.

"No," said Beatrice, "and I don't want cherries when grandpa says not. They were not ripe."

"No," said Jessie; "I was awful sick of 'em."

"I was, too," chimed in Beatrice. "I believe I'm died!"

"Your grandpa wasn't selfish," said Jessie.

"No, indeed," assented Beatrice. They looked at the tree and gave a great sigh.

"Well," said Jessie cheerfully, "let's go to the barn and play we are hens!" And away they ran.—Edna G. Hawley in Brooklyn Eagle.

HOW HE WORKED UP.

Story of the Boyhood of One Who Is Now a Famous Astronomer.

One day many years ago a bright boy found employment in a photographic gallery in Nashville, Tenn. His wages were small, but he took good care of them, and in course of time he had saved up a snug little sum of money. One day a friend, less thrifty than he, came to him with a long face and asked for a loan of money, offering a book as security. Although the other knew there was little probability of his ever being repaid, he could not refuse the request.

"Here is the money. Keep your book and repay me when you can!" The grateful lad went away in such haste that he left the book behind. The kind youth examined the volume with curiosity. It was a work on astronomy by Lick, and it so fascinated him that he sat up all night studying it. He had never had anything which so filled him with delight. He determined to learn all that he could about the wonders of the heavens and began thenceforth to read everything he could obtain relating to astronomy.

The next step was to buy a small spyglass, and night after night he spent most of the hours on the roof of his house studying the stars. He secured, second hand, the tube of a large spyglass, into which he fitted an eyepiece, and sent to Philadelphia for an object glass. By and by he obtained a five inch glass, which, as you know, is an instrument of considerable size.

Meanwhile he worked faithfully in the shop of the photographer, but his nights brought him rare delight, for he never wearied of tracing out the wonders and marvels of the worlds around us. With the aid of his large spyglass he discovered two comets before they were seen by any of the professional astronomers, whose superior instruments were continually scanning the heavens in search of the celestial wanderers. This exploit, you may well suppose, made the boy famous. He was invited by the professors in Vanderbilt university to go thither and see what he could do with their six inch telescope. In the course of the following four years he discovered six comets. He was next engaged by the Lick observatory. With the aid of its magnificent instrument he discovered eight comets and last summer astonished the world by discovering the fifth satellite of Jupiter. He invented a new method of photographing the nebulae in the milky way and has shown an originality approaching genius in his work in star photography. Perhaps you have already guessed the name of this famous astronomer, which is Professor F. E. Barnard, now in charge of the Yerkes observatory of Chicago university, and this is the story of how he worked up.—Chicago Record-Herald.

MR. BOWSER'S CANDY.

HE TRIES HIS HAND AT MAKING THE OLD FASHIONED KIND.

The Cat Gurgles With Joy at His Experiment, Which Would Have Proved a Great Success Had the Flavoring Been All Right.

(Copyright, 1902, by C. B. Lewis.)

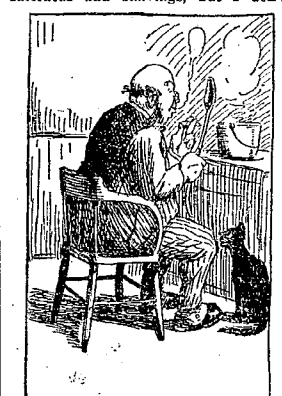

JUST as the Bowsters had finished dinner the grocer's boy handed in a gallon jug, and as the cook pulled the cork and found the contents to be molasses she reported that some mistake had been made.

"There is no mistake," replied Mr. Bowser. "I ordered the molasses as I came along."

"But how did you happen to do that?" asked Mrs. Bowser.

"I am going to pass a homelike evening, and to help me do it I am going to make some old fashioned molasses candy. I have been longing for some for months past."

"But you can buy any amount of it." "Not the kind my mother used to make. You can buy a compound made up of glue, molasses, coffee grounds, saleratus and shavings, but I don't want that sort. I never think of the old farmhouse without thinking of molasses candy. Mother used to make a kind that one could never get enough of, and I am sure I can turn out something just as good."

"You'll only muss up the kitchen and make the cook mad," sighed Mrs. Bowser.

"I shall muss up nothing, and the cook won't get mad. I think she will see what you fail to—the sentiment of the thing. You may smile at my connecting sentiment with molasses candy, but it's there just the same. Some of the happiest evenings of my boyhood were spent in—in"

"In gobbling down molasses candy," she finished as he hesitated.

"There you go! Woman, is there nothing in the past sacred to you? Is it nothing to you that my parents are dead, my brothers and sisters scattered and that the dear old homestead is now in the hands of a wall-eyed pirate who has turned it into a mule farm? By John, but I believe you would stand beside the tomb of Washington and haggle with a shoeing man over a cent!"

The cat came up from the basement and saw that there was fun ahead and sat down to wait for developments.

"I am sorry if I hurt your feelings," said Mrs. Bowser after a time, "but it never occurred to me to connect sentiment and molasses candy. There are songs about boyhood and pear trees, elder mills, babbling brooks and all that, and I don't know why they shouldn't sing of boyhood and molasses candy. The cook has just gone up stairs, and you can have the kitchen all to yourself."

Mr. Bowser walked to and fro and looked at her, but as she said no more he finally descended the stairs and began to work. The cat followed him, and as she saw him poking up the fire and pouring the molasses into a kettle she walked around and gurgled to herself. When the jug had been emptied, the kettle was placed on the stove, and Mr. Bowser sat down with a big spoon in hand to stir the contents and call up old recollections. There were more recollections than stir, and as a consequence Mrs. Bowser soon got the scent of scorched molasses. She didn't feel it her duty to make any investigation, however. Even when the kettle suddenly boiled over and a great cloud of smoke swept across the kitchen and upstairs, causing Mr. Bowser to cough and the cat to sneeze, she made no interruption.

"That's as it should be," he mused as he stirred away. "There was always a burry smell in the house when mother was making candy. That smell takes me back to the dear old days, and I feel as if I could eat the whole outfit. I must watch for the air bubbles."

In ten minutes more he saw them rising to the surface and poured the contents of the kettle into a pan to cool. In a dim way he remembered that his mother used to put in flavorings, and hunting through the cupboard he found vanilla and cinnamon and put them in with a generous hand. As he cooled a spoonful, however, there seemed to be something lacking, and after a moment's thought he went up stairs and queried of Mrs. Bowser:

"Don't you remember that I bought a bottle of wintergreen essence some time ago? It's exactly what mother used to use in her candy. Bless me, but how many times in my boyhood I have hunted for the delicious wintergreen berries!"

"If there is any, you'll find it in the right hand cupboard," she replied, "but you want to be careful. There are a lot of other bottles there. It smells as if you had scorched the molasses."

"Just enough to give it the right taste. I'll show you some candy that is candy in about ten minutes. If this smell gets out on the street, everybody will be wanting a taste."

There were a score of bottles in the cupboard, and Mr. Bowser ran his eye over them and selected one and sniffed its contents and poured them into the dish and stirred vigorously. This was the finishing touch. He waited to grease his hands with butter and then bore the dish up stairs in triumph and set it down under Mrs. Bowser's nose and said:

"If you don't say that this beats anything you ever tasted, I'll buy you the nicest hat in town. Pitch right in!"

"It has a queer smell," she replied as she sniffed at it.

"Your nose must be off. The smell is simply delicious, and as for the taste—ah—um!"

There was only one "ah—um!" He began to choke as he chewed, but recollecting that Mrs. Bowser had opposed him he bravely hung on until she suddenly rose up and said:

"Are you sure you got the right bottle out of the cupboard?"

"Of course I'm sure. What's the matter with you?"

"It smells as if you had flavored it with benzine. I know the cook had a bottle of it to clean a collar."

"But do you think I'm such a fool that I can't tell benzine from wintergreen?" he shouted, though he turned pale and lost his taste for old fashioned molasses candy in an instant.

"He followed her down to the kitchen, and she picked up the empty bottle and read the label and held it out to him. The word "Benzine" was bigger than a house, but he had doped his candy with three ounces of it.

"Did your mother use this flavoring in your happy boyhood days?" she asked as he turned red and white and a look of fear came into his eyes.

"Am I—am I poisoned?" he whispered in reply.

"No, but it's not your fault. Is there nothing in the present sacred to you? Why didn't you open a box of chloride of lime and deuse it in? If you want to die, why not stick your head into the washtub?"

"Wo—woman, I understand! I see through the plot! I—I—" "You sit down and think of your boyhood days," she interrupted—"of your mother and old fashioned molasses candy and benzine and death! I'm going to bed, and I'll pitch that dish out of the window to the cats as I go along!"

Mr. Bowser tottered to a chair and sat down and thought and thought. At midnight Mrs. Bowser came softly down stairs to find him asleep in his chair and the cat sitting on the kitchen table to act as his guardian angel.

The feline had a grin on her face, but she wasn't saying a word to disturb the harmony of the occasion.

So, in a nook beside a brook, Sorely sound asleep, sir, Abijah lay the livelong day, Curled in a little heap, sir, While in the town the brass bands brayed.

The cat came up from the basement and saw that there was fun ahead and sat down to wait for developments.

"I am sorry if I hurt your feelings," said Mrs. Bowser after a time, "but it never occurred to me to connect sentiment and molasses candy. There are songs about boyhood and pear trees, elder mills, babbling brooks and all that, and I don't know why they shouldn't sing of boyhood and molasses candy. The cook has just gone up stairs, and you can have the kitchen all to yourself."

Mr. Bowser walked to and fro and looked at her, but as she said no more he finally descended the stairs and began to work. The cat followed him, and as she saw him poking up the fire and pouring the molasses into a kettle she walked around and gurgled to herself. When the jug had been emptied, the kettle was placed on the stove, and Mr. Bowser sat down with a big spoon in hand to stir the contents and call up old recollections. There were more recollections than stir, and as a consequence Mrs. Bowser soon got the scent of scorched molasses. She didn't feel it her duty to make any investigation, however. Even when the kettle suddenly boiled over and a great cloud of smoke swept across the kitchen and upstairs, causing Mr. Bowser to cough and the cat to sneeze, she made no interruption.

"That's as it should be," he mused as he stirred away. "There was always a burry smell in the house when mother was making candy. That smell takes me back to the dear old days,

THE VALUE OF A SOUL

Heaven Alone Capable of Correctly
Estimating It—Angels Rejoice
Over One Repentant.

(Copyright, 1902.)

Chicago, Sept. 21, 1902.

Text: I say unto you, that whosoever shall be in Heaven over one sinner that repenteth, more than over ninety and nine just persons, which need no repentance.—Luke, 15:7.

Eternal Realities.—Our Lord, Who spoke the words of our text, had a charming way of enforcing Divine truth by picturing in realistic and simple way the absolute certainties of the unseen realm. When He talked of Heaven or hell, of the angels or the Devil, it was with no vague "perhaps," or "it may be," or "I think so." His natural vision beheld the magnificence, the grandeur, the stability of the temple, He felt with the rest of His nation the world-controlling power of the Roman government, He came in touch with the great wisdom and learning not only of men of His own nation, but of the Greeks and Romans as well, and yet the eternal realities of the unseen world were not shut out; for He knew that "the things which are seen are temporal, but the things which are not seen are eternal." His theology was not of that speculative character which busied itself with studying and evolving man-made theories, and endeavoring to reason out, by intellectual gymnastics and contortions, the secrets of God, but He was content to take God at His word. His faith laid hold of the truths of God, and He knew that because they were eternal verities there was no room for argument, or speculation, or human reasoning. Heaven was God's dwelling place, the home of the redeemed, the realm in which the angelic hosts lived, moved and had their being, and hence was a more permanent abiding place than the magnificent cities which the nations of the earth had reared. Hell was not eliminated by a system of human deductions, but its boundaries were definitely fixed, its awful torments vividly described, and in the parable of a "certain" rich man and Lazarus He gives us a glimpse into the Devil's dwelling place, and what is the real agony of a lost soul. The Devil was a person, and not an influence, or a natural inbred tendency, which would make him hard to get at and hard to fight. And after Jesus had met him in that terrible battle in the wilderness and angels came and ministered unto him, He understood anew that the unseen hosts of Heaven were hovering over the earth watching for opportunities whereby they might carry out the purposes and will of God.

And in our text Jesus tells us of the rejoicing in Heaven because one soul has been snatched from the power of Satan. One poor repentant sinner in the earth able to set the angelic hosts to singing and to make the arches and dome of Heaven ring with the glad sound! Think of it! When it came time to open the Charleston exposition, the president pressed a golden key at Washington, and the ponderous machinery all through the vast buildings in the distant city was set in motion. It is wonderful to think that a slight touch can accomplish so much at so great a distance. But stop and think, and contemplate the picture which unrolls before us in the words of the text. Let your mind expand with the vastness of God's universe. Here are the sun, moon and stars rolling in space and kept in place by His Almighty power. Here is the earth, with its teeming millions, and God moving in Nature to supply the temporal needs of these millions. Surely a busy God, and no idle moments for the hosts of Heaven as they move hither and thither in fulfillment of the will of God. And yet, one single soul crushed under a load of sin is able by touching the golden key of repentance to send a thrill through Heaven, and receive back the celestial music of pardon, peace and eternal life. It is difficult, indeed, to obtain an audience with an earthly king. An ordinary mortal cannot hope to be received, except as he is lavish in his expenditure of money, and is aided by influential friends. But oh! how different it is with the repentant sinner! The first faint cry for help and deliverance is caught by the angelic hosts and the soul is ushered into the presence of the King to receive His pardon and His blessing. With the swiftness of the lightning flash the message from earth to Heaven is sped and receives the immediate attention of the King. Marvelous, is it not? And while the Recording Angel is enrolling the name in the Lamb's book of Life, the vast choir of Heaven bursts into a glad psalm of rejoicing, the like of which has never penetrated to human ears. And mingled with the voices of the angels are those of the Old and New Testament saints, the "so great a cloud of witnesses" to the love and mercy of God. There is David with his harp; and his rejoicing in the Lord and His saving grace rings out clearer and sweeter than ever it did on the hillsides of Judea as he tended his sheep. There are Peter and John and the other disciples singing with the rest. There is Philip, who came to know the value of one poor soul as he went out into the desert to preach the word to the Ethiopian. There are the sinful woman, and the thief who hung on the cross and was the first to go into the kingdom with Christ. Yes, and there may be the sainted father or mother of the repentant soul. For years their prayers went up to the throne of God for the wayward boy or girl. As the weary years dragged out their lengths their prayers ceased not, and their faith failed not. At last their earthly pilgrimage is ended and they join the Heavenly hosts, and yet their prayers for the wayward child are seemingly unanswered. But one glad day in Heaven the cry of that wayward and now repentant child is heard, and how the joyful song of the sainted father and mother rises above that of all the rest. Oh! how they sing. They used to sing: "O happy day, that fixed my choice On Thee, my Saviour and my God! Well may this glowing heart rejoice, And tell its raptures all abroad."

Happy day, happy day, When Jesus washed my sins away; He taught me how to watch and pray, And live rejoicing every day. Happy day, happy day, When Jesus washed my sins away. But what that song in Heaven is over one sinner that repenteth we cannot know here. That it is transcendently sweeter and richer and fuller than any song the redeemed sing here is certain.

And while Heaven is rejoicing over another soul saved, that Devil, whom so many modern-day preachers and rationalistic Christians, the twentieth century Sadducees, are trying to reason and argue out of existence, is hanging around the outskirts of the celestial city and raging in impotent madness that another sinner has escaped his snare and his destruction. He tried to stifle that cry before it could penetrate the pearly gates and reach the crystal throne. He sent his minions post haste to whisper words of doubt and discouragement in the heart of the sin-sick soul. He did his utmost to quiet the rising fears, and bolster up the confidence in a false hope. Satan never lets a soul get out of his grasp if he can help it, and on the days when Heaven is the happiest, he is having his bluest of days. As the music of Heaven over the one repentant soul which he has lost floats out to him it drives him back to earth to redouble his efforts to send souls to hell. Where the revival is being felt, and the cry of repentant sinners is heard, there you will find Satan doing his hardest work. Peter declares that "your adversary, the Devil, as a roaring lion, walketh about, seeking whom he may devour." And I am rather inclined to think that Peter caught this glimpse of the Devil during the thickest part of one of his great revivals.

The Value of a Soul.—And if Heaven rejoices so over one single soul which repents, and the Devil works so hard to compass its destruction, there must be a value in that soul which is little realized. Heaven's standard of values is not the same as that of earth, but it is the correct standard and will continue in use throughout eternities, long after the earth has melted with fervent heat and God has established a new heaven and a new earth. The cheapest thing in the world to-day is human life. Outside of the Kingdom of Jesus Christ, life and the welfare of the soul consume less thought and care than are given to the dumb brutes, which sustain a positive intrinsic value to their owners. But it is not our purpose to discuss the question of man's inhumanity to man, as real and inhuman and selfish as it may be. We may not be able to estimate the value which Heaven puts upon a human soul by contrasting the cheapness in which it is held by the world, but perhaps we may be able to understand something of it by contemplating the sacrifice which Heaven was willing to make in behalf of the lost soul.

The parables of the lost sheep and the lost coin, uttered by our Lord in connection with the words of our text, reveal to us two important facts in regard to the soul's value. In the case of the sheep, individuality of the soul is set forth; in that of the coin, its intrinsic value is emphasized, and in the parable of the prodigal son, which follows, we have beautifully illustrated the intimate relationship which exists between God and the human soul: the empty place in the household; the vacant chair at the family table; the love of the father going out after the son in the far country; the full and free forgiveness which is given before the son has asked for it, and the joy of the return.

There were an hundred sheep in the fold of our parable, but every sheep was different. No two were exactly alike. The place of the lost sheep, therefore, could not be exactly filled. The completeness of the sheepfold is marred by the absence of that one sheep. The shepherd misses it. Though the ninety and nine are safe within the fold, he needs must go out after the lost sheep. So it is with the human soul. No two are alike. And the individuality of the soul gives it an inestimable value in the sight of Heaven. No soul can fill the place intended for another. A beautiful mosaic is being worked out in Heaven. If one stone is missing, it mars the completeness of the whole. Is it any wonder, then, that all the Heavenly hosts burst into song when a new stone is set and the pattern grows toward completion? To understand the value of a soul one must realize how Heaven prizes the individuality of every soul. Let this thought take hold of your heart as you engage in your Christian service. Try and see in every soul with whom you come in touch, as the Master sees, some individuality, some characteristics, which just fits into a place that God would have filled. Don't be annoyed by the peculiarities of people, but try to find in them a greater measure of service for the Master. Don't try to be like somebody else. Be yourself, doing the will of God. Don't envy some one else, his gifts, or position in the service of the Lord, but realize and understand that in your own individuality and characteristics, God can best work out His purposes, and you will more perfectly fit into the place left for you in the Heavenly mosaic.

The Intrinsic Value of a Soul.—How can we adequately set forth what the intrinsic value of a soul is to God? The lost coin was one of a certain number. They were all alike in their value. In a sense God sets no higher value on one soul than on another. He "is no respecter of persons." He "wills that all men should be saved and come to a knowledge of the truth." His love reaches to the lowest depths, and spans the widest space. This thought may be destructive of the natural pride of the human heart, but it is God's truth, just the same. Jesus is as ready to reach out to save the miserable drunkard in the gutter as He is to give salvation to the most honored and respected man in the community. The soul of one man, be he white or black, be he college president or street laborer, be he Hottentot or the son of a cultured race, is as precious in the sight of God as the soul of any other man. And to understand this intrinsic value which attaches to every soul in the sight of God, we must be able to fathom the infinite wisdom and love which moved God to make man in His own image. To give him a nature, a soul which could only find its perfect realization in yielding its will to that of the Divine and living the God-life through Him. As far as the human vision is able to penetrate and the human mind understand, every one born into the world in a certain sense is a part of God; with an immortal soul and the possibility of an eternity with Him. Think then of what inestimable value Heaven must place upon each precious soul. Not until the brightness of eternity bursts upon our vision and we see God face to face and know Him as He is, will we be able to measure the intrinsic value of a soul. As you seek to be God's instrument in the salvation of souls, try and see in each soul with which you come in touch that something which has come from God and which the touch of Jesus Christ can quicken into life and send back again to God.

The Relation of the Soul to God.—Christ used the family tie to further illustrate and emphasize the value of a soul in the sight of Heaven. There is joy in Heaven over one sinner that repenteth, because it is the return of the prodigal to the Father's House. The son that was dead is alive again, the vacant chair is once more occupied, and the aching void in the Father's heart is filled. The sorrow felt while the loved one sojournd in the far country is turned to joy, and the reunited family begins a new and brighter chapter in its history. You remember the touching little story told in the old poem of the hard-working but poor parents who found it almost impossible to provide for their large family, and who had the offer made to them by a rich relative of taking one of the children to bring up. With the dim light in their trembling hands they go from bed to bed and scan each darling's face as it rests peacefully upon its pillow. With an ache in the heart and a sob in the voice they discuss together which one it shall be that they shall give up. Each name is spoken in turn, but no one can be spared from the family circle and the roof tree. Though poverty is knocking at the door, love reigns within, and the family circle remains unbroken. So it is in Heaven. No soul can be spared. As God the Father looks down upon this sin-cursed earth He does not see a single soul which He is willing should remain out of the Heavenly Home. What earthly parent who loves his children can express their value in dollars and cents. How the ties of the home bind together its members with such unbreakable links as to make the thought of separation unbearable. Is it not beautiful to think that the soul sustains such a relationship to God as to be absolutely indispensable to the completeness and joy of Heaven? Heaven's Sacrifice.—We have been endeavoring to tell something of what the value of the soul is as estimated by Heaven. The joy in Heaven exceeds the rejoicing of the shepherd who has recovered his lost sheep, it exceeds that of the woman who has found the lost coin, it is akin to the joy and gladness in the home when the prodigal returned. The value of a soul is absolute and inestimable, because of the individuality of each soul, because of its intrinsic worth as part of God Himself, and because of the relationship which the soul sustains to God as the Father. But beyond all this we have the sacrifice which Heaven made to prove the value of a soul. The price which is paid for an article at the store in a degree at least determines the value of that article. The value of a soul is measured by the richest treasure of Heaven given to win that soul back to Heaven. "Hereby perceive we the love of God, because He laid down His life for us." That is, we can fathom the love of God if we are able to realize that He gave to the uttermost, and we can know the value of a soul as we are able to estimate the value of the wonderful gift of God to men. But who can know fully the love of God, or who can estimate the real worth of God's gift in the person of His Son? Let the mind dwell upon this thought and see how the sense of God's wonderful love and marvelous gift and the value of a soul will grow upon you until words will be inadequate to express the fullness of your emotions.

"O could I speak the matchless worth, O could I sound the glories forth Which in my Saviour's blood I find, And with Gabriel while he sings My soul shall ever shine."

"I'd sing the precious blood He spilt, My ransom from the dreadful guilt Of sin and wrath Divine! I'd sing His glorious righteousness, In which all-perfect, Heavenly dress My soul shall ever shine."

"I'd sing the characters He bears, And all the forms of love He wears, Exalted on His throne; In loftiest songs of sweetest praise, I'd make all His glories known."

I would to everlasting days.

Closing Feature of the Dedication a Pretty One—Cookran Would Take No Fee.

While the illness of President Roosevelt made it necessary to omit one of the principal features of Allen county's great event and caused unmeasured disappointment to thousands of visitors who had hoped to have the pleasure of seeing the president and hearing him in an address, the evening reception which closed the dedication occasion was a brilliant affair.

The majestic building was gorgeously illuminated from basement to dome with thousands of incandescent lamps, all doors were thrown open wide and a great throng took complete possession of the entire building. During the entire evening the City Band and Shober's First Regiment band, stationed in the building, alternated in a rich concert program that delighted the thousands who visited the great building during the evening.

For hours the entire interior was a sea of moving humanity that moved about the halls and corridors, inspected the offices and court rooms, admired the grandeur and beauty of the architectural conception and kept up an incessant comment of praise for the magnificent building. Until a late hour the scene was an animated and brilliant one.

Despite the unfavorable weather and the regrettable illness of the president, there is a unanimous sentiment that the dedication was a splendid event in the history of Allen county and officials and committee members are receiving many congratulations. Hon. W. Bourke Cookran left at 9:20 o'clock that evening on his return to New York. Before departing he paid a high compliment to the grandeur of the great structure and told enthusiastically of the pleasure it had afforded him to be present and contribute to the dedicatory exercises. "I admired the outward appearance of the great building very much when in Fort Wayne two years ago," said Mr. Cookran that evening, "and when I received the invitation to deliver the dedicatory address I was very glad to accept the honor." Mr. Cookran declined absolutely to make any charge for his services and refused to accept any sort of compensation. He was only prevailed upon after much insistence upon the part of Mr. Barrett to accept a sum which merely covered his railroad fare and hotel expenses.
